BOY HELD ON WAY TO WED TEACHER, 27

Father Arrests Mason Marvin, 19, and, With Policemen's Help, Confines Youth in Detention Home

"I'll Marry Her Yet," Boy Vows; Romance With Miss Lola Parker of Melrose Heights School Bared

While his fiancee, Miss Lola Parker, 27, Oakland school teacher, waits in Atlantic City with all arrangements completed for a wedding, 19-year-old Mason Marvin Jr. of 252 Lee street is being held in the Oakland Juvenile Detention Home today at the request of his parents, to prevent his going East to marry the young woman.

The youth was taken from an overland train last night by his father and two policemen, just as he was about to make good his escape from parental surveillance and hasten to his wedding.

YOUTH VOWS HE'LL WED FIANCEE YET.

Today he declared that iron bars had not cooled his ardor for his betrothed, and that the fact that she is eight years his senior will make no difference to him once he obtains his freedom.

The romance between the two began while Miss Parker was teaching in the Melrose Heights Grammar school last year, while she was working, as a probationary instructor, for her permanent certificate.

After the young woman had returned to her home in Atlantic City, N. J., for the summer vacation, the two corresponded, and finally arranged that Marvin should journey East and marry her.

SISTER OPENS LOVE LETTERS.

The friendship between the couple had been known to Marvin's parents, who disapproved of the attachment. Letters received by the youth from Miss Parker were opened by his sister, who discovered in them the plans for the wedding. She immediately informed her parents. Marvin was commanded to abandon his intentions.

Last night the youth slipped away from home, and boarded a Western Pacific train at Third and Washington streets.

With only a minute or so remaining before the train would carry him honeymoonward, the youth was confronted in the Pullman by his father and Police Inspectors Alec Trotter and W J Davis. They led him from the car.

According to the parents, the proposed wedding has received the sanction of Miss Parker's father, Arthur Parker, who visited Oakland recently.

The case was presented to Superintendent Fred M. Hunter of the Oakland School Department today by Marvin's parents.

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Lillian Seigl never permitted her children, Edward, 7, and Ruth, 5 to play on the lake beach for fear of drowning. As usual today, during the hot weather she filled the bath tub and let them play in it with toy boats. Noticing a sudden lull in their laughter she rushed upstairs to find them locked in each other's arms, dead. The toys were floating over their bodies.

Victim of Gem Robbers

BANDITS BIND JEWELER; LOOT BROADWAY STORE

Hundreds Look On As Unmasked Pair Strip Shop Of Gems and Make Escape.

In sight of hundreds of passers-by, two armed and unmasked bandits today bound and gagged Simon Nankin, proprietor of the Oakland Jewelry Co, at his place of business, 1025½ Broadway, and escaped with $150 in currency and several thousand dollars in jewelry.

The robbery, one of the most daring in recent Oakland criminal records, had apparently been carefully planned, according to Police Inspectors Bodie Wallman and Joe Robinson, and Assistant District Attorney Frank Shay, who conducted the investigation.

Neighboring storekeepers had noticed the two men loitering about the vicinity for the past several days evidently informing themselves as to the habits of the various merchants.

They made their entrance at the Oakland Jewelry Co. store today just as Nankin had his safe open and was laying out his window displays of watches, diamonds and other jewelry for the day.

Nankin was on his way to the show window with two trays, one of watches and one of diamonds, when the men came in, he said. One of them was about six feet tall and the other was short; the latter was armed with a revolver.

The bandits ordered him to hand over the trays and then, pressing the muzzle of the revolver against his back, marched him into a rear room, where they bound and gagged him. Leaving him lying on the floor, they returned to the front part of the store, where they rifled the open safe.

Throughout the robbery the bandits were in full view of crowds of morning shoppers passing along Broadway between Tenth and Eleventh streets. No one, however, apparently noticed what was taking place.

As soon as he heard the bandits leave the store, Nankin began shouting as loudly as he could with the gag in his mouth, and kicking at the partition of the adjoining establishment. He was heard by William McLeod, proprietor of a restaurant next door, who summoned Policeman Daniel Fleming.

Nankin was unable to estimate the amount of jewelry that had been taken, pending an inventory of the articles in the safe. The loss is covered by insurance.

RUSSIANS SEIZE AMERICAN SHIP

Alaskan Craft and Cargo Confiscated by Soviet in Siberian Port.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 4.—Russian authorities have seized the Nome, a motor ship of this city, and confiscated her cargo, according to word received here today from Anadyr, Siberia.

Gus Hendrickson, master and owner, Arnold Castel, engineer and Sam Magidis, charterer of the boat, were arrested, it was stated. Magidis had an arrangement with authorities at Moscow, which he understood permitted him to trade in Siberia, but reports said that the authorities at Anadyr, which is on the east coast of Asia just south of the Arctic circle, refused to recognize this authority.

Youth Held in L. A. As "Hammer Slayer"

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

LOS ANGELES, Aug 4.—Charged with the "hammer murder" of Emil Dubois, 15-year-old Salina, Kan., youth, Leonard Peterson was arrested here today. With him was 16-year-old Floy Kissinger who, officers assert, he brought to California in an automobile from Kansas.

Although the girl admitted she "had gone around" with Dubois, she denied jealousy existed between the dead youth and Peterson.

Peterson told the authorities here that Dubois was alive when he left Kansas several weeks ago and said he had nothing to do with his death.

McDonough Denied Dry Case Rehearing

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeal today denied a rehearing in the case of Peter McDonough and his nephew Harry Rice, charged with violating the prohibition laws. The basis of the appeal was that the original opinion affirming the conviction in the district court had been written by Judge W. W. Morrow, now on the retired list. The court in effect holds that Judge Morrow was entitled to act.

Petitions For Measure Found Adequate; 18 Proposals To Go Before Voters.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 4.—The initiative measure to legalize ten-round boxing bouts in California today qualified for a place on the general election ballot in November, with the filing in the office of Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan petitions containing several thousand names.

The measure is sponsored by the American Legion and other ex-service men's organizations.

The measure qualified with a total of 84,976, or 7713 in excess of the number required by law.

Eighteen measures, including initiative proposals and constitutional amendments have not qualified and two more may qualify before tomorrow, the closing day for filing editions.

Initiative measures still in doubt are:

Making it compulsory to place copies of the Bible in public school libraries and classrooms, and permitting Bible reading in class rooms.

Giving cities a portion of the gasoline tax receipts now divided equally between the state and the counties.

Jackie Coogan Taken Into Navajo Tribe

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

ALBURQUEQUE, N. M., Aug. 4.—A group of Navajo Indian medicine men, headed by Hoskay Yashi, oldest of the Navajo war chiefs, 106 years of age, today initiated Jackie Coogan, boy movie star, into the tribe of Benay Yulthie, or "Talking Eyes." The ceremony was performed on the platform at the Santa Fe railway station here, before a crowd of several thousand persons, hundreds of whom were dressed in cowboy garb, Spanish don and senorita costumes of 75 years ago in New Mexico.

The Coogan party arrived here this morning for a stop of six hours on its way east on the children's crusade, which will take the young movie star to the Near East with food relief.

American Airmen Set For Hop-off Over Iceland Tomorrow; U. S. Wil Try to Repair Injured Plane

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

CORDOVA, Alaska, Aug. 4.—Major A. Stuart MacLaren, leader of a flight around the world by British soldiers that started at Calshot, England, March 25, announced in a wireless message received here today that the adventure had been abandoned at Nikolski, Komandorski islands, Siberia.

Major MacLaren said that abandonment was necessary because no spares were obtainable to repair damage to the plane used by the expedition. The machine fell near Nikolski Saturday as it was about to complete a flight from Petropavlovsk. The message said:

"Wings, floats and tail smashed and as no spares available necessary abandon flight. Hull and engine salvaged and take aboard by Thiepval. The Thiepval, a trawler in the Canadian fisheries service reached Nikolski Saturday evening.

REYKAJAVIK, Iceland, Aug 4.—The United States army round-the-world air pilots, Lieutenant Smith and Lieutenant Nelson, plan to leave Hornafjord for this place tomorrow morning, if weather conditions permit.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Unless the wrecked airplane of Lieutenant Wade, army flier, can be repaired at Reykpavik, he is definitely out of the world flight, it was said today at the war department.

It was understood that consideration of a plan to send another craft to replace the Boston would not be pursued because that was found to be impracticable. On arrival of the Richmond at Reykjavik, unless Lieutenant Wade's ship is in better condition than reports have indicated, he will be instructed to continue to the United States on the cruiser Richmond, which took him aboard in mid-ocean.

Decision to terminate the army round-the-world flight at Seattle was announced definitely at the war department. The terminating point had been left open pending consideration of claims of other Pacific Coast cities to secure the designation.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug 4.—The wrecked aiplane which had been piloted by Lieutenant Leigh Wade in the American round-the-world flight and which was abandoned early this morning by the cruiser Richmond, is being taken to the Faroe Islands by the trawler Rugby in order to ascertain whether it may be possible to reair it in time to continue the flight, it is understood here.

If it is possible to repair the Boston, despite serious damage to the plane's wings and pontoons, the cruiser Raleigh will bring the machine to Reykjavik, where the repairs will be made and where, if possible, Lieutenant Kade will continue his flight.

Fetes for Fliers Banned on Tour Across America

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The War Department today officially requested that all cities through which the American 'round-the-world fliers will pass en route to Seattle, where the flight will be terminated, refrain from providing formal entertainment for the airmen.

General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the air service, decided to issue the request following receipt of the cable from Lieutenant Smith, commandant of the world flight, just prior to the hop-off in England, in which he expressed the wish that entertainment programs be deferred until the flight is ended.

"It has been determined to have no formal entertainment in Washington, to expedite the departure of the flight from this city and during the time the fliers must remain here, in order to give them an opportunity to rest," the department said.

"It is earnestly hoped that the other places where the flight must stop on its way across the United States will follow this example and omit formal entertainments which might imperil the success of the undertaking now so nearly accomplished."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Loss by fire of an air mail plane and 152 pounds of mail, which left San Francisco yesterday morning, was reported to Postmaster General New. The plane, piloted by Aviator Scott, was over Great Salt Lake when its radiators exploded.

The plane took fire and Pilot Scott succeeded in effecting a landing, but was unable to extinguish the flames or remove the mail, although he endeavored to save both. Scott received slight burns. Postal officials said today this was the first loss of all mail through fire in several years.

U. S. WILL PROBE KILLING IN MEXICO

Murder of S. F. Woman's Kin Moves State Department to Act For Britain.

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

WASHINGTON, Aug 4.—An investigation of the slaying of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, a British subject, in Mexico, will be made by Arthur Schoenfeld, the American charge d'affairs at Mexico City, it was announced at the State Department today.

Schoenfeld was ordered to proceed to the scene of the slaying with an armed guard to make the inquiry.

This action was taken at the request of the British government, which has no diplomatic representative in Mexico following the departure of Charge d'Affairs Cummins, who got into difficulties with the Mexican government in his efforts to aid Mrs. Evans several weeks ago.

Confirmation of Mrs. Evans' death reached the state department shortly before noon from Mexico City. It was stated that her clashes with Mexican authorities resulted from the expropriation of her lands under the Mexican agrarian laws.

Mrs Rosalie Evans, who was killed Saturday when ambushed by bandits near San Martine, Mexico, was a sister of Mrs. Pettus, wife of Col W. C. Pettus, commandant of the United States Marine hospital, San Francisco.

She was a native of Brownsville, Tex, but had lived in San Francisco for many years.

Her sister said Mrs Evans' life had been repeatedly threatened, and that she had appealed to the American embassy and to the Mexican government for protection.

For several weeks before Mrs. Rosalie Evans, British subject, was shot and killed near her Mexican hacienda at San Martin Texmeucan, state of Puebla, she had been forced to live in an embattled state despite assurances from the American Ambassador, Charles Beecher Warren, that she would be protected and that she had nothing to fear, according to a letter received from Mrs. Evans by her sister in San Francisco.

LETTER TELLS OF THREATS BY AGRARIANS.

The letter, written and mailed from San Martin Texmelucan on July 27, said that she had been forced to stay in town because of the fierce threats of the Mexican agrarians, and that George Camp, the Texas World War veteran, who was at the head of her little force of loyal field workers holding the hacienda, had found it necessary to leave on the Thursday before the letter was written. It is believed by Mrs. Pettus that the departure of Camp, who was known to the Mexicans as a sharpshooter, and who was always called "Jack," may have prompted the shooting of Mrs. Evans.

In the letter Mrs. Evans, who was the widow of the former president of the Bank of London in Mexico said that the federal general, Manuel Montes, an enemy of her family, had been placed in charge of the military district in which the hacienda is located. July 15 the water to the ranch was cut off under federal orders, according to the letter, when the water tunnel was confiscated. An appeal to Warren followed and the ambassador replied that she was in no danger, the letter said.

WOMAN'S PLIGHT BECOMES DESPERATE.

Her plight became desperate after H. A. C. Cummings, the British charge D'affaires had been compelled by the Mexican government to withdraw his protection as a result of representations made by Mexico to London. A force of four relatives, led and drilled by Camp, was assembled at the Hacienda, and held the threatening agrarians at bay.

Later, when Camp left, Mrs. Evans, according to the letter, felt that it would be safer in town.

Despite the opposition of her native neighbors and the Mexican government, Mrs. Evans had successfully harvested a big wheat crop, which she had contracted to sell for 65,000 pesos. Cars had been promised her for the transportation of the crop.

7 INDICTED IN MOROSCO STOCK PLAN

Investing Public Defrauded of Over $2,500,000 By Sales of Shares in Holding Company, Is Allegation

Noted Theatrical Producer Is Victimized By Accused to Extend of $5,000,000, Is Charge of U. S. Attorney

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—An indictment charging use of the mails to defraud was returned today by the federal grand jury against seven men accused of having defrauded the investing public of more than $2,500,000 through the sale of stock of the Morosco Holding company, a Delaware corporation organized to exploit the theatrical and motion picture interests of Oliver Morosco. Those indicted were:

George R. Bentel, vice president and general manager of the holding company; Benjamin Levin, organizer of the Morosco Sales Corporation; George H. Pierce, known also as G. Harris Pierce, sales manager; George G Hanson, an associate of Leven; Albert Dew Blum, sales manager; William C. Amos, a former assemblyman, who was said to be the star salesman, and George Derr, sales manager.

According to Assistant United States Attorney McCoy, who presented the matter to the grand jury, Morosco himself was a victim of the alleged fraudulent activities of the men indicted, who, he said, have stripped him of all his properties, valued at about $5,000,000.

MOROSCO STRIPPED OF $5,000,000 IN PROPERTY.

Morosco, according to McCoy, turned over all his property, valued at $5,000,000 to the holding company and received in return the entire issue of stock of the company. There was no treasury stock. Morosco's properties included lease holds on theaters in this city and in California, and all his rights to theatrical productions.

He also turned over his interest in a tract of more than 100 acres in Los Angeles known as "Moroscotown." It was Morosco's intention to make "Moroscotown" a unique pleasure city, its principal features consisting of villages representing places in England, France, Germany and other continental countries. The deal for the development of "Moroscotown" fell through because Morosco failed to obtain title. He had, however, a contract to purchase, McCoy said.

"Mr. Morosco at that time had been divorced from his first wife, who obtained liens against his property for over $300,000," McCoy said. "He made a settlement of $350,000 on her and to secure the payment of this money she took an assignment on his lease of the Morosco theater in this city and on the Morosco theater in Los Angeles.

"Benjamin Levin came on from Chicago to New York and had Mr. Morosco organize the Morosco Holding Cmpany, Inc. Mr. Morosco was made president and William J. Flynn, who was then chief of the department of justice, and J Lawrence Weber, prominent theatrical producers, were among others, made directors. Franklin Underwood, a production manager, was made treasurer.

MOROSCO ATTEMPTED TO STOP FRADULENT SALES.

"In the fall of 1921, George R Bentel, who was associated with Mr. Morosco in the Morosco Productions company, a California motion picture concern, came east, got in touch with Leven, who was in charge of the sales organization of the Morosco Holding Company, Inc., and got up all the propaganda, prospectus and literature used in the sale of the stock.

"The stock to be sold was all personal property of Oliver Morosco. At least $2,500,000 worth of stock was sold on representations that the stock was treasury stock of Morosco Holding Company, Inc, and that the company was possessed of the properties of Mr. Morosco, free and clear of any liens. When Mr. Morosco became aware of the methods employed by Levin and his salesmen, he tried to put a stop to the sale. Subsequently to that Morosco resigned as president.

"Mr. Morosco was succeeded to the presidency of the holding company by August Janssen, proprietor of the Hof Brau house on Broadway. Mr. Janssen's experience cost him $400,000.

"Prior to 1921, Mr. Morosco enjoyed an income of $500,000 a year from his properties. He had accumulated about $5,000,000 as the result of his genius as a theatrical producer. Today he is broke."

Another heavy loser in the venture, according to McCoy, was J. W. McKinney of Titusville, Pa., who lost about $200,000.

GAS TO ROUT P. O. THUGS FROM MINE

Shots Halt Escape; Dynamite To Force Suspects to Surrender.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., Aug 4.—Surrender or death by chlorine gas and dynamite in a mine where they are declared to be hiding today awaits three alleged postoffice robbers beseiged by a sheriff's posse in an old mine near Palisades. The men are suspected of the robbery and safe blowing of the Palisades postoffice early Saturday morning, when $15,508 71 in stamps and cash was taken.

Chlorine gas and dynamite will be hurled into the mine today if the men fail to surrender, Sheriff Pat Watson declared.

It is the belief of the sheriff and possemen that the three men have become lost in the maze of several miles of underground passages. In view of the fact that there is no water in the mine workings, those on guard are confident that the men will be forced to surrender when their suffering becomes acute.

An exploration party that came out of the mine early this morning declared they heard groans coming from one of the abandoned workings within the mine and expressed the belief that they came from a man who yesterday was shot at by Deputy Sheriff Lee Jackson, as he attempted to make his escape from the mine after having approached the surface.

The men bored their way through the brick wall of the postoffice some time Friday night and then removed the postoffice safe. Placing this on a truck they transported it through the main street of the town and to the outskirts, where it was found blown open and its contents missing, early Saturday morning.

MURDER LAID TO CHILDISH, ABSURD PACT

Leopold Is "Paranoid Personality and Unbalanced in Mental Life," Doctor Says; Calls Boys Psychic Twins

Slayers Quoted as Saying They 'Would Do It Again;' Expert Marvels Way Each Supplements Frailities

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Dr. William Healy, Boston psychiatrist, testifying as a defense alienist today at the hearing to determine punishment for Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold Jr. for the kidnaping and murder of Robert Franks, asserted "an incredibly absurd childish compact" bound the boys together and had a bearing on the "ultimate acts of the youths."

Dr. Healy testified both boys had told him they would again go through with the Franks murder if their associations and the conditions were the same. He said Loeb told him he "found nothing to deter him" and that Leopold had said he would commit the crime again "if it gave him pleasure."

DATA WHISPERED TO STENOGRAPHERS.

As to the conditions of the "childish compact" which had influenced the later lives of Leopold and Loeb, nothing was said in open court, Judge John R. Caverly ruling with Dr. Healy that the matter was unprintable and having him recite to the court stenographers for the record.

"Nothing that is unfit for publication is coming out here," Judge Caverly asserted.

"Get back there, you newspaper men," directed Judge Caverly as reporters and photographers pressed forward. "This is not fit for publication and you are not going to get it."

Dr. Healy this afternoon termed Leopold a "paranoid personality" and "thoroughly unbalanced in mental life" but resisted State's Attorney Crowe's effort to have him admit Leopold was "insane."

Dr. Healy was the second alienist to testify for the defense and his testimony went in over state objection, Judge Caverly again ruling that the courts had a right to listen to evidence in mitigation of punishment, as he had ruled Friday when the testimony of Dr. William A. White was permitted, marking a new departure in Illinois jurisprudence.

STUDIES SLAYERS AS TWO CHILDREN.

Dr. Healy said he had made the study of the conduct of children and adolescents his chief work. He said he had studied Leopold and Loeb, their histories, family histories, given them psychological tests and had endeavored to get data on their emotional lives, beginning on July 4, and seeing them a "considerable number of times since, having seen them the equivalent of a number of whole days." A general physical observation of the boys, with special mental tests, observation of their personalities, emotional lines, studies of their correspondence and correspondence to them, interviews with other people concerning their home lives and associates, Dr. Healy said led to his conclusions.

Having laid the ground work for Dr. Healy's expert testimony, Darrow asked him to go ahead with all his conclusions. Crowe insisted the expert give details of the examination and deductions and Judge Caverly instructed that he should do that, referring to his notes and talking without interruption by the state.

EACH SUPPLEMENTED OTHER'S ABNORMALITY.

The association between the two boys began at 15 years old, he said. "It was very clear from a study of the boys separated that each had peculiarities in their mental life, each arrived at peculiarities by different routes and each supplemented the other's al-

Murder Was Like Eating Piece of Pie for Leopold

CRIMINAL COURTROOM, CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Nathan F. Leopold approached the murder of Robert Franks with as few qualms as he approached the idea of whether or not to eat pie for dinner, Dr. William Healy of Boston testified this afternoon at the judicial hearing of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb for the murder of Robert.

"Leopold told me," the alienist stated, "that he approached the subject of the murder in about the same way that he thought of whether he would have pie with his dinner. It was a question only of whether it would give him pleasure."

The murder of Franks, Dr. Healy said, "was caused by Leopold's diseased motivation."

ready abnormal needs in a most unique way.

"As judged by conversation and by correspondence their compact, their quarrels and their deeds all tend to show a most strange and pathological relation. According to the story of each the idea of their coming together for crime purposes began in a very definite way with their planning of extensive cheating at bridge, which, however, they were not very successful at."

Crowe objected to the doctor testifying as to generalities and making a speech and was sustained by the court, who admonished Healy to tell directly "what Loeb said and what Leopold said."

LOEB TURNED THIEF TO CAPTURE THRILLS.

"Concerning Loeb," Dr. Healy declared, "there were any number of minor thefts he committed for the purpose apparently of getting a thrill. In the matter of their association, I have the boys' stories, told separately, about an incredibly, absurd childish compact which bound them and which bears out in Leopold's case particularly the idea of his mental condition.

"Loeb says the association gave him the opportunity of getting some one to carry out his criminalistic imaginations. In the case of Leopold direct cause of the criminalistic acts was this particularly childish compact.

"CHILDISH COMPACT" WHISPERED IN RECORD.

Crowe interrupted with a demand that Dr. Healy specify the "childish compact," and the psychiatrist hesitated before he refused to proceed in open court, and suggested a retirement to the judicial chambers. Over Crowe's persistence, Judge Caverly ruled "nothing unfit for publication will be brought out here," and directed Healy to whisper to the stenographers.

Dr. Healy said the matter secretly discussed had a bearing on the ultimate act of the boys.

He asserted Loeb told him on a number of other occasions he never had found anything which would deter him from "doing it over again," referring to the Franks murder.

LEOPOLD SAYS HE WOULD DO IT AGAIN.

"On the part of Leopold," Dr. Healy continued, "I have a statement from him that, 'well, yes, I would continue in this sort of affair.' However, I think it more from an intellectual standpoint and for his own personal gratification. I see Leopold of high nervous instability, subject to ready blushings, pallors, etc. I see signs in him of great nervous energy. I agree with the Bowman and Hulburst report that he shows evidence of petalody of glands of internal secretion.

"Regarding Leopold's mentality, I find by conclusive evidence he possesses very high general intelligence."

Dr. Healy testified that one test, usually requiring 5 minutes for the most intelligent persons, had been answered perfectly by Leopold in three minutes and 15 seconds, the quickest he ever had heard of it being solved.

ONLY FAILURE WAS IN CUTTING PAPER.

Dr. Healy said Leopold's only failure was in a paper-cutting test.

As Dr. Healy testified as to his high intellect, Leopold blushed and smiled widely, while Loeb, lips parted slightly, sat interested but unsmiling.

Dr. Healy testified that in a word reaction test in which he suggested one word and Leopold mentioned the word that it brought into his mind. Leopold's mind functioned slowly when "chisel" and "trouble" were mentioned. A chisel was the instrument of death in the Franks murder.

REACTS LIKE BOY 12 YEARS OLD.

Leopold scored only 56 out of a possible 100 in a picture cut-out test, just average for a 12-year-old child, said Healy, "very poorly indeed, much to my surprise."

"Throughout the tests Leopold showed himself self-centered and egotistic beyond any normal stage," the witness testified. "He says he is a superman and on the basis of the philosophy of Nietzsche. In jail he feels similar to Napoleon at St. Helena."

"Leopold's main concern seems to be, as he says, whether the reporters say the right things about him"

Dr. Healy touched on the "slave-king" phantasy brought out previously by Dr. White, and on his testimony closely paralleled that of the Washington psychiatrist.

"It is particularly clear that he is enjoying immensely the part he is playing," said the doctor "It is much like a drama, and he thought the best way was to play the whole thing out, whatever the ending.

"My judgment is that there seems to be some steady impairment of his own judgment concerning himself, particularly his relationship to life."

Leopold's day dreaming, or phantasies, made a very important thing, said the witness. He began, so he says, with dwelling on the picture of suffering and causing others to suffer, which would seem to be proof of something going wrong as a child. There was the crucifixion which he dwelt upon.

"These phantasies apparently had an immense influence on his life. They come up again and again and had relationship to his relations to Loeb and to other boys earlier. Leopold imagined the branding of things.

"Three or four years ago Loeb began to be woven into his family life."

At this point court was recessed to 2 p. m.

Dr. Healy said that very early Leopold showed marked signs of "pathological superiority and inferiority."

He said Leopold early displayed an individual trend of mind, asking his nurshe to arouse him at all hourse of the night and of wanting to visit One Hundredth street simply because it had 100 on it.

"I asked him what hardships he had in the world," the witness continued, "and he said he hadn't any, that he was not permitted to have any."

"He thought of himself as a complete individual who might experiment with ideas of right and wrong, of God," said Dr. Healy. "You remember he told authorities conscience was drilled into him until eight years old and then he proceeded to drill it out."

"Following were his expressions:

"'I reveled in the fact I had no ground for conscience.

"'I was trying to kill affection, to break down any feeling I had for my family.'

"He doubted the existence of conscience, of things learned at his mother's knees. He said he could by experiment completely down it.

"He developed the superman idea."

Defense to Quiz 30 On Queer Boyhood Of College Killers

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The lawyers and the scientists that are seeking to save Nathan F. Leopold Jr and Richard A. Loeb from going to the gallows for the sanguinary kidnaping and murder of little Bobby Franks, completed plans today to make the defense of the two dapper collegians a "real defense." The lawyers now plan to put on at least six alienists of national repute to testify to the "mental sickness" of the slayers and then to follow these up with a score of friends and relatives who will further bear out the doctors that the boys have been "queer" from boyhood.

The net result is going to be, according to the authorities, that this murder trial of the century, as it is called, is going to hold down the boards in Judge Caverly's court for several weeks yet.

Odds can be obtained from nearly any court attache or lawyer that "Babe" and "Dicky" will still be in the Cook county jail six months from now. Some put it at a year.

At one time the defense had planned to rest its case entirely upon the testimony of three alienists. Present plans call for probably thirty witnesses.

DONS' THOUSAND VOICE CHORUS TO MEET TONIGHT

Musicians to Be Trained in Groups at Various Points Throughout City.

The first rehearsal of the downtown unit of the chorus of one thousand voices will meet tonight at 1701 Broadway, upstairs, where Miss Z. W. Potter, organizer and director of the chorus, is expecting a contingent of the singers who will participate in the celebration of the Dons of Peralta Saturday night, September 26, in the Oakland Civic Auditorium.

Men singers are wanted and as the time is short, it is requested that those who expect to be a part of the final chorus will respond to the call of the various unit rehearsals.

Tomorrow evening, Tuesday, August 5, Walter Bundy will conduct a unit at his home studio, 396 Oakland avenue, where all in this general locality are requested to report. Alameda is holding its first rehearsl tonight t the Community Center, Centra and Oak streets, under the direction of D. E. Graves. The Berkeley unit meets Tuesday evening, August 5, at the Baptist church hall, Dana and Haste streets, under the direction of Charles B. Welkel.

The songs are said to be easy and few in number and only a few rehearsals will be necessary and those who will jtin are asked to sacrifice but on eevening a week for the next seven weeks in order to make this chorus an unqualified success. One does not have to be a soloist to be a member of this chorus—only able to follow directions and to learn the different parts.

A special request is urged to make the rehearsal tonight a vital one. This unit will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

British Send Envoy To Irish Border Row

By PERCY SARL,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—J. H. Thomas, colonial secretary, will go to Dublin tonight to confer with President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State on the boundary dispute between the Free State and Ulster, it was announced in the House of Commons this afternoon.

The general Irish situation was described as unchanged and observers still believed it was fraught with gravest possibilities for the government of Prime Minister MacDonald.

It is understood that the Soviet government has agreed to pay Great Britain 28,000,000 pounds of the Russian debt which was unofficially estimated at 160,000,000 pounds.

TRAWLER TOWING WORLD GIRDLING PLANE TO FAROES

piloted by Lieutenant Leigh Wade in the American army world flight, was abandoned by the Richmond early this morning. The plane was taken in tow by the Richmond yesterday after Lieutenant Wade and his mechanic, Sergeant Arthur M. Ogden, had been forced down at sea by engine trouble while negotiating the hop from Kirkwall, in the Orkneys to Iceland.

The Richmond's effort to salvage the wrecked plane was abandoned when the machine, which had been gradually filling while being towed in a heavy sea, capsized. Seeing the hopelessness of attempting further to save it, the officers cut it adrift.

WADE DESCRIBES HIS EXPERIENCES.

Lieutenant Wade, on board the Richmond, was chagrined over the fate that had brought his plane to grief and stopped the participation of himself and Sergeant Ogden in the flight when it was so near a conclusion, but he took the disappointment well. Describing his experiences, Lieutenant Wade said:

"It was the first time we had had trouble with the oil pump and our second forced landing in the 19,000 mile flight. The first was on the Japanese coast, when we came down for water.

'On yesterday's flight, when the trouble came, we signalled Lieutenant Smith by waving that we were forced down; also that the engine was out of commission, requesting him to advise the patrol. We expected to remain in the water until the Richmond arrived. We saw a merchant vessel at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, but could not attract its attention. An hour later the trawler which rescued us was sighted. We had to signal her with pistol and rifle before she noticed us."

STARVATION FEARED BY STRANDED AIRMEN.

Lieutenant Wade said he and Ogden were afraid at first to eat the sandwiches and drink the water they had, not knowing how long it would be before they were reached. They were confident all along, however, that they would sight a vessel and eventually reach land, and they kept the plane constantly before the wind. They suffered from the cold and from the tossing of the wrecked craft about by the waves, but did not at any time consider their position critical. Their main anxiety was to save the plane and continue the flight after repairs had been made.

"It was a tough break after the five months' flight," said Wade, "as when the four planes left America the army hoped all would return. But it's all in the game. We did our best."

U. S. SHIPS TO GIVE FOREIGN FLIERS AID.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Admiral Bullard, commanding the United States coast guard, today ordered coast guard ships in Alaskan waters to render all requested assistance to Major MacLaren, British flier, and Major Zanni, Argentine flier, who expect to cross the Pacific via the Aleutian islands.

MacLaren is reported to be at Komandorski islands, midway between the Siberian mainland and Attu island, the westernmost of the Aleutian group.

Fall Eats as 300 Guests of Doheny Wail for Wrongs

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, was one of 300 guests at a dinner party given at Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, by E. L. Doheny, oil magnate, it became known on the mainland today.

There were present a corps of Doheny attorneys and two clergymen, most of whom in the course of after dinner speeches touched briefly, sometimes caustically, on the subject of congress and alleged political prosecutions based on oil leases.

Frank Hogan, one of the lawyers remarked with a smile that "that foresight of a man who on such an occasion as this, a two-hour trip from Los Angeles to Catalina, brings his legal and spiritual advisers with him," might well be a hint to Washington that "his enemies may as well quit. Whether they do or they do not," he added, "we're going to beat them to a frazzle."

But the newspaper men entrusted with the task of reporting the utterances of Fall—they had heard he was to be principal speaker — came back, empty handed. The former secretary ate soup, fish, roast turkey, mashed potatoes, a salad and apple pie, drank coffee, smoked cigarettes and a cigar, chuckled at the witticisms at the Doheny lawyers—and uttered not a word.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—One alleged bandit was wounded, six others were captured and three escaped early today after a twenty-minute gun battle with twelve detectives who frustrated a robbery on the officers of the American Express company. A fortune in currency and merchandise was untouched.

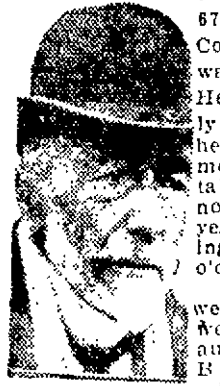
JOSEPH CONRAD, NOTED WRITER OF SEA TALES, DIES

Sudden Death Follows Brief Illness From Asthmatic Troubles.

BISHOPSBOURNE, Eng., Aug. 4—Joseph Conrad, eminent author of sea tales, died at his home here today. He was 67 years old. Conrad's death was most sudden. He was apparently in normal health Saturday morning, but was taken ill about noon and died yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock.



JOSEPH COURAD.

Friends who were spending the week-end at the author's home, Bishopsbourne, said that the novelist Saturday morning complained of having slept badly. After breakfast he wrote until 11 o'clock and then took a motor rire. During the drive he complained that he was not feeling well. When he returned home a doctor was summoned, but the physician apparently did not regard the author's condition as serious.

In the evening Conrad was in much pain, suffering from asthma and breathing with difficulty. The novelist's condition grew worse throughout the night. In the morning, when resting in a chair, he suddenly fell dead. His heart was unable to withstand the strain of the severe asthmatic attack.

Joseph Conrad, one of the foremost English novelists, noted for his sea tales, was born December 6, 1857, of Polish parentage. His early life as a sailor and a sea captain formed the background for his enthralling stories of the South Seas.

Conrad visited America last year in response to repeated invitations of his publishers. Illness at the time compelled him to curtail his stay to about one month. The author had intended coming to America in 1915 but the war interfered. When a boy of 17, he left Poland, and went to sea. He returned to shore life after twenty years. Later he married His plan to return to the sea was abandoned because numerous "Little Schemes" made it necessary for him to keep on writing.

Among Conrad's best known books are "The Nigger of the Narcissus," "Lord Jim," "Victory," "The Mirror of the Sea," and "The Rover."

Firebug Is Blamed For $100,000 Blaze

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug 4. — A spectacular fire which defied the efforts of seven fire companies to control it early today destroyed the lumber yards of the Success Manufacturing Company with a loss estimated at $100,000. The fire is believed by police to have been set by a firebug, as witnesses reported having seen a man run from the yards a few minutes before the blaze was discovered.

The Wilson Cahill plant, in which is stored $100,000 worth of lumber, was endangered by the plant, and firemen finally concentrated their efforts in saving this plant. They succeeded in preventing the spread of the blaze. The heat of the Success yard blaze was so terrific that the firemen could not approach the conflagration close enough to successfully combat it.

Butler Forms Police Infantry Regiment

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—An infantry regiment to be composed of two battalions, one of police and the other of firemen, is being organized by Director of Public Safety Butler. The primary purpose of the Regiment, the director said today, was to instill public interest in the police athletic games by holding parades, but he added that it would also serve as emergency units in case of serious outbreaks. Each battalion will be made up of four companies, 100 men to a company.

FILM STAR'S SUIT ASKING $100,000 STIRS UP SCANDAL

Stage and Screen Celebrities Involved in Charges and Counter-Charges.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—Depositions naming numerous prominent stage and screen celebrities and involving a network of charges and counter-charges relative to the character and conduct of Ann Luther, motion picture actress, and J. F. White, wealthy mining man and film producer, were expected to figure prominently in the $100,000 damage suit brought by Miss Luther against White on today's docket in superior court here.

The plaintiff, who is the wife of Ed Gallagher of the vaudeville team of Gallagher and Shean, is suing White on the ground that he failed to keep an agreement to star her in four motion pictures. White, in his answer and cross complaint, has alleged that Miss Luther misrepresented her character to him.

TOOTH DECAY
Every Day---

Tooth decay is usually caused by the food particles which lodge on and between the teeth incubating certain acid producing bacteria. The acid thrown off corrodes the hard tooth enamel and makes a tiny abrasion which grows bigger and deeper as the bacteria colony increases; thus a cavity is formed. If you can keep these bacteria from forming you can probably prevent tooth decay.

Myrrohl dissolves and washes out the greasy food particles adhering to the teeth before they have a chance to breed these acid producing bacteria. At the same time, its THREE ACTIVE HEALING AGENTS—gum myrrh, red gum and zinc chloride—all of recognized medicinal value—harden and heal the gums and war against harmful germs.

TWO MEN KILLED AND 20 INJURED BY AUTOMOBILES

Several Accused of Intoxication and Arrested After Crashes Occur.

Two men are dead, two seriously injured and eighteen others are recovering from less serious injuries as the result of automobile accidents in the San Francisco bay region over the week-end.

J. W., Johnson, gunner's mate, first class, and W. Van Luben, seaman, first class, are dead and B. F. Bates, fireman, third class, is severely injured as a result of a collision between the motorcycle and sidecar in which the three men were riding and an automobile. The accident occurred last night on the Napa highway, eight miles north of Vallejo.

Eugene Worthington, 16, was slightly injured yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by L. W. Phelps, 4324 Montgomery street, at Laguna and Hopkins streets.

Frank Kendall and Channing Kennery, both of 1416 Twenty-third avenue, were arrested for intoxication yesterday after they had told police that they had been injured in an automobile accident near Pleasanton and had been taken to the Oakland emergency hospital by a passing motorist.

Fred Hill, a contractor of 5931 Vallejo street, suffered a fractured right leg last night when he was run down by an automobile driven by W. A. Ray, 600 Seventeenth street, at Fifty-fifth street and San Pablo avenue.

J. L. Maysounave, 1351 Thirty-fourth avenue, suffered several cuts and bruises last night when the automobile in which he was riding, driven by P. Deauclaire of the same address, collided with a telephone pole at Ninth and Peralta streets.

Tony Souza, 418 Twenty-ninth avenue, was picked up from the street at Twenty-third avenue and East Seventh street last night by a passing motorist and taken to the Emergency hospital.

In San Francisco six persons were cut and bruised in a shower of flying glass and splinters when the Grand-Turpin hotel bus collided with a taxicab driven by W. J. King, 4226 Twentieth street. King was arrested for reckless driving.

The six injured persons are: George Guittard, 3517 Sacramento street, the driver of the bus; Joseph Moskowitz, Los Angeles; Carl Wertheim, Los Angeles; L. B. Mason, New Orleans; Mrs. Georgia Akhuler, New Orleans, and Miss Virginia Akhuler, New Orleans.

Policeman Fred C. Kracke of the Park sub-station suffered severe injuries when his automobile was hit by a Masonic avenue street car at Eighth avenue and Judah street, San Francisco, as Kracke was speeding to a fire.

Grat Esquerre, 52, of Los Angeles, suffered a fractured skull and leg and internal injuries, and is in an unconscious condition at the French hospital in San Francisco, today as a result of being run down by a taxi cab at Geary and Lyons streets last night. Phillip Sheehan was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

John Negri, 1510A Franklin street, San Francisco, was arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated, and his companion, Cam Oriz, 1326 Stockton street, on a charge of drunkenness, as a result of a collision between Negri's automobile and a parked machine belonging to Policeman Henry Zaun. The accident occurred at Geary street and Parker avenue.

Edward Fennessy, 491 Jersey street, was arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated, following a double collision between his automobile and a Municipal street car and an automobile driven by Charles Mitchell, 353 Russ building, at Geary and Powell streets, San Francisco, yesterday morning.

Victor Ricioli, a Harmony, San Luis Obispo county rancher, died on a train yesterday as he was being taken to a San Francisco hospital for an operation to cure the injuries received several days ago in an automobile accident near Harmony.

During July there were 119 arrests for traffic violations in Alameda, according to police records. Court receipts in Hayward amounted to $1085, the largest amount ever collected for motor violations in one month in that city, according to Judge Jacob Harder. In San Leandro, Judge W. J. Gannon reported a total collection of $640 for motor law violations.

Stephen G. Starr, colored, 975 Grace street, Oakland, was arrested after a long chase by Traffic Officer Frank Davis last night, and is being held in the Albany jail in default of $500 bonds on a charge of failing to render aid after an accident.

Starr, according to the police, ran down William Sharkey, 72, 1215 Main street, Albany, as the latter was boarding a street car at the county line and San Pablo avenue.

Racing with a "cut-down" at 35 miles an hour, according to his own admission to the police, Edward Carter, 19, 2401 Blake street, Berkeley, lost control of his automobile last night, and it skidded and crashed through a brick wall of a service station at Rose and Grove streets.

J. B. Ure, 846 San Mateo road, Berkeley, was treated at the Berkeley General hospital last night for cuts and bruises suffered in an automobile collision between his automobile and one driven by A. C. Norton, 1520 Tacoma avenue.

Mrs. F. G. Borschow, 1908 Woolsey street, Berkeley was struck by an automobile driven by Ray B. Cox, 1519 Julia street, Berkeley, at Adeline and Grove streets, last night, just after she had alighted from a street car.

TALKS AND MUSIC WILL ENTERTAIN BY KLX TONIGHT

Noted Lecturers, Singer and Instrumentalists on The Tribune Program

A program of talks and music will be broadcast from Stephens Union hall, on the University of California campus, this evening between 8 and 9 o'clock, through Radio KLX, and will be followed with a program of instrumental and vocal numbers from the American Theater and the KLX studio.

Speakers for tonight at Stephens Union hall will be:

Dr. Knight Dunlap, professor of experimental psychology at Johns Hopkins University, Ph. D. Harvard, and former instructor in psychology at the University of California, will talke on the subject, "Intelligence Tests," in which he will bring out the practical basis and uses of intelligence testing, and also the limitations and dangers of the work, warning against the reckless extensions which are currently made and the extravagant claims.

Professor F. V. Simonton, associate professor of operative dentistry, University of California School of Dentistry, will tell the radio audience something about the care of the teeth.

Laurel L. Harford, lecturer and former member of the University of California summer session faculty, will talk on psychology.

Between speakers Nadine Shepard will render selections on the piano. At about 9 o'clock the controls of KLX will be transferred to the American Theater for the overture by the American Theater orchestra, Owen Sweeten directing. Following the overture, Wendell Hall, the red-headed singer of the National Carbon Company, whose songs are familiar to thousands, not only because he has sung from many radio stations, but because of the many graphophone records he has made, will accompany himself on the mandolin and will be accompanied at the piano in classical selections by Nadine Shepard.

Following the Wendall Hall program the controls of KLX will again go to the American Theater for incidental music by the orchestra and for the organ recital by Clement Barker.

"NATIVE SON" EXPRESSES GRATITUDE TO KARNAK

M. Andre's New Medicine Is Different From Anything He Ever Used, Says Geo. P. Brady. Wants Everyone To Know About It.

"There's no doubt about it, Karnak is as much different from any other medicine I ever used as daylight is from dark and I am more than glad to tell the people of California how wonderfully it has helped me," said Mr. Geo. P. Brady as he came into the Owl Drug Store yesterday to purchase another bottle of M. Andre's famous new medicine.

Mr. Brady is one of California's "native sons," having lived in Los Angeles for the past fifty-two years, and what he has to say about Karnak will be received with the keenest interest and utmost confidence by the public generally. He now resides at 3016 South Western avenue.

"For the past three years I have taken all kinds of medicines," continued Mr. Brady, "but until I got Karnak they were all alike so far as helping me any was concerned. My troubles started with a severe attack of the flu, and ever since, it was just one day of suffering after another. My stomach was in such a sour, gaseous condition I had to force down every bite I ate, and then I would suffer such terrible stomach cramps and pains and feel so miserable it was almost unbearable. I couldn't get a restful night's sleep on account of my condition, and I lost weight and strength until I could hardly get around.

"What I read about this new medicine, Karnak, gave me confidence enough in it to try it, and it has proved to be just what I needed. I am beginning my second bottle now, and it is bringing my appetite and digestion around so rapidly that I am already feeling like a different person. Instead of my food turning to gas in my stomach, it is giving me nourishment now, and I can feel my strength returning every day. I feel so grateful for what Karnak has done for me I can't help telling others about this remarkable new medicine so that they may get rid of their troubles, too."

In commenting on Mr. Brady's remarkable statement, Mr. Rowe St. Clair, special Karnak representative, said:

"The facts in Mr. Brady's case are only typical of Karnak's instant success in troubles of this kind, everywhere it has been introduced. It contains certain elements which, through their benign influence on the organs of digestion, assimilation and purification, set the stomach right and assist in building up and strengthening the whole system. Many people who had suffered from troubles for years without finding relief express amazement that a few bottles of Karnak restores them. It is because M. Andre has set a new standard in restorative medicine and achieved a preparation that is totally different from anything else ever before done for such sufferers."

Mr. St. Clair said that other statements from prominent local people will soon be given the public.

LA FOLLETTE TO DELAY CAMPAIGN TO SAVE HEALTH

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Senator La Follette and his advisers are still undecided as to when they begin active campaigning. Indications, however, are that little will be done for a month at least, and that the time, meanwhile, will be devoted mainly to routine organization work.

Advisability of Senator La Follette making his initial campaign speech on Labor Day in some industrial center is being considered, it was said today, but some of his friends have advised him to wait until mid-September and then to launch a drive for votes that would be carried on intensively until election day.

Those who hold this view believe that six weeks of whirlwind campaigning would bring the appeal for support for the La Follette-Wheeler ticket to a peak just before election, while if too much speechmaking is made prior to that time there might be a last minute let-down. They favor a late start also to enable La Follette, who recently has been ill, to conserve his strength.

Coolidge Busy on Keynote Talk and Sugar Tariff Row

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—President Coolidge faces a busy 10 days before he delivers his campaign keynote speech at the formal notification ceremonies here August 14, with some knotty government problems vieing with politics on his calendar. The reports of the tariff commission on the sugar tariff, in which opposite views are set forth and over which considerable controversy has waged for more than a year, are on his desk. He expects also to make an early selection of an Ambassador to Mexico to succeed Charles B. Warren, who retires today.

Meanwhile Coolidge plans to conclude his speech of acceptance early this week and go over it with Warren, who was chairman of the national convention resolutions committee, and with Chairman Butler of the national committee, who expects to come here about the middle of the week. Warren has been a guest at the White House for several days.

The sugar reports are quite voluminous, three members of the commission recommending a reduction in the sugar rates, it is understood, while two oppose any change. The president has let it be known he will carefully study the reports and may resubmit them to the treasury department for analysis before he acts.

Labor Backs La Follette, Lauds Platform Pledges

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 4.—Politics today claimed again the right of way on the schedule of the American Federation of Labor's executive council, in annual session here since last Friday.

Having endorsed the La Follette-Wheeler candidacies and platform, the council wil sidetrack all other matters and undertake to make up its entire 1924 campaign program, national, state and local.

Consideration of the National Defense Day, which unexpectedly was listed on the order of business after the council sessions began and since has been deferred from day to day, was postponed once more.

A part of this morning's conference was devoted to summarizing the reaction to the La Follette-Wheeler endorsement as expressed in the hundreds of telegrams that have streamed into the A. F. of L. headquarters since the endorsement was made public.

Every state was asserted by a member of the council to have been represented in the deluge of telegrams, most of which were declared to have been highly congratulatory. The messages came, it was reported, from leaders of unions which are members of the A. F. of L.; from non-members, from friends of labor and from personal enthusiasts.

PREDICTS VICTORY.

"La Follette and Wheeler will win hands down," predicted Frank Morrison, secretary of the A. F. of L.

Other members of the council were asserting that in addition to states already pledged to the La Follette-Wheeler combination they would carry Illinois and Indiana.

Thus far the executive council endorsement has been confined strictly to La Follette and Wheeler and their platform with the emphatic declaration that it was not to be construed as an endorsement of any third party.

The adopted report of the A. F. of L. National Non-Partisan Political campaign set forth that it had turned to the platform of the Cleveland Conference for Progressive Political Action because the Republican and Democratic parties had turned deaf ears and blind eyes upon labor delegations who appeared before their respective platform committees.

RAPS OLD PARTIES.

"The Democratic convention has been evasive," the Republican convention arrogant," and both "had flaunted the desires of labor. Besides, in the language of the report, "both parties are in a condition of moral bankruptcy. Machine politicians have brought upon our country moral obliquity and unashamed betrayal."

It is set forth that the Cleveland conference of independents wrote into its platform, at the behest of labor, eight pledges, including the most desirable of the A. F. of L. pet projects. And the candidates the independents nominated, La Follette and Wheeler, "have throughout their whole political careers, stood steadfastly in defense of the rights and interests of wage earners and farmers."

The document endorsing La Follette for president and Wheeler for vice-president is a denunciation of the Republican and Democratic platforms. Coolidge and Dawes, Davis and Bryan, are dismissed as "unacceptable to labor."

"Thus," in the language of the text, "there remains the candidacy of Robert M. La Follette and Burton K. Wheeler, the first an independent Republican, the second an independent Democrat, running as such."

DIFFER ON LEAGUE.

"Those candidates have proffered a platform in which the economic issues of the day are met in a manner more nearly conforming to labor's proposals than any other," although it does not conform to the A. F. of L. proposals on international issues, specifically the league of nations.

"It pledges the right to organize and collectively to cease work.

"It pledges protection of the rights of free speech, free press and free assemblage.

"It pledges abolishment of the railroad labor board.

"It pledges a measure to annul the power of the supreme court to declare laws permanently unconstitutional.

"It recommends prompt ratification by the states of the child labor constitutional amendment.

"La Follette and Wheeler have throughout their whole political careers, stood steadfast in defense of the rights and interests of the wage earners and the farmers.

"NOBLE CAUSE."

"Service to the people is a noble cause which demands consecration and the American labor movement demands that there be that consecration in candidates to whom it gives support.

"Our course is clear. In pointing to the platform and records of the independent candidates, we do so with the confidence that no other course can be pursued, if we are to remain true to our convictions and our traditions. Those who are hostile to labor and to the people generally and who devoted their energies to the service of reaction and special interests must be opposed.

"We call upon the wage earners and the great masses of the people everywhere who stand for freedom, justice, democracy, and human progress, to rally in this campaign to the end that the representatives of reaction and special interests may be defeated and the faithful friends and servants of the masses elected.

NON-PARTY PLEDGE.

"Co-operation hereby urged is not a pledge of identification with an independent party movement or a third party, nor can it be construed as support for such a party, group or movement except as such action accords with our non-partisan political policy. We do not accept government as the solution of the problems of life. Major problems of life and labor must be dealt with by voluntary groups and organizations, of which trade unions are an essential and integral part. Neither can this co-operation imply our support, acceptance or endorsement of policies or principles advocated by minority groups or organizations that may see fit to support the candidacies of Senators La Follette and Wheeler.

Organized labor owes allegiance to no political party or group. It is not partisan to any political party or group. It is partisan to principles—the principles of freedom, of justice, of democracy."

The complete report was adopted exactly as it was presented to the executive council by the national non-partisan political campaign committee of the American Federation of Labor.

HERE'S REPORT.

This section of the report follows:

"To the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor:

"The executive council at its last meeting, instructed the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor national non-partisan political campaign committee, and as many other members of the executive council as could find it convenient to attend the national democratic and republican conventions, and that the executive committee present the demands of labor to both conventions.

"These instructions were carried out and we present the following report:

"The policy of the American Federation of Labor's active and positive participation in politics was inaugurated in 1906. This non-partisan political policy was intended to secure the election of those in favor of the just and the humanitarian aims and purposes of the labor movement and the defeat of those who had demonstrated their hostility to the cause of labor.

POLICY APPROVED.

"Adherence to this non-partisan policy has resulted in a splendid record of legislative achievements. Reference to our 1906 bill of grievances compared with legislative enactment since testified to the progress and success resulting from labor's non-partisan political policy and by direction of the conventions of the American Federation of Labor, the executive council and the non-partisan political campaign committee of the American Federation of Labor prepared a series of legislative and constitutional proposals for submission to both major political parties for favorable consideration and incorporation into their political platform.

"These proposals were:

"To promote highest material progress which is the basis for national effectiveness as well as an agency for national service, we urge that industry and commerce be freed from legislative prohibitions that restrict development in conformity to economic requirements. To this end we propose the repeal of anti-trust legislation and the enactment of legislation that will provide regulation in public interest and legalize economic organization as well as the constructive activities of trade associations.

TO BAR INJUNCTIONS.

"It is unescapable that an integral part of legislation establishing this economic policy is full recognition of the right of workers to assist themselves in unions for their protection and advancement both as workers and citizens and collectively to carry on the legitimate functions of trade unions. Perusal of the injunctive process to apply to personal relations in industrial disputes must be prohibited and equity procedure returned to its beneficient service in protection of property.

"It is essential for the conservation of national virility that child life be protected. We therefore urge the ratification by the states of the joint resolution passed by the congress to amend the constitution empowering the congress to enact such legislation as will safeguard the future child life of our republic.

"Because the labor clauses of the transportation act of 1920 have proved ineffective, we ask their repeal and the enactment of legislation that will afford opportunity for the voluntary organizations of management and employes to deal with problems of industrial relations.

"We demand the enactment of legislation providing that products of convict labor shipped from one state into another shall be subject to the laws of the latter state exactly as though they had been produced therein.

"In order to mitigate unemployment attending business depressions, we urge the enactment of legislation authorizing that construction and repair of public works be initiated in periods of acute unemployment.

FAVOR REHABILITATION.

"In appreciation we urge adequate provision for the full rehabilitation of all injured in the service during the world war.

"We urge proper recognition of the work of those in the civilian service of the government with adequate compensation based upon equitable classification.

"We favor the enactment of more comprehensive compensation laws to provide for all workers not covered by state compensation acts. We demand compensation acts. We demand more liberal provisions for those incapacitated by industrial accidents or occupational diseases.

"We maintain that the Volstead act is contrary to the desire of the majority of our citizens as well as the spirit of the Eighteenth amendment, and we demand that it be modified to permit the manufacture and sale of beer containing not more than 2.75 per cent alcohol.

"We declare for the maintenance of freedom of speech, press, assemblage and association.

"We oppose conscription except as a military measure for defensive war and oppose all proposals to initiate compulsory labor under whatever guise.

"We advocate a constitutional amendment enabling congress to re-enact by two-thirds vote any measure declared unconstitutional by the supreme court of the United States.

"Labor favors graduated income and inheritance taxes and opposes the sales tax as well as all other attempts to place excessive burdens on those least able to pay.

"We demand that our nation identify itself with international agencies and conferences to promote world peace. We urge membership in the league of nations and participation in the world court."

C. C. POSTPONES SCHEDULED TRIPS

Whether the Oakland Chamber of Commerce will make the scheduled "get-acquainted" excursion outlined earlier in the year and postponed because of the foot and mouth disease, was to be decided at a meeting of the "get-ahquainted" committee in the Hotel Oakland today.

A program of four trips was outlined but at the request of government officials the one-day excursion to Contra Costa county and the trip to Eureka over the Redwood highway was postponed.

The cocmittee has also been invited to visit the San Joaquin county fair at Stockton on August 20, and it is possible that a delegation will attend from Oakland, it was said.

Cod Liver Oil Now In Tasteless Tablets

Greatest Flesh Builder

No more will weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy-tasting, horrible-smelling cod liver oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's real, genuine cod liver oil in sugar coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down and skinny grown-ups, who ought to take cod liver oil, because it really is the greatest vitamine food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver oil in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easy as a bottle of magnesia.

Thin, run-down, anaemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, and if you don't gain 5 pounds in 30 days just get your money back.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor—another ten pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child, aged nine, twelve pounds in seven months, and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets. Owl Drug Co., or any good druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only 60 cents for 60 tablets.

A Public Acknowledgment

Successful Transportation Service is a partnership between the public and the operating company, for the benefit of both.

In trying to do our part we have been greatly helped by the many constructive letters received in response to our advertising, by the engineers, Mr. Sachse and Mr. Butler, who are now engaged in a comprehensive Transportation Survey of the East Bay communities.

We acknowledge gratefully the valuable suggestions received, as well as the fine spirit of co-operation shown by the writers and by the public generally.

Our three new Motor Coach services, soon to be put into operation in the East Oakland district, are the first fruits of this co-operative enterprise.

Despite the fact that we are facing an estimated operating loss of $35,000 annually, we are relying upon public patronage—the only possible source of revenue—to make this service a permanent and profitable part of "the Best Transportation Service in America".

The gain to the community will be far greater than any possible gain to us.

TODAY'S SHORT STORY

Ad Schuster

A LOT AT STAKE.

WHEN John Corwin moved into his new home it struck him for the first time that those relatives who had told him that he was selfish to build the place just for himself were right. A woman would appreciate the beauty and convenience of this house that he had been so long in planning. Yet it was to escape women that he had moved away from the old home

As much as he loved his mother, sisters and cousins John Corwin judged women by their pattern. They were all so helpless and dependent, so overlorded by husbands that, as soon as occasion presented, he usually escaped. At home one or another of the sisters was always a guest, the house full of chatter, and he forever being sought for advice

"I guess I'm a crabbed old bachelor," Corwin reflected, "but it does seem a woman ought to be able to buy a railroad ticket without asking a man's help. Wonder what kind of neighbors I'll have here and who will be the first to call"

A knock on the back door promised an answer. John answered to face a grim and determined woman who wasted no time in introductions.

"I am Amanda Lister," she said. John could see she was angry. "I wonder if you know you have built your house one foot over the line and on my property."

By this Amanda Lister seemed to be daring him to reply. Noticing that her hair was auburn and her cheeks pink John decided she would be pretty if she smiled.

"This," he said, "is a funny time to tell me about it, now that the house is finished."

"I know, I know, but I've been out of town and I can't see that my absence gives you any right to encroach. You'll have to move the house at once"

John Corwin looked at his watch. "Perhaps," he smiled, "we had better wait until morning. You see, it's a bit heavy and. . .

"But Amanda Lister had departed.

The next day John ordered a new survey; and on the day following received a formal request from his neighbor that the house be moved. He groaned, seized his hat and paid a call.

"Now, you know as well as I do," he made an unpromising start, "I can't move a house without damaging it and entailing huge expense. The thing for you to do is sell me a foot from your lot Then everything will be all right."

"You're rather late with the suggestion," Amanda resented his assumption. "That though struck me long ago and I waited in vain for you to mention it. I don't know as I should care to sell any of my land for it is none too wide as it is"

When John returned to his home he realized for the first time that this Amanda Lister was a woman of a type he had never known She did not accept any of his suggestions and asked for none of his advice. Indeed, she was carrying her own ideas and will so far as to try to make him ruin his house. Well, he would take the matter to the courts and see if she could make him give in.

"I'll beat her yet," he said. "But it will be a fight."

In the days that followed there were many conferences John made a formal offer to buy the land and Amanda differed as to the price. Again, when John went back to say he would meet her figure, she announced that realty values were going up and that it would cost him more.

"Gosh, what a woman!" said John, "and yet blamed if I don't like one who knows how to take care of herself."

One day John Corwin paced off his lot and measured that of his neighbor. He spent so much time at the task and seemed so intent upon it that at last he was rewarded. Amanda's curiosity brought her out with a question

"I was just figuring it out," John said, "how this place would look all inside one fence."

"You want to buy my whole lot?"

"I want to end the war between neighbors. I want to surrender, Amanda, to offer you my heart and hand and house."

For once in her life Amanda was speechless and stumped. "You're proposing," she said at last, "asking me to marry you for one foot of ground. Well, I never!"

"Amanda," John said taking her hand, "we're neither half as bad as we pretend. We've kept up this argument for fun, now haven't we, and because there hasn't been much in life to interest us? I don't want your foot of ground, I want you."

Then came the smile which made Amanda beautiful. "I think," she said, "this will end all arguments."

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

THE PROJECT.

I HURRIED down to the kitchen, going with extra care past my mother-in-law's room. She was asleep, and I devoutly hoped that nothing would awaken her until we had finished arranging the bizarre expedition with which Lillian hoped to mislead the detective who had been sent to trail the four orphaned children of William and Elizabeth Harrison.

The smell of savory cooking filled the kitchen, and Katie was bustling about in the preparation of a dinner which in her opinion, a most critical one, would do justice to the departure of the Braithwaites and their orphaned charges. Jim was helping her, and both turned expectant, interested face to me when I entered. That my emphatic caution concerning giving out any information as to our movements, even to the Ticers, had excited their curiosity and their imagination was plain, but even voluble Katie put no question to me.

"I'm sorry to interrupt your work, Katie," I said "but will you please go across the road and bring Mamie back with you if you can? If not find out the earliest minute she can come over."

Katie tossed her head, her usual declaration of independence.

"I no need dot Mamie," she said importantly. "She goot enough to clean rooms"—this with infinite condescension—"but in kitchen she two, t'ree boonches of soop green."

"We do not want her to help you Katie," I explained with more patience than I felt. "Mrs. Underwood wishes something of her."

"Oh-h." My little maid's eyes were rounder than ever as she hastily untied her apron and threw a coat over her head and shoulders. "I go me dees meenite. Jeem, eff you let dot cauliflower burn, I put kettle und burned stuff oppside down on your head."

She accompanied the threat with a giggle as she hurried out of the door. Jim looked sheepishly askance at me.

"Katie doesn't mean—" he began.

"Don't think you have to apologize for Katie to me, Jim." I laughed. "We have been together too many years for me to misunderstand her."

"Yes, that's so." Jim observed relievedly, and went on with his stirring of some concoction which his wife evidently had delegated to him, while I smiled to myself, as I often had done before, at the curious yet happy combination which stolid sober Jim and voluble, erratic Katie make. It was but a few minutes before Katie returned with Mamie in tow. But there was neither curiosity nor excitement in Mamie's eyes. Whether her demeanor was due to stolidity, or a determination to betray nothing of her thoughts to strangers. I did not know, nor did I bother to conjecture, but beckoning her to follow me led the way to Lillian's room. Ushering her in, I turned to leave, but an imperative gesture from my friend stopped me and I waited, glad of the opportunity to observe the girl whose spirit and intelligence I had admired upon the occasion of her mother's arrest for distilling whisky.

"Mamie," Lillian went directly to the point, "would you like to go to New York tonight?"

The girl's face paled a bit, but she answered promptly "yes." Then her native cunning asserted itself, and she shot three questions at Lillian.

"Alone? On the train? Why?"

Lillian smiled.

"No, not alone, with me," she said. "And you will go on the train. The reason I am not going to tell you, but it is a good one. Sit down and listen carefully to what I have to say."

The girl sank obediently into a chair, with her eyes fixed on Lillian's.

"I wish to take you and your three brothers, the two older ones, and the five-year-old, to New York with me tonight on the train," Lillian said slowly. "You will stay at the hotel with me tonight. I will show you some of the sights of the city tomorrow morning and you will come home on the afternoon train safe and sound to your mother. We will buy the children new outfits of clothing from head to foot which they may keep, and we will pay your mother ten dollars if she will let you all go. But the reason why you will not know. It concerns only ourselves, and cannot possibly do any harm to anyone. There is only one thing. None of you must say until after you are home again a single thing about the journey, or even that the children are not at home. After you come home, you may tell anybody you please all about it. Will you do it?"

COURAGE FOR THE ORDEAL OF THE SHADOWS

MOTHERHOOD AND THE DIVIDENDS IT PAYS

DESIRABILITY OF TRANSMISSION OF FORTITUDE

Gertriblone Club Notice.

The Gertrude Club will give a dance Tuesday evening, August 5, in the field house, Park boulevard and Newton avenue, at 8 o'clock. Members of the club, please bring your friends.

We are going to have a literary evening for any of the club members who are interested. This will be on Thursday evening, August 7, in the field house, at 8 o'clock.

Further arrangements for social evenings of the club will be published later.

MRS. MAE OLSON,
Secretary and Treasurer
Gertriblone Club.

A poor little youngster who had listened to old wives' tales told us how she feared to become a mother. She loved babies but she was afraid.

I told her that we all fear the unknown and that many women go "within the shadow" to achieve motherhood. Nature treats some women kindly, but others pay a heavy price for their heart's desire. Science is helping more and more as the years pass, but right now nature is not always generous in withholding pain.

The following woman answers B. E. G. She says: "The wonderful, glorious, lightest place in all the world, the time, the place where we women await motherhood."

I agree with her about the wondrousness, but because motherhood has only given her a "bit of pain" she should not say that it does that for all. Better tell B. E. G. that babies are worth the "price." If she is willing to "pay" she can steel herself and accept the gift that life offers.

I'd rather be told the TRUTH and meet what comes prepared than to have facts glossed over and feel I'd been "protected."

Jerry:

Why, oh, why did you call it a dark place in last night's paper! The wonderful, glorious, lightest place in all the world, the time, the place we women await motherhood. I think it is because you haven't been there, Jerry.

I'd love to let you see deep in my heart and read the joy, the exquisite happiness there, so that you might tell these poor little girls that their fears are oh, so groundless. Oh! what they are missing, these little misinformed wives, and the desolation ahead of them! Pain! of course, there is a bit of pain. I've suffered in a dentist's chair worse agonies and gone to a matinee and had a glorious time after!

I've been given the privilege of being a mother twice before, and now in the evening of life the wonderful thing is to be again and I'm not afraid, Jerry. There is nothing to be afraid of. We have wonderful doctors today and anyway, don't you remember the time your mother took you by the hand and showed you how foolish a little girl you were to be afraid of something that was not what you thought it was at all?

Jerry, take these little girls by the hand and show them that it is not dark before or after or at any time in motherhood. With the hand of your man held closely, you will find it's so silly to have been afraid. Why, I'm as near heaven right now as I ever hope to be, unless it's when they place "him" in my arms. My baby!

I'm not a foolish "new" mother, Jerry. I have a big sixteen-year-old son, whom I call Pal, and there's a spoiled little sister of eleven too, and we are all just holding our breath for him to come.

It's very early in the morning, Jerry. Man of mine has just started out to do his part. I could not do mine till I'd told you how mistaken it is to call this wonderful place dark, and now, my dear, I'll thank you for many interesting hours that I've spent with your letters (I don't always agree with you), but you're very sincere in your work and you can do so very much good, Jerry. Keep it up.

Put this in the waste basket. I didn't come to cry on your shoulder—just to smile.

Yours truly,
Lola Andrews.

I rejoice with you, Proud Mother, in your family and the love you are giving them. There are many for whom "the pain is slight," but I'd rather have B. E. G. say "I'll take a chance and pass on courage to my child." In overcoming her fear, she will fit herself to meet life.

THE RADIO.

Bob has a radio set. Because he made a great effort and actually passed the mid-term tests, the family clubbed together and bought him an extraordinary one that has ears and a voice that neither slumber nor sleep. Nor, if Bob had his way, would anyone else. Which is this story.

For the first day or so the house was filled with agonizing howls and shrieks and coughs and whistles. "Static" said Bob professionally, turning another knob and bringing a howl from the bowels of the earth. "Must be another powerful set in the neighborhood," said the performer in high satisfaction. "Wonder who has it?"

He scanned the newspapers and cut out the radio programs and skipped from one to the other without the slightest consideration for the performers. The bed-time story man was cut short in the middle of a word and the impassioned voice that proclaimed the redemption of the world through the new psychology was choked off in a thrilling sentence which, had it been finished would have shown us all how to suucceed on the strength of a word—the right word of course. But as we never heard the end of the sentence we never heard that word.

"But why don't you listen to something when you get it?" asked mother who was becoming a bit bothered. "Why do you shift about like that?"

"I'm looking for distance," said Bob, his head bent over the knobs once more.

"Well, it's bed time now. Better put that up now and get ready. You can't afford to miss any sleep this week. Examinations are coming."

"Aw Mom. If I go to bed now I can't hear the Scarpy orchestra and that's the best thing on the program. What's the good of having a radio if you can't hear anything?"

"I've heard plentty," said mother, a hint of grimness edging her usually pleasant tones. "It's bed time and you are going to bed—program or no program."

Protesting bitterly Bob went to bed, and the next night was as the night before, and so were all that followed. "Why not let him stay up tonight until he quits of his own accord?" asked father. "It is Saturday. See if we can't give him enough and perhaps he will be willing to go to bed on time hereafter."

So that night Bob sat with his ear phones strapped on, long after the family had retired for the night. At half-past two, his mother, in mercy, slipped into his room where he lay fast asleep in his bed, the light shining full on his face, his ear phones still in place, she took off the harness and put out the light.

The next night at bedtime he said, "Aw, can't I sit up and try to get Chicago?"

"It is seldom I make a law," said mother in tones of power. "But I have made this one. You turn off the radio at bedtime or I do."

Reluctantly Bob goes to bed. The law is the law. But isn't it too bad that the night is the time for radio?

BABIES AND SWEETENED CONDENSED MILK.

"Sweetened condensed milk is costing the lives of hundreds of infants every year who if fed upon a properly diluted cow's milk formula might be healthy and thriving. The one fat thriving baby on sweetened evaporated milk is offset by dozens of babies who lose weight rapidly from the water loss incident to severe diarrhea. The sweetened condensed milk can is so convenient, the contents so alluringly simple of preparation, nothing needed but the addition of water before giving to the baby, the directions so much more easily read from a can than remembered from the doctor's conversation. The only excuse for ever using sweetened condensed milk is the absolute [illegible] to secure any other kind of milk. For traveling and for use in places where clean, fresh milk cannot be obtained or where milk, for climatic conditions cannot be easily kept, dried milk is the most serviceable substitute for fresh milk," William Palmer Lucas, M. D., in "Children's Diseases for Nurses," 1924.

You see, the trouble is that so much sweetening has been put in to preserve the milk that, in order not to cause diarrhea and drying up of the body by too much sugar content, the milk has to be diluted until the proportion of mineral matter and protein (building material) is so low that the baby's bones and muscles do not grow properly. The extra sugar may be tucked away as fat and the tissues puffed up with water but the baby is not a healthy baby. It cannot resist diseases as it should and has not the strength it should and is usually subject to rickets. The death toll of those fed exclusively on sweetened condensed milk is appalling.

Will you not help save babies' lives by passing on this knowledge whenever opportunity arises?

TOM AND MAY.

Once upon a time a poor little girl and boy whose mother and father had died when they were babies, they had no one to live with, so with the little they had set out to die.

They had not gone far when they heard a deep, low growl. Tom took sister's hand and they hid behind some trees and all at once they saw a big bear and they were so frightened that they were nearly dead.

The next day while they were walking along Mary fell, and disappeared.

The next day Tom was all alone. As he walked on he came to a big tree, and on it it said: "Open me and step in." Tom obeyed and walked in. In front of him were three doors; one had on it G, the other S, and the last M.

Tom went in door G and found gold; he went in door S and found silver; he went in door M and found Mary, his best friend, his sister.

He took the gold and silver and also Mary. And now they have a palace and everything they want.

NELLIE AND THE WOLVES

Once there was a little girl, her name was Nellie. Her father was a shepherd, and trapped animals such as wolves, foxes and so on to make their living.

Now Nellie lived in the hills and she had to go to school. The school was two miles from her home. She had to go on horseback.

One day she was coming home from school. It was a very warm day, so she didn't go very fast. As she was looking from one side to another she happened to look back and she saw six wolves after her trying to attack her. She did not know what to do, so she made her horse speed up. This horse was not her's, for her horse was tame so she had to bring her father's horse. The horse was not used to her driving and began to kick and jump. Nellie was so frightened that she beat the horse till at last he started for home. At last Nellie got home safe. From that time on Nellie never delayed on coming home after school.

From One Who Benefited in Spite of Loss

In spite of her loss, "Just Twenty" has found "it was worth it" and "would go through it again if she could." I'd like her to know that we're sorry she lost.

Dear Geraldine:

May I be allowed to answer B. E. G.'s letter in June 16 issue?

As in her case, folks always scared me about child-birth until I was almost afraid to marry for fear of bearing children. But I have been married for about a year and a half now and recently had one of the dearest baby girls, but she only stayed here for a few days. Nevertheless I'd go through it again if I could, for she was certainly worth it and the pain wasn't as long or as bad as I expected it to be, and there is no one who is more afraid, or has more horror of pain, than "Yours truly."

I believe all doctors give something to relieve pain now-a-days, at least my doctor did, and I believe she can find some doctor who will do the same for her.

I hope this will drive some of the fear and horror from B. E. G.'s mind so that she can have a darling baby.

Also I've heard it said "The younger, the easier to bear children."

"Just Twenty."

Dear Jerry:

My, heart is filled with song today,
And life is well worth while:
For my baby coos and plays,
As it gives to me a smile.

A precious babe has come to me,
It's filled my heart with joy;
It has wrought a change that's good to see,
As it gives me sweet employ.

Some seek money as their spoil,
And seem to feel somehow,
That they have reaped where they have toiled,
As joy beams on their brow.

But, alas, not I, to seek such gain,
When love has sought a chance:
To soothe my brow from every pain,
By the tint of a baby's glance.

Oh, yes, I've had five of my own,
I know the care that rests;
Upon the shoulders quite unknown,
As it cuddles on my breast.

But life doth play us many pranks,
It gives us courage to,
Go on and upward through its ranks,
And play life square clear through.

If we but try our level best,
Each day that follows dawn,
We'll find life's sunny, happy crest,
Where love has laid its spawn.

I treasure not just only coin,
I treasure not just joy:
They're flighty as they go anon,
Where life needs their employ.

But I do treasure children's love,
It makes me mighty glad,
To play and romp with little doves,
The kind I've always had.

I would not trade my place today,
With any king or queen:
For my baby's smile seems to say,
My love is true and clean.

A treasured gift, a baby's smile,
A coo so soft and sweet,
It makes my life so well worth while,
It is my joy complete.

Two Little Girls Desired To Care for

A woman who loves kiddies wants two more:

Dear Geraldine:

I wonder if you can help me. I want to get two little girls, sisters, to take care of for someone. I want them to be 8 years old or over, so they go to school.

I love children and have a big five room house where they could have a nice sleeping porch to sleep on. I have a son, seven months old and I'd like to have them on his account as he begins to notice so much.

I think other children would be company for him and teach him things.

I love to sew and I make all our things, even my coats and suits. So I could make the little girls' clothes if the material was furnished. We have a little automobile, too, that we can have picnics and go for rides in.

Please do your best for me, Geraldine. I know you can find some one. I will take one little girl if I can't get two.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. C. L. POPPLETON.

I forgot to say, we have a lovely park across the street.

THE LAST DAY OF SCHOOL.

Just two more days and school would be out. Hazel could hardly wait. Hazel had something in mind very exciting, and the school children could not figure out what it was.

At last the last day of school came. Hazel was there before the bell rang. As soon as she got in her seat at school she got up and announced that every boy and girl in her class should be at the school house at 2:30 o'clock that afternoon and be ready to go on a two weeks camping trip. Everyone clapped for joy, even the teacher.

That afternoon everyone but Hazel was there on time, and where could Hazel be? They waited an hour, no Hazel appeared. Some of the children got excited and started to Hazel's home. It was a little ways to Hazel's house so it didn't take them long. They knocked at the door; no one came. They ran to tell the teacher.

Meanwhile Hazel was in the woods and had become lost, and could not get out. She walked further into the woods till all of a sudden she saw a sign which said: "Govan two miles." It pointed in the opposite direction she was going. She turned back and after 1½ miles she reached the school house. How surprised she was just to find two of the girls there. Hazel asked her where the rest were; they said they had gone on to the camping place. "We said we would tell you." "But where have you been?" Hazel laughed, "Why I have been in the woods and got lost. I went there to get a bouquet of flowers for the teacher, but it is time for us to go now."

They were soon there and told the story, and they had two weeks of a good time. When they got home they said they would like to go on another trip next year.

FIFTEEN ACRES OF LAND.

"How are you, father, any better?" A boy of sixteen asked this question of his sick father. Mr. Gordon had been quite rich in his early days, but had lost all his money and was a poor man now.

All he owned in the world was a small farm of fifteen acres. He had one son, Teddy, or Ted, as he was called. Ted had a job at a grocery store in town. It was him that kept them from starving. Mr. Gordon was sick, very sick, and the Doctor said he could not cure him. That there was only one doctor in the state that could, but he was very expensive, and so, naturally they could not have him.

Mr. Gordon sighed, "No, but I won't suffer long," he said.

"Will you get better?" and there was a note of hope in Ted's voice. "No, I will never get better, Ted, it is the end," and Mr. Gordon sighed bitterly.

"Don't say that, father, please don't," Ted cried tearfully.

"It is the truth," Mr. Gordon said slowly. " But I have something important to tell you. I know I won't live long, but I have something important to say, so don't interrupt me Listen. THERE'S OIL ON OUR LAND! ON OUR FIFTEEN ACRES! I found it"—Ted's father fell off in a dead faint, and at the end of 14 hours Ted was fatherless.

What Mr. Gordon had said stirred Ted tremenduously. Was there oil on his land? Where could he get money enough to drill?

He went at once to Mr. Monroe, a merchant in town.

"Good afternoon, Ted," he said. "What can I do for you?"

Ted smiled and said:

"Mr. Monroe, I have a business proposition here and would like to consult you about it". So Ted proceeded to explain what his father told him. When he was through he looked at Mr. Monroe eagerly.

Mr. Monroe deliberated some moments before speaking. "Well," he said finally, "What do you want me to do?" and Mr Monroe coughed. "Put a well down," and he looked at Ted. "Yes," Ted cried breathlessly, "Will you" Mr. Munroe jumped up. "Yes," he cried, "I'll do it."

A month passed and they were getting along very nicely. Another week passed, and both Mr. Monroe and Ted were at the well. They were talking to the driller when they heard a wild shout; there was a rush, a roar and the next moment the air was darkened by oil! Oil, every place.

There is not much more to tell, except that the well was sold for a large price and Mr. Munroe and Ted were rich for the rest of their lives.

JACQUELINE.

The most piquant name in the lexicon of feminine appellatives is Jacqueline. Her origin dates far back in Biblical days when one of the twin sons of Isaac and Rebecca was called Jacob and the mother predicted that he would supplant the other. Thus his name came to signify "the supplanter" and Jacqueline, which is derived from this source, has the same significance.

As the derivatives of Jacob spread throughout Europe, France adopted Jacques. The great church of St. Jacques at Liege spread the love of the name in Flanders and it was when the English and French were mingled together in camps of the Black Prince and Henry V. that the name spread into England.

The feminine Jacqueline had already arisen. Henry V called the wild Jacqueline of Hainault, Dame Jack. She, like his French sister-in-law, Jacquette of Luxemburg was named in honor of the saint of Liege. The nurse of Edward VI, whom Holbein drew by the soubriquet of Mother Jack was called Jackuette. Jacqueline in France are very numerous and the name is extremely popular in this country where its ready diminutive, sounds good to Yankee ears.

Jade is Jacqueline's talismanic stone. It is said to bring her all-around good luck and wearing it she will find her heart's desire. Friday is her lucky day and three her lucky number.

TOM, DICK AND HARRY'S ADVENTURE.

CHAPTER I.

Once there was three boys, and their names were Tom, Dick and Harry. One day they went out horseback riding. I forgot to tell you that Tom was 20 years old, Dick 18 years and Harry was also 18 years old. Tom had the best horse of the three.

Tom, Dick and Harry were riding into the forest and then Harry started to gallop away because he saw a tiger behind the bush ready to spring at them. Then Harry galloped away, and Tom pulled out his 38 and went after Harry and the Tiger, just as the tiger was about to land upon Harry's back Tom shot and killed it. Then Dick came riding up to them and said, "Whew, that was a lucky shot."

Then they got the tiger and put it on the back of the horse and rode back to the ranch. When they reached the ranch they threw the tiger to the ground. At this the cowpunchers ran away. Tom called them back and said, "He is dead, don't be afraid." Then dinner bell rang. After dinner was over, Tom, Dick and Harry (who are always together), went out to town on horseback. When they arrived at the town they saw a sign that read, "100,000 reward for the capture of One Eye Pete and His Gang." Then Tom said, "Let's Capture the Reward."

So they started out for the hill.

CHAPTER II.

When they reached the foothills they saw some men branding cattle. So they surrounded them and Tom said, "Hands up." Then the men that were branding the cattle said, "Good joke for your gang, Tom." Then Tom saw that he was mistaken as they were his own men.

Then they started up hill, when Harry spied a cave, and outside of the cave were 30 horses and Tom, Dick and Harry got off of their horses and went in. Tom was leading the way and Dick and Harry followed, when all of a sudden was a sound of men's feet. Then Dick and Harry pulled out their revolvers and Tom pulled out his and then the fight began. Tom, Dick and Harry against One Eyed Pete's gang. After awhile all of One Eyed Pete's gang were either killed or wounded. Then Tom saw One Eyed Pete pulled out with his horse and away he went.

Then Tom jumped on his horse and the chase began. Tom caught up with him, and after a hard fight Tom won. Then he tied him to his horse and brought him back to the cave. When he arrived to the cave he put the rest of the men on their horses tied them and marched them to town. When he arrived in town he received the reward. Tom gave Harry $25,000 and Dick $25,000, himself $25,000. The other $25,000 he bought another ranch and added to his old ranch and went into partnership Harry and Dick.

CHAPTER III.

Next day Tom, Dick and Harry rode back to the cave to explore it. When he got there he went into one room and found lots of gold. He took out as much gold as he could carry in his saddle bags and brought it to the sheriff, And he got the sheriff and his gang to go with him to the cave to bring back the rest of his gold. Which the sheriff offered to give to Tom and his friends. Tom refused, and told them to use it for the poor people After that Tom, Dick and Harry got married and lived happy ever after.

Winter had gone and with its going had come Mistress Spring with her train of flowers, birds and busy bees to visit the little farmouhse at the foot of Oakleigh Hill.

It was a simple little farmhouse, painted a light cream-color with blue-shutters and built on a green embankment. Pink roses clambered up one side of the house as if trying to win a contest with the tall trees which stood nearby. Red and white dolphins were peeping into the kitchen windows. A low yellow wall surrounded the house and garden.

He was looking expectantly toward the low ivy-covered doorway of the house where stood a dainty dear-faced little lady waving a pink checked sun-bonnet to the trio.

From afar could be seen the towering purple mountains and the blue glimmering lake. They seemed to be in a conspiracy. Ah, this is love—peace and——comfort.

THE PRINCESS WHO WAS NOT WANTED.

In England, years ago, there lived a king and queen.

One day the King said to the queen, "I wish I had a son who could take my place as king when I pass away."

So later a little daughter was born. The King was so disappointed he said he would give her away.

One day they had the servant take the baby away and leave it on the doorstep of some [illegible] who were Americans and were just visiting friends in England. When they heard the baby crying outside on the doorstep the lady, whose name was Mrs. Lovewell, picked up the little bundle and called to her husband.

They were so happy they decided to keep the child.

In a few days Mr. and Mrs. Lovewell were packed and ready to leave for America with the little baby.

After they arrived in America they named the baby Dorothy Lovewell.

Eighteen years later Dorothy had grown to be a beautiful girl. One day she received a letter from England, telling her of her birth, and now that the King and Queen were dead she should come back to England and rule, which she did.

When she was twenty, she met a young man who, after a short court, she married.

Now they live very happily in the castle with Mr. and Mrs. Lovewell who, after Dorothy found out they were not her real parents, would not give them up because they had raised her and she loved them.

Cleo Damianakes Betrothed to San Jose Man

Cards received today revealed the betrothal of one of the most popular young women at the University of California, Miss Cleo Damianakes, a member of one of the oldest families about the bay, and Ralph Brooks Wilkins. The news accompanies the announcement that the nuptials will take place in October, after which both will return to New York to complete their studies in art.

Miss Damianakes is a graduate of the University of California and won the Taussig scholarship and awarded a year's study in New York. Upon her return, she was commissioned to decorate the Berkeley High school auditorium. She then turned her attention to etching, and won the Logan prize in Chicago and has just had some of her work accepted for exhibit at the national academy and in London.

Miss Damianakes is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Damianakes of Lenox avenue and a sister of the Misses Dorothy and Marie Damianakes. Miss Dorothy Damianakes has won honors in her dancing at the state university.

Wilkins studied at the School of Fine Arts in San Francisco for a number of years, where he met his fiance. He is now a student at the New York School of Illustrators.

Gibbs-Judson Wedding at Home.

Saturday evening the marriage of Miss Alice G. Gibbs and Charles L. Judson took place at the home of the bride's parents on Tamalpais road. The ceremony was informal. The bride was one of three women to receive degrees from the Agricultural college at Davis.

Judson is a graduate of U. C., receiving his degree with the class of '23. He is a son of Mrs. Maud Judson of Los Angeles.

Rev. George P. Tolson, of the Pacific School of Religion, read the service. The bride was attended by her two sisters, Miss Katherine and Miss Dorothy Gibbs.

Miss Katherine Gibbs has been a student at the Academy Julian in Paris and returned but recently from Europe.

After a honeymoon by motor the couple will go to Lodi to establish their home where the bridegroom has ranching interests.

One of the 7 o'clock weddings of Saturday afternoon was that of Miss Alyuna Marie Hansen and William Kendall Cates, the marriage ceremony taking place at the Phi Mu sorority house on the University of California campus. About 75 guests were present at the reading of the ritual, a reception following the ceremony.

Cates is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cates of Salt Lake City.

The bride was attended by a coterie of her sorority sisters, including her sister, Miss Lillian Martha Hansen, maid of honor. Miss Lillian Hansen is engaged to Sayers Henderson Beane.

Other attendants were Miss Dorothy Harrington, Miss Tova Petersen, Miss Ruth Devlin, Miss Doris Devlin, Miss Alice Christ, Miss Mildred Prather, Miss Miriam Frisbie and Miss Eleanor Ocheltree.

Earl Uish served as best man.

The improvised altar was massed in hydrangeas and roses.

The bride wore an imported Doue Soeurs gown over white taffeta. Her bridal veil of tulle was arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

The honeymoon will be a trip to Salt Lake City, after which the bridal couple will return to Berkeley to reside.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Cates received their degree from the University of California. Cates is a member of the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

AILEEN ANDERSON, THE BRAVE DOG.

Once long ago lived a dog named Tom. Tom was a brave dog. Tom's mistress was a little girl named Alice. Alice had no parents. She begged for food most of the time.

One day as she was walking by the bay she fell in. She screamed for help. Tom hearing his mistress call for help rushed to the bay. And he jumped in and saved her. When she woke up she thanked Tom for saving her life. The next time she begged she gave the food to Tom. And they lived happy ever after.

CHRISTINE of the HUNGRY HEART

by KATHLEEN NORRIS

THE STORY SO FAR.

After a few years of marriage Christine Knight, young, beautiful and rich, realizes that she is desperately unhappy. However, because she does not believe in divorce, she decides to make the best of her life with her adored little daughter Betty Lou and her openly bored and neglectful husband, Stuart. So she and Dr. Alan Montcagle, who have recently met, and found themselves in love with each other decide not to see each other again.

CHAPTER XIII.

A MEETING.

The warmth of the day was frightful. There were heavy clouds massing themselves overhead, and the sunshine was gone. Leaves turned languidly in the sickening calm, and there was the first dull rattle of thunder, and a blue flash through the lead-colored heaviness of the day. Ethel panted, and Chrissie saw the men exchange glances on the front seat. This was hot.

They reached the Maine camp late in the following day, and everything was just as it always had been, and always would be. The fresh, piny mountain air, the handsome, luxurious cabins, with their wide porches, the hotel near, yet not too near, the nice Chicago family back in their neighboring camp—The Woolcocks, the Runyons.

Betty Lou welcomed her mother only a shade more noisily than did her elders. Stuart was off for a fishing trip with the men of the Moore and Runyon families; there was bridge, and dancing, and a dinner party, and of course a movie—it was Wednesday night,—at the hotel.

And tomorrow there would be a dip into the lake, and then perhaps nine holes on the hotel links, or tennis to watch or to share, and all the threads of friendship from last year and the years before to pick up. Mrs. Dispo would talk gowns, and display one ravishing toilette after another, and Mrs. Holiday would murmur about Christian Science. The babies would congregate, toddle about, quarrel, fight, weep and be reconciled, and the Saturday train would bring up the usual group of men. Men were in two classes, now, Alan and the others, and Alan would not come.

Chrissie began her fight bravely. She dressed, talked, went about conscientiously. She devoted herself to Betty Lou. And when Stuart came back from his little trip with a concentration almost physical, to meet him on his own ground, to re-establish something between them that was not mere patient endurance.

"Good time, dear?"

"Peach."

"Much poker?"

"Well, I won—if that's what you mean!"

"I didn't. I was just wondering what you did. And now shall you have to go down to Washington?"

"What's the idea? I've only been home three hours!"

Chris sighed, and wrote one more line of the report she was sending Dan.

"Gosh, you've got a sweet idea of welcoming a man home," grum-

about poker and then try to bounce me off to Washington!"

"I didn't rag you, Stuart," said Chris, laughing. "Your father said you had a case that was coming up, and you yourself said that you couldn't stay through July!"

He continued assorting neckties, and distributing the small contents of his bag in his bureau and dresser, a sulky expression upon his face, and Chris went on with her letter. Outside the window the summer woods were teeming with peace and beauty, and the ring of children's voices came up from the lake.

"I suppose what I had in mind," Christine resumed pacifically, "is that Ethel says Carter is going back tomorrow. He hopes to get up here again, for practically all of August."

"I'm fed up on that ass!" Stuart said sourly.

"Who—Carter?"

"Yes, Carter. The big hypocrite! God, we got sick of him, this week! Here he was reading me a lecture yesterday—I wanted to push his face in! I oughtn't to do this, and I oughtn't to do that—I suppose he never got drunk, oh no! I felt like telling him that at least I didn't cheat the government out of seven thousand dollars income tax!"

"But Stuart—" Christine said, quickly, sickened by this revelation that her husband had once more disgraced himself, upon this little trip, 'he didn't cheat the government!' They simply didn't allow—"

"Oh, he did too! Stick up for him against me, that's right!" Stuart interrupted angrily.

Silence. Then Christine said:

"Try to get some sleep this afternoon, if we're going to the hotel dance tonight."

"I'll look out for myself, don't worry!" her husband said. She was writing, though with a still burning heart, when he left the room, ten minutes later.

Sometimes Stuart showed her a different mood. He did not discuss books or music or events with her, or try to meet her upon her own ground in any way. But there were evenings when soothed by a good dinner, and pleasantly weary after wholesome hours on the courts or the links, he became his pleasant self.

He danced beautifully; indeed it had been at a dance, years ago, that he had won the flushed, thrilled, beautiful little Christine Madison as his promised wife. It had been a mere routine affair, at a hotel, after the theater, but it had been a new world to her.

And now, five years later, when he came up to her smiling, and when the music played, she would get up willingly enough; Chrissie loved to dance. But sometimes, surrendered to his arms, she would find him in a mood she dreaded.

"Do you realize that you are my wife, Madam? Do you ever think of that?"

"Why, yes, I've heard something to that effect."

"Do you know that there isn't a man in the room that isn't envying me?"

"Stuart, what nonsense!" This sort of thing always made her uncomfortable, especially if when he took her home, he was still in the same mood, and loitered in her room while she brushed her hair, and made preparations for bed. "I am his wife—" she would remind herself, against a rising current of utter rebellion.

"He has every right here. I am his wife!"

And one night she dreamed that she and Alan were walking along a country road, by the sea, and that she said: "Alan, I could give myself to you now with less shame than I do to him!"

Only a dream. But she awakened with her face wet; and it seemed to bring Alan closer to her all through a long summer day, and so comforted her.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN

By Beaunash

CORRECT CLOTHES

THE KNACK OF KNICKERS.

Since snickers ceased to go with knickers and they became as standard an article of men's dress as trousers, many important improvements have been effected in their design and detail. The first knickers were balloon-like bags that flapped against one's legs like a sail becalmed. The man who wore them frequented side-paths and alleys lest he meet his worst friend or his dearest enemy face-to-face. It is quite different to*day,* when knickers are cut, fitted and draped with skill and shape*liness* to conceal the legs that are curved like a pair of parenthesis marks and to reveal those which are creditably straight.

Correctly-designed knickers are, of course, very full having the overhang which has come to be termed "plus four," because it extends four inches below the knee. However this effect is not becoming to all figures, particularly the short and thickset, so that plus two and plus three measurements are also used. The tall slender man should wear extremely low, wide knickers as they serve to counterbalance his elongated lines. The stout man or he below normal height should go in for scantercut knickers with not too voluminous a drape, so that his breadth or abbreviated stature will not be accentuated.

claimed, is superior to the buckle because it is not so prone to tear or pull the cloth. The center style [illegible] which may be tightened or loosened at will just like a belt. The bottom sketch reproduces knickers provided with a knitted ribbed elastic cuff of jersey cloth or stockinet which, expanding and contracting, does away with both buttons and buckles and also with the need of wearing golf garters.

Correctly cut knickers are snugly shaped to the waist, so that their weight rests squarely upon the hips. They have side pockets and hip pockets and, below the seat, they swing inward to give them symmetrical lines. To be sure they have broad belt loops and sometimes, small pleats at the waistline just like trousers.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

by IRVIN S. COBB

Living Proof

Complaint has been made that some of the so-called model houses which go up so fast in the suburban district of New York are built to be sold, not to be lived in.

Be that as it may, a little story is being told of a real estate dealer whose operations in the commuting zone have been highly successful. The only trouble is that he can't work the same side of the street twice.

He had snared a prospective buyer—one of those ten-dollars-down-and-ten-dollars-a-week-as-long-as-you-live prospects, and in his car the promoter took him out on Long Island to look at a cottage which he thought would just suit the needs of the customer.

The building was in the process of construction. It had been started on Monday; on Friday it would be ready for occupancy. But this was a Wednesday, and while the foundations were finished and the sides were up and the roof had been pasted on, the painting and the interior trim and the finishing touches were yet to be added.

The dealer led the proposed victim inside the structure. The plasterers were just concluding their part of the contract.

"Now, then," said the salesman, beaming with pride, "what do you think of this for a house?"

"Ain't she built kind of flimsy?" inquired the homeseeker.

"Flimsy? Flimsy?" screamed the indignant realtor. "You call this a flimsy job? Wait, I'll show you.

"Hey, Jim," he called to a workman on the other side of the partition.

"What?" asked Jim.

"Jim, step up close to the dividing wall between us. Get as close to it as you can."

"All right," said Jim. "Here I am, almost touching it."

"Now, Jim, you can hear me speaking through the wall, can't you?"

"[illegible]"

"But you can't see me through this wall, can you, Jim?"

"Nope."

With a smile of triumph and satisfaction the promoter turned to the customer:

"Now, that's what I call a wall!" he said.

Uncle Wiggily Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SAND HOUSE.

Uncle Wiggily had gone to the seashore because it was such hot weather. Even his hollow stump bungalow in the woods was too warm for the bunny rabbit gentleman.

"Of course," he said to Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, his muskrat lady housekeeper, "if I could take off my fur coat I might not be so hot. But I can't!"

A rabbit without his fur would look funny, wouldn't he?

So Uncle Wiggily went to the seashore and he took with him Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, the squirrel boys. They, too, wore coats of fur, even in summer.

"They will like the cool, salty ocean waves!" said Mr. Longears as he invited the squirrel boys to go with him. And Johnnie and Billie certainly did like the beach.

"Come on, Uncle Wiggily!" chattered Billie one morning. "We want you to help us build a sand house."

"Oh, all right," laughed the bunny twinkling his pink nose and wobbling his queer, funny little short tail. "We shall build a wonderful sand house today."

Down on the beach Uncle Wiggily and the squirrel boys dug a hole in the sand. Then they made a big pile of sand and patted it smooth with clam shells. That was the roof of the house.

'Oh! Ouch!' cried the bunny

"Now we must make a door and some windows," said Uncle Wiggily. So he and the squirrel boys, with their cute little paws, made holes in the sides of the heap of hollowed out sand, and it began to look like a house. It was almost like the igloos, or round-topped houses, the North Pole Eskimos make of blocks of ice and snow.

"I'm going to make a fence of clam shells all around Uncle Wiggily's sand house!" chattered Johnnie. "That will make it look fine."

When the sand house was finished, with a fence of clam shells about it, Johnnie and Billie saw, down the beach Curly and Floppy Twistytail, the piggie boys, toasting marshmallow candies.

"Let's go down there!" chattered Billie, and he and Johnnie ran away, leaving Uncle Wiggily alone by the sand house. However, he didn't mind, as he wanted to go to sleep. He closed his eyes, and was soon in Slumber Land, but all of a sudden, he was awakened by feeling something pinching one of his legs.

"Oh! Ouch! Who are you?" cried the bunny, opening his eyes wide. He saw a queer sort of creature, with big, pinching claws and long whiskers staring at him.

"I am a lobster!" cried the creature, "and I have come up out of the sea to pinch you."

"Oh dear!" sighed Uncle Wiggily. "More trouble for me!" But then, all at once, he thought of a trick to play on the lobster. He said to the pinching chap. "You must be tired from having crawled up from the sea. Please go in my sand house and rest yourself."

"All right! I will!" grumbled the lobster. "And when I come out I will pinch you!"

So into the sand house he crawled. And when he was in Uncle Wiggily suddenly caved the sand house in on top of the pinching chap. Down fell the sand, burying the lobster out of sight.

"It will be a long time before you can dig yourself out from there!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "And when you do, I shall be far away!"

Then the bunny, twinkling his pink nose, hopped off down the beach to the marshmallow candy roast, and the lobster had to dig and dig and dig to get himself out of the fallen-in sand house. But it served him right, I think. And if the apple pie will politely get up from the table and give its chair to the chocolate cake, I shall next tell you about Uncle Wiggily's squeaky wheel.

WITCHES' & PIRATES' STORY DEN

DANIEL S. CHO, 10 Years.

THE CLUB HOUSE.

There lived a boy named Jim. Jim had twenty-five kids in his cloub house. They all said that they wanted to go fishing. So that night Jim said, "Hey, Mom, kin I go fishin' tomorrow morning?" She said no. That night Jim got his fishing line all ready. Jim climbed out of the bedroom window. By mistake his can of worms dropped out of his pocket and broke a window. Jim's mother came running out with a broom. Jim started climbing up again and reached the window in time. Next morning Jim started out again. This time he got out safe. "Gee, Jim, you ought to be lucky for being out this time," said the rest of his members. They went down the bay to fish. They made a raft out of railroad ties. When they rowed out about half a mile a shark upset their raft. They all knew how to swim, so they swam ashore with a shark following them. "Gee, we were lucky, huh, Jim?" "I'll say we were," said Jim. About 3 o'clock in the night Jim tried to sneak in the house, but the door was all locked. All at once he remembered the window he busted last night, but some one put new glass in. So poor Jim walked in the yard and there he saw his mother with a horse strap waiting for him in the yard. She brought Jim in the house and slapped him in the face. "Ouch, Mom, don't hit so hard," and she gave him a dose of castor oil and Jim said, "Gee, I hate that stuff in the bottle, Mom." She sent him to bed and in the morning she told him to stay in bed all day. The end. DANIEL S. CHO.

GRACE AND DOLLY.

Once there was a little girl. Her name was Grace. She had a dog named Dolly. One day when Grace was a lady 34 years old she got a baby boy. She named it Bobby.

Bobby was a good little boy. Grace had married a man named Archie Hanet. Blodget was Grace's name before she was married. One day when Bobby was 3 years old he took Dolly for a walk in the meadow. He saw a man and the man stole Bobby, so Dolly went to Bobby's father and took him to Bobby. Bobby was in a cave tied up. Soon as Bobby saw his father he jumped for joy to see him.

Then Bobby's father untied him.

Bobby never went any place alone till he was 12 years old. Soon after he was 12 years old he got a sister. And when his sister was 6 years old she went to school with Bobby.

His sister's name was Eunice.

He and Eunice played together every day. They played house till Eunice was 9 years old. They played with Dolly, too.

THE GIRL'S STORY.

The very next day Betty and Billy Cut-out stopped to see their new-found little girl friend, the girl who lived in the queer cottage. It was at the time when the old woman, her great-aunt, took a nap.

The girl, who told them her name was Marjorie, was watering flowers. "I wish you could come in and play with me," sighed Marjorie, "but she won't let me see anybody."

"Why?" asked Betty and Billy, both at once.

"My daddy sends her lots of money to take care of me and she's awfully stingy. She doesn't buy me nice clothes or things like other boys and girls. Why, we hardly have enough to eat. She keeps all the money daddy sends.

"She reads all my letters, so I can't tell him how mean she is, but have to write that I'm happy. I've been here four months and daddy will be gone six more. I just can't stand it!"

"Never you mind," comforted Betty. "Billy and I will think up some way to help you. Just you wait and see!"

The girl's dress is lavendar and her apron and banquet are green. Next week Betty and Billy will try to rescue her from her cruel aunt.

Things they Ask the Tribune

BUREAU OF INFORMATION

The TRIBUNE Information Bureau is publishing by request the following recipes which are much in demand at this time of year:

Table Relish—Chop 4 quarts of cabbage, 3 quarts of tomatoes, (1 qt. to be green), 6 large onions, 2 hot peppers. Add 3 oz. white mustard and 1 oz. celery seed, ¼ cup salt, 2 pounds sugar and 2 quarts vinegar. Simmer one hour, pour into sterilized jars and seal while hot.

Sweet Pickled Peaches—Wipe and stick three or four whole cloves in each peach. Put in jars or crock and cover with hot vinegar allowing two cups of sugar to each quart of vinegar used. Every morning for a week pour off the vinegar heat to boiling and pour over peaches again. On the last day seal jars or cover crock well.

Apple Butter with Grape Juice—To every four quarts of strained apple sauce add one pint of grape juice, 1 cup of brown sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt. Cook slowly, stirring often until of the desired thickness. When done stir in 1 teaspoon of cinnamon, pack in hot jars and sterilize five minutes.

Russian Relish—One cup of finely chopped beets, ¼ cup fine chopped cabbage, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons grated horse radish, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup vinegar. Mix the beets and cabbage, add the salt and pepper. Add the vinegar to the horse radish and combine the two mixtures. Set in a cool place for about an hour before it is ready to serve. It is very nice with cold meats.

Grapefruit Marmalade—Take 3 oranges and 2 lemons, 2 grapefruit, 4 lbs. of sugar and 4 cups of water. Wash, dry and halve the grapefruit, oranges and lemons. Extract the juice and pulp by means of a lemon drill. Scrape out all the coarse white part of the skin. Use the skins of all the fruit except that of one orange. Chop the peel with a meat chopper and slice finely with a slicer, and add an equal quantity of water to the juice. Let stand over night. In the morning boil with the sugar until it jellies or about one hour. Put in jars or glasses.

The TRIBUNE Information Bureau will answer all questions of a general nature except school or legal problems, debates, trade and time of day.

If answers are desired by mail stamps must be enclosed. Quick results can be obtained by telephoning to the bureau. If you have any problems of a general nature to solve, ask The TRIBUNE Information Bureau. Lakeside 6000.

How to Write 'Local Lafs'

By the Local Laf Editor

The theoretical fellow of the funny man's world even extends his dislike of wives to those who roped him into the bargain.

The juror who said he couldn't give a just verdict for the defendant because he looked like the preacher who had married him, was an example of this.

Spriggs: You've heard about the machine for telling when man's lying.

Riggs: Heard about it? I married one.

From the standpoint of the humorist, women do all the talking in the home.

Clairvoyant: This is the form of your departed spouse. Speak to her.

Husband: Oh, if it's her, she'll do all the talking.

The whole situation is epitomized by the philosopher who said.

One reason for all the trouble in the world is that half of it wears trousers and the other half wears skirts.

The jester will stop at nothing in trying to fix the charge of talkativeness on the fair sex.

Explorer: I discovered a tribe of wild women in Africa. They had no tongues.

Clubman: Then they couldn't talk.

BRIDGE AND ROAD WORK DISCUSSED BY SUPERVISORS

Improvement of Crow Canyon Highway Proposed In Near Future.

Informad discussion of contemplated road improvements was the chief feature of today's meeting of the Alameda county board of supervisors.

The discussion arose in conjunction with the acceptance by the board of bonds and specifications prepared by County Engineer Geo. Posey for the construction of two concrete bridges in the Crow canyon. The engineer's cost estimate for the two bridges was 30,000.

Supervisor Charles Heyer in answer to a question propounded by Supervisor Redmond C Staats, as to when it was proposed to begin construction of the bridges, pointed out that the improvement of the Crow canyon highway was one of the needed road construction units which must be attended to in the near future.

The discussion went to various features of the widening and repairing of East Fourteenth, the widening of the Tunnel road, the extension of the Skyline boulevard and the new Niles canyon road project. While no official action was taken, all the members of the board expressed themselves as being determined to proceed with this comprehensive paving program as rapidly as the condition of the road fund will permit.

Smith Meets Davis, Mum on N. Y. Race

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

NEW YORK, Aug 4—John W Davis, Democratic presidential candidate, and Governor Smith of New York acknowledged leader of the state Democracy, met today for the first time since the conclusion of the national Democratic convention. They met at luncheon in a private dining room of the Murray Hill hotel, which houses the Eastern headquarters of the Democrats. Thomas J Spellacy, eastern campaign manager for Davis, was the third member of the luncheon party.

Both declared that the question of Governor Smith's political future was not discussed. The governor refused to commit himself on the matter of his renomination for his present office. Close friends later gave it as their opinion that he would not be a candidate for the governorship this fall.

Steamer Harvard Finds New Haven in Oakland

OAKLAND GETS OCEAN FREIGHT SERVICE SOUTH

Inaugurating a fast ocean freight service between Oakland and Southern California ports, the steamer Harvard sailed from the Howard terminal today.

Henceforth Oakland is to be a port of call of the Los Angeles Steamship company, operating the steamers Harvard and Yale between Oakland, San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego.

Officials announced that the service was being installed to meet the demands of Oakland shippers for a fast ocean freight between Oakland and southern ports, but that the steamers also would accommodate passenger trade.

2000 VISIT SHIP.

The Harvard was the scene of a reception yesterday by the officers of the vessel and the officials of the Howard company to the citizens of Oakland. More than 2000 visited the ship.

Among the visitors were George C. Pardee, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce harbor development committee, and C. A Bahler, head of the Chamber of Commerce Traffic department.

"This service marks another step in the development of the Oakland harbor," asid Pardee. "The Eastbay has long been in need of quick water communication with Southern California, and there is no doubt that the volume of trade will justify the establishment of the service."

MEANS NEW BUSINESS.

W. K. Sempey, general freight agent for the steamship company, escorted Pardee and Bahler through the vessel.

"This service will be a wonderful thing for Oakland and for the company, too," said Sempey. "It should mean new business for both of us."

"The officials and the office staff of the Howard Terminal company formed a reception committee to show visitors about the boat.

Among the officials of the steamship and terminal company who welcomed the visitors were Captain G. Dahlgren of the Harvard, Purser Robert K Suermondt, G. T. Bourne, W. D. Jones, C. E. Trimble, J. L. Howard and W. F. Heckell.

Motorcycle Theft Is Admitted to Police

Edward Erickson is held for investigation by the police in connection with the theft of a motorcycle from San Pedro. He was arrested at a repair shop at 240 Twelfth street, where he had left the machine to be repaired. The machine did not have an identification card, and the police were notified. After being questioned by Inspector W. H. Smith, he admitted that he stole the car. The authorities in San Pedro have been notified.

FUGITIVE DEACON WINS BACK WIFE, CHURCH BARS HIM

Choir Leader Exonerates Girl Through Whom Capture Was Effected.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—Benjamin Richards, forme rdeacon, choir leader, and Sunday school superintendent of the First Christion church, who was discovered in Santa Monica after having written his wife that he was going to commit suicide, has become reconciled with his wife, but not with his church.

Mrs Richards, who caused her husband's arrest on a charge of failure to provide for two minor children when she found he was alive and in the southern city, today welcomed him back to their home, after informing the police that she had decided not to prosecute. She had previously announced that she did not believe she could ever forgive Richards for the shock his "suicide note" had caused her, and for his leaving her and the two children penniless.

Rev. J. Preston Bentley, pastor of the First Christian church, said, however, that Richards would no longer be asked to officiate in his late triple duties at the church.

Richards declared today that no significance should be attached to his friendship with Miss Julia Hansen of Santa Monica. He had been a friend of her family for years, he said. It was through a bill of goods said to have been charged by Miss Hansen to Richards' account in a local store that he was traced to Santa Monica, according to the police.

Advertising Man to Talk on Investments

Guy R. Kinsley, advertising manager of the Pierce Fair company, will address the Oakland Advertising club tomorrow noon at the Hotel Oakland on the subject, "The Investment Banking Business," according to an announcement made today.

News of the CHURCHES

American Scripture

"The greatness of America in the past has been largely due to the accent put upon the importance of initiative in the individual," said Rev. Clarence Reed at the First Unitarian church yesterday morning speaking on the subject, "Judaized Christianity, Romanized Christianity and Americanized Christianity." He said in part:

"Americanized Christianity has its sacred books. The sacred scriptures of other religions and of the past, while of great worth, are not sufficient for the needs of men today. In proportion as a religion is vital to men today it creates a sacred literature. Many of the poems of Longfellow, Lowell, Whitman and Bryant, the essays of Emerson, Thoreau's 'Walden,' Jacob A Riis' 'The Making of an American,' Bryce's 'American Commonwealth' and the speeches of Abraham Lincoln are part of the Bible of America.

"The Mayflower Covenant of 1620, the Declaration of Rights of 1765, the Declaration of the Causes and the Necessity of Taking Up Arms of 1775, the Declaration of Independence of 1776, the Constitution of the United States, the Ordinance for the Government of the Northwest Territory of 1787, the Monroe Doctrine and the Emancipation Proclamation are not simply state documents, but are portions of the sacred scriptures of Americanized Christianity.

"A high value is placed upon the individual according to the teachings of Americanized Christianity. The greatness of America in the past has been largely due to the accent put upon the importance of initiative in the individual. John Smith expressed this idea at Jamestown, Va., to a group of English gentlemen who did not want to do hard manual labor, 'He that will not work, neither let him eat.' The founders of our country were educated by clearing land, plowing the virgin soil and hunting for game. The inherent worth of every man has been vindicated over again in the history of America. Abraham Lincoln, with an accent of pride, once said, 'Twenty-five years ago I was a hired man.' Whitman emphasized this thought in one of his poems in the words, 'To teach the average man the glory of his walk and trade.'"

Beautiful Living

"There is a mighty need today that we who profess to be followers of Jesus should like a life that is winsome and attractive — 'The Beautiful Life,'" said the Rev. E. C Philleo at Centennial Presbyterian chruch yesterday morning, speaking on "The Beautiful Life." He said in part:

"It is something, over twenty years now since a young Japanese came to Dr. Leighton Parks of Boston and asked if he could show him how to find 'The Beautiful Life.' And, after all is said and done, isn't that just what the true Christian life is? The Christian is in this world for one great purpose, namely, to interpret Christ and the Christ-life to men. Now, this will involve righteousness, of course, for no life that is stained with known and deliberate sin can do it. But will it not demand more than that? Have you never seen people whose lives were eminently correct, whose conduct was above reproach, and who were nevertheless so austere, so cold, so forbidding, that their goodness was intolerably oppressive? Can you imagine that our Lord was like that? Would the multitudes have flocked to hear Him, would the sin-stricken have crept to His feet, would the little children have climbed up into His arms, if He had been of that sort?

"No, there is a mighty need today that we who profess to be followers of Jesus should live a life that is winsome and attractive—'The Beautiful Life.'

"And this cannot be a matter of mere outward veneer, either. Doubtless there is a real value in the rules of etiquette; a man doesn't especially commend his Lord to the world when he shovels food into his mouth with a knife, or when he reaches across the table and spears a slice of bread with his fork. Yet, after all, true beauty and real courtesy are matters of the heart.

"We need to get close enough to the living Christ to catch His spirit of kindness, consideration, courtesy and winsomeness, and so shall 'the beauty of the Lord our God' be upon us.

"That young Japanese found 'The Beautiful Life' when he found Jesus, and he went back to his own country to live that life among his own people."

For Evoultion

"Biology and the Kinship of Life" was the subject of Dr George R. Dodson, who spoke yesterday morning at the First Unitarian church, Berkeley. He said in part:

"New truths often seem bare and cold, unpoetic and even hostile to religion. In time their beauty and significance are seen and it becomes clear that we have gained more than we have lost. Evolution has established the kinship, the oneness, of all life. There is continuity of development from the single cell to the highest and divinest personality.

"It is fortunate that man is no exception, for if humanity, with its sciences, arts and religions, is part of the great process, then that process must be nurpreted by its outcome. Man is nature in her highest ranges. Human values are nature's values. There is no purely material nature. The only nature we know has bloomed into civilization, has flowered out into millions of rational and loving lives, which are still climbing the heights toward an ever more beautiful ideal.

"The power behind and in evolution, that through the last eighty million years has lifted life from formless jelly to noble and beautiful human personalities, is still active in us. We feel it in our passion for justice, our love of truth anid beauty, in our divine discontent, in the lure of the ideal and in our homesickness for the ideal world.

"It is th epresence of the infinite in our finite lives which explains the essential nature of man. We are literally the imperfect children of the perfect. The evolution of our spiritual life is the evolution of our loves. As children we desire painted toys, colored balloons, games and plan. As we mature we put away childish things, and as we further advance we come at last to find that the only things we can love with the whole heart are truth, beauty and goodness and God, in whom our ideals are united.

"The love of God is implicit in us from the first. We are like children chasing butterflies, but always in the direction of home.

"As our insight clears and we come at last to know our own hearts we are able to say out of our experience, 'Oh, God, Thou has made us for thyself and our hearts are restless until they rest in Thee.'"

Answered Prayers

"If we are in sorrow, dread, danger or temptation, God will help us. We may ask God freely for peace, goodness, self-control, and He will hear us," said the Rev. M. S. Vail at the Eighth Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, yesterday, speaking on "Prayer."

He said in part:

"It is our duty to pray and to pray always, because God is our father and wishes us to ask Him and He is pleased when we are persistent.

"Paul had a thorn in the flesh and prayed that it might be removed, but it was not, and yet he received a crown that was something better. He suffered like his Master, and through suffering was made perfect.

"God is never late in answering, although He may seem to be a long time about it. God does not always answer, because He, only, knows what is best for our good.

"There are thorns not only in the flesh but also thorns in the spirit. Since God is our Father we must go to Him for all things. If we are in sorrow, dread, danger or temptation, God will help us. We may ask God freely for peace, goodness, self-control, and He will certainly hear us."

Rites Tomorrow For Mrs. Ella B. Soule

The funeral of Mrs. Ella Bacon Soule, Oakland pioneer and one of the large holders of real estate in Alameda county, will be held tomorrow afternoon from the family home at Monte Vista and Oakland avenues. Simplicity will mark the services which will be strictly private. The body will be shipped to St. Louis for interfent in the Bacon family vault.

Mrs. Soule died on Sunday morning in Merritt hospital, following an illness of a month. She was 71 years old. Two sons, Beach Soule, and H. Douglas Soule, pianist, three grandsons and a brother, Frank F. Bacon, survive.

The daughter of the late Henry D. Bacon, banker and railroad man of St. Louis, Mrs. Soule belonged to one of the old families of St. Louis. She was the wido wof the late Frank Soule, professor in the college of civil engineering in the University of California. Until last year she was the owner of the Bacon block at Twelfth and Washington streets. Her property interests included many downtown parcels of land. The Soule residence was one of the show places in the Linda Vista district, being among the earliest of the big places to be erected on the hills.

"Ever Ready Club" Formed at School

The "Ever Ready Club" a combination of fire patrol, ventilation control, caretakers and disciplinarians, was formed today at Lockwood school, with a standing committee to visit the sick and another committee to advise the faculty what books the students most favor.

The club members assert that their plans are somewhat universal, taking in the care of the buildings, minor student discipline, ventilation, care of the halls and walls, and all other matters which affect the students in any way. The officers will change frequently so as to allow everybody a chance to run things.

Educators at Lockwood assert that the club promises to be one of the most advanced movements in student control yet seen in any Oakland school. The club is composed entirely of seniors.

Two Men Held As Burglar Suspects

George Maiden, alias W. J. Smythe, and Robert R. Roberts, alias Robertson, are being held for investigation by the Oakland police in connection with a number of recent burglaries. They were arrested early this morning after their automobile had crashed into the home of W. Rea, 1440 Hampel street. They told Police Inspectors William Marshall and Tom Pardee that they left their machine with the engine running parked at the corner of Hemple and Woodruff streets. While they were out of the car it started down the hill, traveled a block, ran over the curb and collided with the house.

Food Inspector Harry Smith, making a survey of South Oakland markets, today condemned 900 pounds of corn and 200 of tomatoes alleged to be unfit to eat.

Pushing Back the Wall

"THE vast territory covered by these lines at once strikes the observer, and some conception may be had of the importance of the long distance telephone in the business world of the east."

This was the contemporary comment of a scientific journal on the long distance telephone service of 1890. The "vast territory" ended with Pittsburgh on the west and Washington on the south. Along its frontier stood a wall of silence.

No such barrier now confines the voice of man. To places and to people he has never even seen fly his wire-borne thoughts. Over distances which it would take him days to travel his words speed in an instant.

The 90,000 miles of toll wire of 1890 have grown to more than 4,500,000 miles carrying a daily average of more than 1,600,000 long distance conversations.

Thus has the wall of silence been pushed back to the edges of the continent. In its place is a nation-wide telephone service.

CARTER DEMANDS OPPONENT TELL OF 'ACHIEVEMNTS'

Commissioner Tells Why East Oakland, Alameda Failed to Get Aid.

"Not so long ago my opponent, with a grandiloquent flourish, announced that I was soliciting votes 'under false pretenses' because I hold that the development of our waterfront, which means new industries, new payrolls, new taxable wealth, lower taxes and the facilities to take care of millions of dollars in business, which we are now turning away, was the most important issue before our district and because I held that this development would be speeded as soon as we secured the co-operation of the federal government in the shape of a fe appropriations.

"Naturally I answered this with a few facts and figures and waited for my opponent to come back, as I had a lot more ammunition up my sleeve waiting for him. Apparently he didn't care for the going and I have not heard that he has ever repeated this statement. However, I'm going to give you eople of East Oakland a real instance of 'soliciting votes under false pretenses.' I'm going to show you an absolute false statement and allow you to draw your own conclusions."

With this statement Commissioner Carter made plain to an East Oakland audience at the Tourist hotel last evening exactly why East Oakland and Alameda had failed to receive government aid at a period when it was most needed, through the indifference of the present incumbent in Congress.

"You perhaps have read the famous document of Thirteen Achievements, which my opponent has issued in his plea for re-election. Personally it seems to me that thirteen was the one number which he should have avoided. But be that as it may, No. 7 in the now famous list of achievements reads as follows: 'Secured abolishment of restriction against further spending of government money for dredging of inner harbor above Webster street bridge.'

"Now then, my opponent did nothing of the kind. He was implored by local civic organizations to have the restrictions removed by amendment to the river and harbor bill, which the war department declares is the only way it can be eliminated, but he neglected the request and the East Oakland harbor and Alameda will receive no government aid at a period when most needed. As a matter of fact the entire public career of my opponent indicates that he has not even realized that our harbor is the chief asset of the Eastbay section.

"When a man resorts to misstatement, in which he deliberately claims that he accomplished something which the records indicate that he did not, I hold that that man is soliciting votes under 'false representations.' Along with the explanations of why we failed to secure the naval base, why we failed to secure a new postoffice, why he voted to legalize 16-year-old child labor, why he made the American Legion spend several hundreds of dollars to force him to keep his pledge to them, an explanation of article No. 7 in the document of thirteen achievements I think would be in order."

INSOMUCH as the recent "Item Day" did not clean up the batch of information at hand it will be necessary to repeat. This department aims to get this trivials out of its system or die in the attempt. Here goes:

Gustavo Salvini, eldest son of the famous Tommaso Salvini one of the most famous exponents of the classics, is coming to America for a special tour. He will bring a troupe of twenty-five, Variety states, and play his father's repertoire. The Salvini of today is 59.

> TWENTY SEASONS AGO TODAY

Griffith's picture, "America," is showing in England. It has been cut from twelve to nine reels, to eliminate all matter offensive to the British.

Alice Delysia is to appear for the Selwyns next season in "The Adventurers," written by the Guitry's. It is a comedy drama.

Countess Peggy Hopkins-Joyce-Marner is about to present herself in a new show, report has it, entitled "Naughty But Nice."

Vera Gordon is to be featured in a comedy, "The Golden Spoon," opening in Newark at the end of next month.

Arthur Margetson, leading man for Irene Bordoni in "Little Miss Bluebeard," has sailed for London. He returns next season to resume his role.

> Midgets, Degrees, New Shows, Old Friends

Irving's Imperial Midgets may be short on height but they are long on ingenuity. We read where the troupe was caught in the disastrous tornado that swept eastern Ohio and saved themselves by joining hands—all 25 of them—and having the strong man of the act anchor himself to a lamp post They were cut and bruised but otherwise uninjured.

Louis Bennison and Robert Fisher have been added to the cast of "Marge," being produced by Walter Jordan. Gertrude Vanderbilt of musical comedy fame, has the lead. The piece is by Catherine Chisholm Cushing.

Williams College conferred an honorary degree of Master of Arts on Walter Hampden recently. He is the first actor to be so recognized by the institution.

> FORTY SEASONS AGO TODAY

Meanwhile George Ebey is planning to do "So This Is London" at the Fulton. He also purchased the original production of "The Old Soak" with a view to doing it presently.

John Farrar, editor of The Bookman, has written a play called "Nerves," which will be produced by William A. Brady.

"Simon Called Peter," another Brady production, will not be seen in New York this coming season. Instead it will tour. It was successful in Chicago.

> EXITS AND ENTRANCES

"Mile a Minute Kendall" is going to be revived by Oliver Morosco. This is the play in which Frank Darien scored so heavily and then was replaced with dire effects, his successor not doing so well. Now it's a musical comedy.

Carlyle Moore, the dramatist, committed suicide last month. He was best known as the author of "Stop Thief," "The Unknown Purple," and "Listening In."

Lowell Sherman is out of vaudeville and back in "Morphia," presented at the Eltinge last season and now in Chicago.

Wally Young, former local newspaperman, has signed with the Metro-Goldwyn Company. He did the continuity for Pickford's "Dorothy Vernon."

W. Louis Paine, in private life husband of Mrs. Leslie Carter, and who played at the Fulton during the latter's engagement, has gone into pictures.

"Sweeny Todd, the Barber of Fleet Street, or The String of Pearls," an old English melodrama, has been presented on Broadway under the banners of Wendell Phillips Dodge. The play was originally reviewed by Charles Dickens who said in part, "You cannot afford to miss Sweeny Todd." New York critics think Dickens was spoofing.

"The Blue Bandana" with Sidney Blackmer is to be withdrawn with a view to re-presentation in the fall. The Democratic convention did not turn out to be the boon that New York managers anticipated.

Billie Burke, who made her first success in musical comedy, is to return to it this season. At least Flo Ziegfeld, her husband, is dashing about looking for a suitable vehicle for her.

SPECIAL BY WIRE TO THE TRIBUNE

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Frank Tinney, comedian, and Imogene Wilson, "queen" of the Ziegfeld Follies, have made up. This was dramatically heralded to New York today when Tinney was summoned into court for hitting a newspaper cameraman who had "snapped" him coming out of a restaurant with his arm around Imogene.

Imogene has forgiven Frank for attacking her, as she alleged, and Frank has forgiven Imogene for waging court action against him. And Frank will not sail for Europe next Friday with his wife and son, as he had planned. All this came out during the investigation which followed Tinney's attack on the newspaper photographer.

The photographer happened along just as Tinney and Miss Wilson were emerging from a restaurant on West Fifty-eighth street late Saturday night. Tinney's arm was clasped tightly about Miss Wilson's waist, and they were looking into each other's eyes as they crossed the sidewalk to their car. They were startled from their dreams when the cameraman's flashlight went off. A moment later Tinney had punched the photographer, smashed his camera, and was offering to pay for the damage.

Following Miss Wilson's recent suit against Tinney, which she lost, both declared that all was over between them. Tinney declared he was going to return to his wife and child. He did—for nearly a month.

Miss Hosmer Retains Lead In Net Play

Miss Charlotte Hosmer, recent winner of the Pacific coast women's singles title, continues to hold her lead in the annual women's bay counties tournament now being conducted at Golden Gate park.

Miss Johanna Gunzburger won her last two matches by virtue of her excellent forehand driving, and is now in the semi-finals of the tournament. Both Miss Gunzberger and Miss Hosmer were seeded players and will meet next Saturday to decide which of the two will play in the final matches.

Carolyn Swartz, who with Avery Follett won the doubles at Berkeley, defeated Dorothea Swartz 6-1 and 7-5 in the second round of the upper half and Lois Brieger advanced to the third round with two victories, the first over Mrs. Bobbie Bollinger and the second over Mrs. Dorothy Brown.

Ethel Burkhard, the youthful San Francisco girl, was one of the opponents who succumbed to the prowess of Miss Johanna Gunsberger. Her defeat came in the second round by 6-2, 6-0 scores.

Mrs. Ream Leachman, former Central California singles champion and runner up in the Pacific Coast doubles, won the only match she played in the second round, when she triumphed over Mrs. William Bradford, 6-0, 6-3.

Opposition Develops To Hayward Battles

HAYWARD, Aug. 4.—Opposition to the semi-monthly boxing matches, held in Native Sons' hall under the auspices of the Hayward Athletic club, has been voiced with the result that formal request for prevention of further shows is looked for at a meeting of the city council this week.

Members of the council are known to be divided on the subsubject. Many of the business men and residents of the city will oppose any movement to stop the fights, it is known, on the stand that they are a harmless form of pastime, afford amusement for a large number of men here and stimulate business.

Entries Are Large For Circuit Races

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 4.—So large is the entry list for the Grand Circuit meeting which opens here August 11 and continues through to August 23, that there is a possibility that another day may be required to clean up the program, General Manager Win Kinnan of the Forrest City Livestock & Fair company, announced today.

More than 600 horses are named to go in the stakes and the rainy day stake for two-year-old trotters with an estimated value of $13,000.

Emmett Pare Wins Junior Net Title

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 4.—Emmett Pare of Chicago, won the junior singles title in the clay court tennis tournament for boys and juniors, completed here yesterday, with a 6-2, 6-4, 6-4, victory over Julius Sagalowsky of Indianapolis.

Sagalowsky and Leo Kurzrock, Indianapolis, won the doubles championship in the junior division by defeating Pare and Buster Holloway of Chicago. The scores were 6-4, 5-7, 6-1, 6-1.

Detroit Again Takes Lead in American Race

Ty Cobb's Men Hold 1 Point Margin Over Yanks; Senators Close Third.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—If the American League race becomes much closer the relative standings of the three leaders will have to be measured with a fourth dimension yardstick. Detroit today is back in first place, one point ahead of the Yankees, who, in turn, have a half game advantage over Washington.

Still nursing bruises sustained in St. Louis, the Hugmen attempted to beard the Tiger in his den with dire results. Cobb and his loyal followers threw 42,000 fans into a frenzy of delight by conquering the intruders, 5 to 2. The feature was Hellman's seventh home run of the season.

Sisler's single and McManus' circuit drive were the deciding factors in St. Louis' 3 to 1 victory over Washington. Judge saved the Senators from a shutout with a four baser in the eighth.

Inability to hit when essential caused the downfall of Chicago at the hands of the Athletics, 9 to 3.

The combined efforts of Smith and Shoute limited Boston's hit total to five, as Cleveland bagged a 3 to 2 victory.

Inasmuch as Arthur Nehf was in form, there was nothing for the Cubs to do but accept a 10 to 2 beating from the Giants as gracefully as possible. The defeat cost Chicago second place, which Pittsburgh usurped through a win in Brooklyn.

In the other National League engagement the Pirates sent the Robins home to a tasteless supper on the short end of a 5 to 2 score. Yde registered his eighth straight victory.

'Officer 666' Stirs Laughs at Fulton

The lights outside spelled "'Officer 666,' starring Ruth Renick"—a rather puzzling statement, considering that the Fulton Theater play this week neither stars Miss Renick nor the said "Officer 666." Nevertheless the play is a laugh producer with so many laughs per minute that one really never finishes one before the next one starts.

John G. Fee as Alfred Wilson, the greatest picture expert in the world, and, incidentally, one of the cleverest and nerviest of crooks, really holds the lead, although Norman Field, playing "Travers Gladwin," the bored and thrill-searching millionaire, is in a role which gives him a few opportunities to really act.

Miss Renick is charming in her part of Helen Burton, who plans to elope with the picture expert thief, posing as Travers Gladwin, the millionaire, but the part is a small one and she is seen too little on the stage and heard even less.

John Ivan plays "Officer 666," interpreting all the good humor, density of thought and love of the fickle dollar of the old time Irish "cop." Aside from the fact that he appears in every scene, and that he is responsible for some of the action, the story really deals less with him than with Travers Gladwin and the picture expert.—L. L. T.

Joe Fellows Wins Speedboat Race

SAN PEDRO, Aug. 4.—Joe Fellows' speedboat "Two Fellows" won two out of three heats in the special speedboat "Point Races," held here yesterday under the auspices of the California Yacht club. "Lucky Strike," owned by Alvin H. Franks, took the second heat of 21 miles, making the best time of the day over the course. In 29 minutes, 50 seconds—one-half second ahead of "Two Fellows."

Cecil B. de Mille's "Defiance" lost a propeller blade in the first heat, while Frank Garbutt's "Mystery IV" was unable to compete.

Novak Lowers Own Record on Berkeley Links

GOING out in even par and returning two under par figure. Joe Novak, professional at the Berkeley Country club, negotiated the college city course yesterday with a medal round of 69, two under par.

Novak held the honor of having been the first golfer to play around the course under par, having set his previous low mark of 70 several months ago.

Novak's card had only one six and one five, both being recorded on the first nine while pars and birdies followed one after the other over the "in" holes.

Novak's card:

Declaring that the government of Alameda county was one of the largest corporations in the State and that the Board of Supervisors Leslie, candidate for supervisor from the Fourth district, spoke at a house meeting in Berkeley yesterday.

"With the exception of a few privately owned corporations," Leslie declared, "the government of Alameda county is one of the largest corporate organizations in the state. The Board of Supervisors correspond to the board of directors, which have charge of the destinies of all corporations. It is the board's duty to know the needs of the corporation and to see that it functions in a manner advantageous to its stockholders.

Protection of the farmer was indorsed by Judge Turner, candidate for the assembly and the state market commission was recommended in the thirty-sixth district before the U. P. E. C. society last evening. This activity should have to do with the reduction of tariff in the transporting of products from the producer to consumer. Distribution problems would be solved most practically through the medium of cooperative organizations," Judge Turner said.

Comparing Robert La Follette to Washington and Lincoln, Roy R. Noftz, principal speaker at the La Follette for President meeting held last night in Woodman hall, Ninety-fifth avenue and East Fourteenth street, stated that a great crisis confronted the American people, and urged all those present to use their votes and influence to elect the Wisconsin senator to the presidency.

"In 1776, when the people of this country were oppressed and revolted," said Noftz, a great man arose to lead the people to independence. That man was Washington. Again in 1861 a leader appeared to free the slaves and keep this country unitel. And now in 1924, when perhaps the greatest crisis that the country has ever faced confronts us, we have a man to champion our cause and clean out the evils in Washington. Robert La Follette will be our next President."

Subscriptions were taken to help finance the La Follette campaign in Oakland, and members were signed up to help carry on the actual work. There were about fifty persons present at the meeting.

Rudolph Spreckels, San Francisco capitalist, will stump the state for Senator Robert M. La Follette, it was announced today by Frank Havenner, executive secretary of La Follette's California campaign. Spreckels will deliver his first broadside in San Jose Tuesday night.

Pola Negri In "Lily of Dust" at American

The daughter of a regiment, the toast of a great city, a woman dragged to the depths, but fighting back always for a happiness just out of grasp—such is Pola Negri in her latest picture, "Lily of the Dust," the screen attraction with which the American theater has ushered in Greater Movie season.

The story was suggested by the universally known novel, "The Song of Songs," which tells of almost every plausible experience of love that can come into the range of a woman's life. Pola meets the gamut of emotions with finesse.

In the star's supporting cast are Noah Beery in one of the few polished, dramatic roles he has ever had, and Raymond Griffith in another of his compelling characterizations. Ben Lyon, the new juvenile star, is cast as Pola's real lover.

Other film features are offered in the bill, marked by the return of Owen Sweeten as director of the orchestra.

Agnes Ayres Featured In "Bluff" at Fox

Agnes Ayres and Antonio Moreno in "Bluff" head the new program at the Fox-Oakland theater this week. H. C. Witwer's prize ring series "Fighting Blood," is also represented on the screen by "Beauty and the Feast," with George O'Hara.

"Bluff" is the absorbing story of the struggles of a country girl who tries to bluff New York, the home of bluff itself. How she triumphs, winning fame, fortune and a wealthy husband forms an entertaining contribution.

There are hundreds of laughs and plenty of fast action in the Witwer story, "Beauty and the Feast." Screen snapshots, showing stars of the film world in intimate off-stage scenes, the latest Fox News and other film productions are included in the offerings.

On the stage Anthony Linden, flute virtuoso and Ellen James, harp soloist, are heard in special numbers with the Fox-Oakland concert orchestra conducted by Lo Forti. The Lafayettes, Apache dancers, appear for their final week.

Baby Peggy In "Law Forbids" on State Bill

Gripping Screen Story Heads Vaudeville Bill During Greater Movie Week.

A powerful and compelling drama of Broadway's lights and loves is "The Law Forbids," featuring the screen's smallest star, Baby Peggy, and a cast including Robert Ellis, Elinore Fair, and Joseph Dowling, that opened a three-day engagement at the State theater yesterday as the feature screen attraction of the "Greater Movie Season."

As the central figure in a real gripping story poignant with human interest Baby Peggy has the best role of her brief career.

The vaudeville program is headed by Beeman & Grace in "You'll Be Surprised," a clever offering. Others on the same bill are Freddie Pierce with "Songs and Stories"; Berry, Brock and Beery in "The Nicest Girl in Town"; the Lee Sisters in "Harmony Land" and The Ella Bard Trio.

Wednesday brings to the State a big comedy program with "Hold Your Breath," featuring Dorothy DeVore and Walter Hiers, and the latest Larry Semon comedy, "The Midnight Cabaret," with five acts of vaudeville.

A CAMPAIGN BIOGRAPHY.

The campaign biography of Calvin Coolidge is very different. A reviewer declares that it "violates all the canons for such productions," and is so thrown off his stride in the effort to give a resume for the book column that he describes his emotions as "distressing."

For the book, it is found, doesn't represent the candidate as a composite of George Washington, Cato the elder and Pericles, with a sprinkling of the traits of St. Stephen the martyr; and there is no fearful dwelling upon his "stern toil and stoic endurance of hardship during boyhood," not even a hint of life in a log cabin. There are no anecdotes of his whipping school bullies, or overcoming fractious colts; neither is it shown that at an early age he was recognized as a potential statesman, all the neighbors seeing it as plain as day; himself, however not falling in with the idea, and blushingly putting aside the hints of everybody that he was destined for greatness.

It is further represented that the book is grossly defective in not making it clear that, since the dawn of manhood, his heart has beat simultaneously for the poor laborer, the honest farmer, and all and sundry of the millions of his fellow citizens entitled to vote, no matter what they want.

While the book may be deficient in particulars more or less characteristic of the conventional campaign biography, it sets forth in quite impressive fashion the outstanding traits of a man who has risen to the highest pinnacle, and who, while putting forth no ingratiating effort to do so, has impressed himself upon the American people as few in the Presidential office, or aspirants for it, have done.

Those who would know Calvin Coolidge more intimately will gain such insight by getting this book and reading it.

INSANITY AND URBAN LIFE.

Is the complexity of our urban life developing us into a nation of idiots and imbeciles?

Dr. Charles H. Mayo, reputed "doctor of doctors," is said to be inclined to the belief that there is something in this contention, and that something must be done about it.

The famous physician recently declared: "We have doubled the number of insane in thirty years. In a period when medicine has made such splendid progress as a curative for the body, we find insanity increasing at a surprising rate. The study of mental afflictions has been just as intensive as the study of bodily afflictions and, broadly speaking, progress has been equal. . . . This leads to but one conclusion: that insanity has grown with our civilization."

Ernest Brennecke, investigating for the New York World, learns that in 1900 there were only eight persons out of every 10,000 in the United States "confined in institutions for mental diseases." In 1920 the proportion had risen to twenty-two, or two out of every thousand. Within the same span of time, he continues, the actual number of insane had increased from 41,000 to 223,000. And the increase is still going on.

GLASS MOUNTAIN.

Mt. St. Helena, standing at the head of Napa Valley, is an extinct volcano. The ranges of hills bounding the valley are of volcanic origin, largely composed of lava, basalt, pumice, volcanic ash.

About three miles from the town of St. Helena rises a solitary peak called Glass Mountain. This peak is apparently disconnected from the range, but a close examination shows a low ridge connecting it with the adjoining hills. On the northwest slope lies a great bed of volcanic ash. On this ash bed, great quantities of obsidian, or volcanic glass, have been found. This glass is coated with the ash of a gray color, but when broken displays shining black glass within. Some small blocks of a few pounds weight, when broken, show fine threads of spun glass. The pieces are mostly small.

For many years the Indians came to this ash bed and made arrow heads of the obsidian. Their arrows and spear points resemble the flint arrows and spears found in the prehistoric Ohio Valley. We know not how many centuries they came to Glass Mountain, but pieces of broken obsidian arrow heads are found scattered through the fields of Napa Valley.

Over forty years ago the last Indian camped on Glass Mountain a few days, making arrow heads, but the sound of the hammer of "Lo, the poor Indian," is heard there no more.

FEALTY OF TWO PROFESSORS.

Two University of California professors have considered the relative importance of their positions when compared with the presidencies of large universities and have decided in favor of the professorships.

Dr. Herbert E. Bolton recently decided that he "owed it to his professorship" to remain in Berkeley as a scholar and teacher of history, instead of accepting the office of president of the University of Texas.

A similar opinion was voiced by Dr. David P. Barrows after his resignation from the presidency of the University of California last year. Since resuming his duties as a professor, Dr. Barrows has had occasion to restate his conclusions. In denying reports that he was slated for the post of Governor-General of the Philippine Islands he has reaffirmed the decision that his professorship equals executive honors and position in importance.

OAKLAND A MUSICAL CENTER.

The right of the Eastbay to recognition among the musical centers of the nation continues annually to re-establish itself. Schedules for the coming season of concerts and grand opera not only hold forth promises of a high order for local music lovers, but indicate a confidence in a sustained demand for the best of musical offerings which concert managers now have justifiedly acquired.

By the person in touch with the Eastbay's musical history, such pictures as these will be recalled: An afternoon in the Macdonough Theater with Ignace Paderewski playing. Paderewski was already established as the premier pianoforte artist of the generation. Yet the theater, built for 1500 auditors, held for the master exactly forty-two! And the man in the box office could have furnished the further information that a number of these had entered complimentarily.

Again, Professor J. Fred Wolle, one of the prominent musical pedagogues of musical America, is directing an orchestra at the University of California. It is as good an orchestra as exists on the coast, made up of capable instrumentalists, directed by a man adept at conductorship, appearing in a community alleged to be "cultured." Yet the audiences dwindle perceptibly from concert to concert until the faith and patience of even the Oakland capitalist who has underwritten them flag; he withdraws and the concerts are discontinued.

But, quickly to reassure ourselves, let us remember that both of these were incidents not of yesterday or of yesteryear, but of a double decade ago. They represent the rudimentary culture, or lack of it, upon which a solid superstructure subsequently has been raised. The Eastbay attracts annually to its hospitality the best of the world's musical artists, who no longer go away disappointed either with the support it offers or with the artistic appreciation which it has afforded them.

The musical menu of the approaching season is more extensive and richer than ever before, but there is little doubt of its being found acceptable. A double series of subscription concerts, symphony and chamber music recitals, grand opera, innumerable scattered series and single appearances which this year will be initiated, several visits by world-famous dancers and their troups. All of these will come to the Eastbay and be readily assimilated.

This year is, indeed, to be a test for us musically speaking. As the season approaches there seems no probability of our failing to pass it.

The man who got away with a redhot stove has long been cited as the extreme in banditry, but he has a good second in the robber who held up a hot dog stand in San Diego, and carried away loot in nickels weighing forty-eight pounds. It was not only a feat of daring, but of athletic prowess as well.

PUNISHMENT TO FIT THE CRIME.

The Los Angeles judge who sentenced a speeding motorist to copy out the traffic accident stories from every paper in the city for six months may or may not have been reading Dante's Inferno. At any rate, he has adopted Dante's scheme of fitting the punishment to the crime. It is a scheme so good and with such promise of effectiveness that it might well be tried in other cases and on other types of the law-breaker or the social nuisance.

That neighbor who runs his phonograph nightly after all others in his vicinity are asleep, should he not be sentenced to a solid week of "Limehouse Blues," played with a steel needle at his bedside? That politician who fills the air with carefully platitudinous bunk, should he not be sent up for a year of solid oratory, to be supplied by colleagues of his own sapless persuasion? Those young things who write so many letters to matinee and film heroes, should they not be set down to a bushel basket of such billets with instructions to classify the declarations? Those auditors who talk loudly in the theatre, is there any punishment adequate for them?

THE CONNING TOWER

Ballad of the Practical Radical.

When Henry Harris was a lad,
And poor as poor could be,
He held the rich should share their wealth
With the community.
He was an ardent Socialist,
As any one could see.
(And mighty proud of it, too.)

It was his Aim in Life, he vowed,
To Liberate the Masses,
He studied Marx, and twice a week
Attended Rand School classes.
He went with only radical lads
And Socialistic lasses.
(Rather exclusive is what he was.)

Day in, day out, would Henry read
His knowledge to enhance
Of Trusts, and Public Ownership,
The Socialist Advance,
The Evils of Plutocracy,
The Curse of High Finance.
(And, particularly, the Distribution of Wealth.)

Now Henry's father was a man
Of simple tastes and few.
To see his Henry studying so
It made him feel quite blue,
He'd often ask him, "Henry, boy,
What's all this getting you?"
(Henry always was a puzzle to his father.)

"What's all this stuyding for?" said he,
"And where'll it bring you to?"
But Henry only answered, "Pop,
Just wait till I get through,
And don't ask no more questions, this
Here stuff's too deep for you."
(And it was, too.)

But to his mother Henry was
A pride and eke a joy,
She'd say, "Now, father, don't you go
And critize the boy,
Our Hen's got talent, he is not
No common hoi polloi!"
(Mrs. H. was very proud of her boy.)

Poor Mr. H! what could that kind
But simple parent say?
Poor Mr. H. had nothing in An Intellectual Way,
Poor Mr. H., who only had
The household bills to pay.
(Poor Mr. H.)

Years passed and Henry labored on,
With a devotion rare,
To Realize his Goal in Life,
(Alas for the affair!)
The plutocrats persistently
Declined their cash to share.
("The notion is too ridiculous," said one plutocrat.)

That they might always so decline
Was now our Hero's fear.
"I'm getting old," said he, "I've got
To think of my Career.
"I guess I'd better go to work,"
He murmured with a tear.
("Better late than never, Henry," said old Mr. H.)

He went to work for Flim & Flam,
The well-known banking Co.,
And was so versed in High Finance,
He'd studied that, you know,
They took him in the partnership,
In thirty years or so.
(Quite an honor for Henry, wasn't it?)

And Henry is a banker now,
And smokes a fat cigar,
He has a fashionable wife,
He has a motor car,
He has a private yacht, he has
A strictly private bar.
(He has the right idea.)

For Henry is a banker now
And rich as rich can be,
And why he ought to share his wealth
Is more than he can see,
And if you mention Marx to him,
"And who 's Marx?" says he.

THE MORAL.

Observe the Moral, ere you lay
These verses on the shelf:
If you are poor, and plutocrats
Refuse to share their pelf,
Just follow Henry's lead and be
A plutocrat yourself.

ALBERT SILVERMAN.

Mr. Frank Polk beat Candidate Davis at golf the other day, and the scores were not published. The Herald-Tribune thinks, with justice, that this is a mistake. For if Mr. Davis goes around in 100 or more, his golfing will get him more votes than if his prowess indicated that he had spent too much time driving and putting. The dub vote would elect anybody.

Yet here is Mr. Coolidge, who plays no golf, and who, as far as we know, plays no games of any sort. The vote of those who participate in no sport whatever would elect anybody, also.

This country, winner of the Olympics, probably has a greater number and a larger percentage of vicarious athletes than any other nation. In our largest crowds—those who attend fights and baseball games—the percentage of participants in sports is low. With the exception of Turkish baths, you see the softest looking men at fights and baseball games. Tennis galleries, our observation has been, are the most vigorous and robust looking audiences in all sport.

Even so careful a writer as the Times cinema critic says "Angel Clare, whom she believes has read of her fall from grace."

While they are filming Hardy, they should not overlook "The Mayor of Casterbridge." There is more drama in the first chapter alone than in a dozen ordinary novels.

Answering a question about Death Valley, a San Francisco daily says: "The soil is destitute of vegetation, the temperature rises to 122 degrees F. in the shade."

. . . a morbid curiosity which characterizes at least everybody.—Utica Press.

This means you.

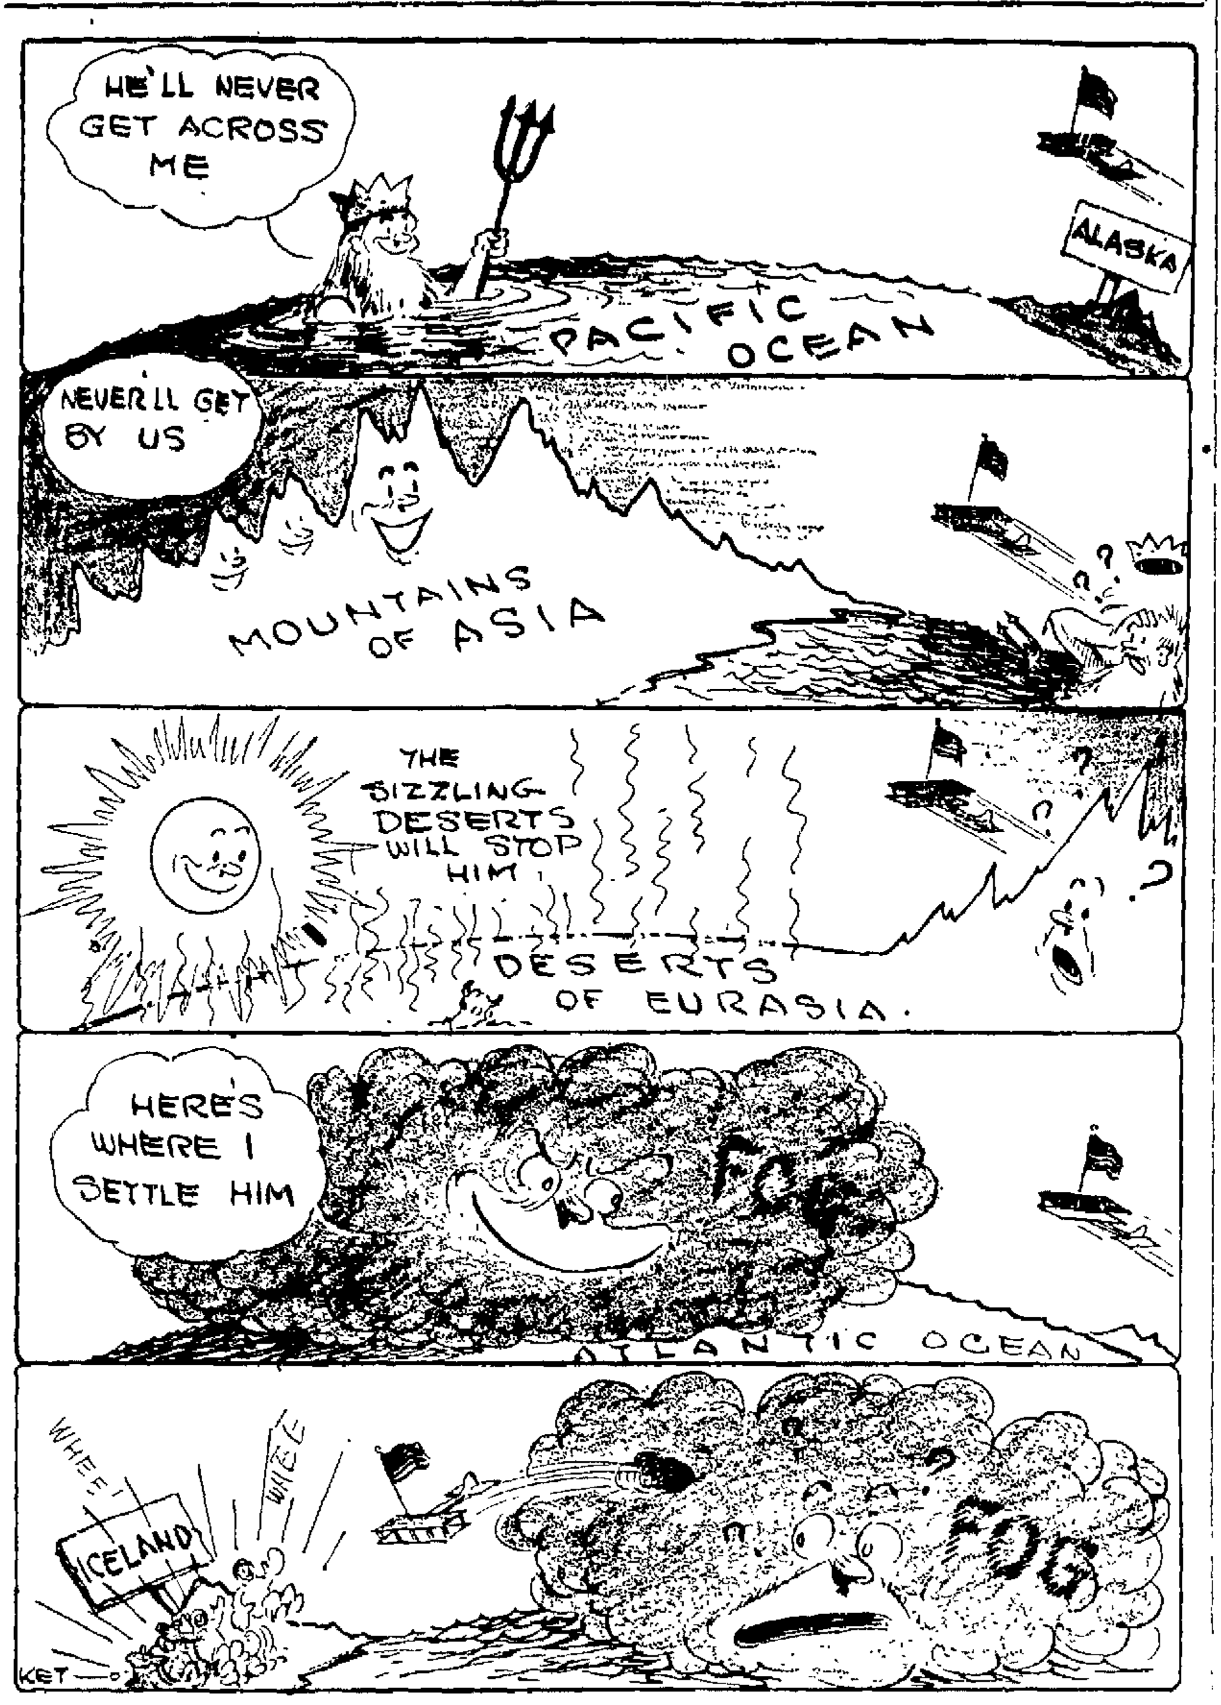
THAT 'ROUND THE WORLD FLIGHT.



THE NATIONAL PRESS

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: "No decade in the history of the world has been so full of war and the evil that men do as the one which closed yesterday (July 28.) It was just 10 years ago that Austria-Hungary declared war on Serbia, and for four and a half years thereafter the world was occupied with war, either as combatant or spectator. Men, munitions, money, even our civilization itself, were thrown into the cauldron, and at the end, when the fire was withdrawn and the pot had cooled, there was left a tangle of toppled thrones, a welter of carnage and the ashes of empires. For all the great cost, what has the world brought?"

Kansas City Star: "Men and women who fought at Armageddon in 1912 will not enjoy reading that the name, "Progressive," has been chosen officially to designate the La Follette movement of 1924. The Progressive party under Roosevelt's leadership stood for certain principles which are not those that La Follette's group is standing for today. It was identified with a program remote from that of today's radicals. For millions who took part in that historic campaign of twelve years ago there are treasured associations connected with the Progressive name which are violated in the use made of it by the group that convened in Cleveland early this month."

Boston Transcript: "Americans have closely watched the developments in the Brazilian insurrection, their interest being founded not only in a general desire for peace on the American continents, but because a peculiar sympathy is felt for the southern republic that sprang from purely monarchic beginnings. It is therefore with gratification that they can read the last despatches from the Brazilian war office that the 'legal' troops continue to dislodge the Sao Paulo insurgents and move steadily forward."

Philadelphia Ledger: "Senator Arthur Capper, farm bloc leader, is having considerable woe these July days out in Kansas. He is having opposition to his renomination by the Republicans for the Senate. A son of the late Senator Ingalls is running this professional friend of the farmer up and down the section lines. He may or may not defeat the Senator, but the Senator gives certain evidences of alarm. In one of his several farm publications and over his own fac-simile signature Senator Capper gives President Coolidge strong indorsement."

Christian Science Monitor: "As the Boston Herald says, the word "sciosophy," recently coined by David Starr Jordan to designate 'shadow-wisdom'—that is, a display of superficial knowledge not derived from tested and verified human experience—'smells of the stamping mill.' Yet there may be some points in its favor, and perhaps it is somewhat more readily analyzed then sciolism, which means much the same. But even if it is, is this a reason for coining a new word."

Kansas City Times: "The La Follette followers contend 'the interests' have been manipulating the big rise in wheat. Paid the weather man to steer the rains away from Canada and cut the Canadian crop. Also got influence to cut down the European yield. Smart fellows, the interests."

SPIRIT of the STATE PRESS

About thirty grape growers of the Oroville district gathered yesterday at Ralp Butler's orchard in Thermalito and listened to an interesting talk on grape packing methods by H. E. Jacobs of the viticultural department of the University of California. Mr. Jacobs emphasized the importance of quality grapes, if proper prices were to be received.—Oroville Register.

On her trip up the coast this week from Mare Island to Bremerton the ammunition ship Nitro is to stop for an hour or more to allow the crew to dump overboard some ammunition that has about outlived its usefulness. The powder, etc., was offered for sale some time ago, but none of the firms would put in a bid that was acceptable to the government.—Vallejo News.

Menlo Park was the setting Wednesday night for another liquor raid, resulting this time in the arrest of three alleged vendors of the contraband poison. The frequency and success of such raids in the Menlo Park region reveals a bootleg condition that is extremely disgraceful. The greatest value of the raids is the revelation of this condition. Apparently they have not led to the application of the proper remedy.—Palo Alto Times.

Many a "raging forest fire" is nothing more serious than a creeping flame in the underbrush, doing considerably more good than harm. —Red Bluff News.

City Health Officer Hall has given us a glowing 'certificate of character for our filtered water, and has done it in words which flow as pure and copious from his free and willing pen as flows the clear crystal stream through the late sedimentation basin. Well and good. For what water we are getting, smells and all, let us raise up our voices in paeans of praise to high heaven, forgetting even the $3,000,000 we spent for it.—Sacramento Union.

The Monterey peninsula is contributing its quota toward the home building that makes for the welfare of the American family. Probably nowhere else in California in an area of similar population is a steadier building program under way, unforced by boom or bluster, natural, inevitable and ever-increasing. — Monterey Peninsula Herald.

President Coolidge belongs to an age that is passing, just as surely as the cowboy West which Roosevelt knew will soon be no more. Our children today are not being brought up to use their hands. In fact, the trend of legislation is against a practical, rough-and-ready education of the growing boy.—Watsonville Register.

Paradise growers are jubilant over the price brought by the first shipment of pears which were sent from the ridge a few days ago to Los Angeles. The fruit brought $120 a ton, netting the grower $90 a ton. This is said to be the highest price paid for pears from that section.—Chico Enterprise.

No hunter should go afield today (August 1) under the impression that the deer season has opened. Only in some of the coast range counties has the season opened, the opening in the Sierra Nevada counties, including Nevada, being deferred to September 1.—Grass Valley Union.

POETS' CORNER

SORROWS OF A SERAPH.

I have watched the birth of a thousand worlds,
I have lived for a million years,
I have read the Book of Eternity
By the light of invisible spheres.

A sign that should give me rest.
Yet ever I seek for the Ultimate Height,
Though weary of the quest.

The bright stars whirl round the burning suns,
The great suns follows their kings,
Yet ever I seek for the Central Orb,
For the Soul of all Animate Things.

Ever swaying the mightiest minds,
Are secret, mysterious powers,
Ever above the crowning peak,
A loftier summit towers.

No heaven so high but an angel's wings,
To a higher heaven may soar,
No depth so low, but a demon's soul,
May sink to a depth still lower.

The further we seek the deeper we go,
The less we are sure of the things we know,
Some have gone so far in the realms of thought,

SECRET PLACES.

To some appeals the song
The dashing breakers sing,
While others love the peace
The silent deserts bring;
Men find adventure's lure
Upon untrodden ways,
Untravelled paths and trails
Claim all my summer days.

At dawn I touch dewdrops
Still glistening on the flowers,
And hear the song of birds
Burst forth from aerial towers,
And when the fleecy clouds
Drift overhead and pass,
The giant redwoods throw
Col dshadows on the grass.

I know where sunbeams dance
Upon a mirrored brook,
Where tender ferns abide
Safe, cloistered in some nook,
Friendly little chipmunks
Quite intimate can be,
And leaping trout seek flies
All unaware of me

In nature's secret places
All life unfolds quietly,
I feel the Unseen Power
Surround, encompass me;
In strange and unsought nooks
I am content to stay
In adoration—mute—
Enthralled by nature's sway.

PERSONAL HEALTH SERVICE

By DR. W. A. BRADY.

FRUIT FOR THE BABY.

Every baby whose food is pasteurized or boiled should be given orange juice, or peach juice, or pineapple juice, or tomato juice, from the sixth or eighth week. Begin with a tablespoonful of the clear juice daily and gradually increase the quantity to about four tablespoonfuls daily. It is best given in between the first and second milk feedings. The orange should be fresh and sweet. Tomato juice may be that of fresh tomato or canned tomato, of course without vinegar or other condiment or seasoning. The value of fruit juice in infant feeding is three-fold. It prevents scurvy—a condition likely to occur when a baby's diet is pasteurized milk, condensed milk or any of the manufactured foods; it prevents constipation, and it improves the baby's digestion.

By the time a baby is 8 months of age he should be ready to try his digestion on some fresh vegetables, too. But let the first trial be a very cautious one and only a wee spoonful of the pulp of the steamed or otherwise thoroughly cooked vegetable, and generally the pulp should first be run through a sieve. Any and every vegetable may be given, if it is prepared in this way. Once a day is often enough. This early addition of vegetable to the baby's diet not only prevents or overcomes constipation but probably develops a vigorous digestive capacity which stands the baby in good stead in later childhood. Weak, undeveloped digestive organs are too often the result of too prolonged restriction to a liquid diet.

Week by week the quantity of stewed or steamed vegetable pulp may be increased, provided the baby takes it without any trouble, and when he is 10 months old about two tablespoonfuls may be given daily. At the age of 1 year a baby ought to be taking his vegetable about the same as grownups. But not so with respect to fruit.

It is generally best to cook all the fruit a baby or older child takes until the age of 4 years. Stewed peaches, stewed prunes, cooked dates, apricots, cooked figs, apples stewed or baked, baked banana or stewed pear may be given a baby over 10 months of age. These fruits should be carefully freed of skins or any stringy material. Raw fruit should be withheld until the child is over 3 years of age, as a rule. The use of fruit as a preventive and remedy for constipation is well known to everyone.

From the age of 8 months, about three times a week a baby should receive some fresh meat broth, and later meat gravy thickened with flour. Meat broth is of some value as a laxative item, aside from its food value.

For children over a year old a small glass of orange juice taken first thing in the morning on waking is often the only laxative required. This serves as well for children as the famous morning hot or cold pint of water with a pinch of salt in it (if desired) does for many elderly subjects of constipation.

The body of a newborn infant is 70 per cent water, about 58 per cent of an adults's weight is water. The very young baby requires one-fifth of his own weight of water daily. A comparatively large amount of water is essential for the baby's health in general, particularly for the kidney function and the digestion. Water is a laxative. In hot weather particularly the baby needs water in addition to that taken with food.

SERVICE.

As we journey down life's pathway,
As we travel down the years,
Do we fill each heart with gladness,
De wo wipe another's tears?
Do we gather up the treasure
That is thrashed by wind and rain,
Do we give in fullest measure,
To the heart subdued by pain?

Do we salvage all the wreckage,
Torn and tossed by winter's blast,
Ye shall gather in the jewels,
They shall be our own at last.

If thy lips speak golden silence,
And thy heart bring golden peace,
Give and unto you is given,
Thus shall your joys increase.
If thy heart is schooled in meekness,
And thy soul bring forth but good,
Thou shalt reap the Golden Harvest,

LEGION BAN ON S.F. POST IS REVOKED

By Special Wire to The TRIBUNE

SANTA CRUZ, Aug. 4.—At a session of the state executive committee of the American Legion held in the St. George Hotel here yesterday, Daylight Post of San Francisco was officially reinstated upon the recommendation of State Department Commander Collins.

Daylight Post was suspended some months ago owing to its action against the adjusted compensation bill.

In his recommendation for the reinstatement of Daylight Post, Department Commander Collins stated that, "Inasmuch as this bill has now become a law, this incident in the program of the American Legion is closed, and the influences of campaign activity should not be carried forward.

Approximately 2500 delegates had registered by 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon for the conclave which opened here this morning. Today the registration is between 4000 and 5000, with possibility of yet further additions.

This morning's session was devoted to the reports of state department officers. At noon United States Senator Shortridge addressed the Legionnaires. The invocation was rendered by State Chaplain Rev. George A. Hartman. Informal receptions will be held for visiting delegates at the Hotel St. George and at Casa Del Rey. The prize-winning boys band from Modesto will furnish music for an entertainment this evening.

Governor Friend W. Richardson, Noel Patterson, post commander of Santa Cruz, Thomas L. Blanchard, representing the state commander of the G. A. R.; Senator Hiram W. Johnson, Senator Samuel Shortridge, Robert F. Smith, representing National Commander John R. Quinn, and several local speakers including Mayor John B. Maher, were also on today's program.

The selection of the state commander for the coming year is regarded as the most important item on the business calendar of the four day's convention. Several bay city posts are supporting Dr. John F. Slavich, former commander of Oakland Post No. 5. Other delegations are supporting Fred F. Bebergall, former state adjutant.

Today's business session largely devoted to the reports of the credentials committee, the introduction of army, navy and marine representatives and others from the American Red Cross, Salvation Army and the Knights of Columbus, and the hearing of the departmental adjutant's report.

Oakland delegates attending the convention are: Ira Hazeltine, Al Chase, Harry A. Nelson, John W. Collier, Fred B. Melmann, Dr. John W. Slavich, Rufus M. Whaley, Anson G. Purchase, Joe Spran, Harold D. Weber, Walter D. Frickstad, F. H. Wainright, C. Stanley Wood, Uno Nordeen, Lowell H. Street, Monroe Friedman, Elmer Zollner, John C. Edwards, Stuart B. Bowes, Bester Robinson, W. R. Foss, Harry Kendal, M. C. Lutz, A. E. Gustason, Jean F. Hadley, Sidney Silverstein, Dr. J. H. Adams, Ralph Cline, Gus Bour, Paul Helsey, George Engs, W. J. Norris, Waldo Colby, Myron E. Reed, James C. Luttrell, Peter Schmidt, Roy Raymond, Walter Elliason, Fred Allis, W. T. Hopkins, West Robinson, Will Curtis, Seith T. Bailey.

The delegates are: John W. Collier, Harry A. Nelson, Richard M. Lyman, Jr., Al Chase, W. R. Foss, Ira Hazeltine, John Edwards, Joe Fainer, W. T. Hopkins.

The alternates are: Harold D. Webber, James K. Fiske, J. C. Beacock, Uno Nordeen, W. A. Wiedmaier, T. O. Smallcomb, J. F. Hadley, Henry Greenrose, Lowell H. Street, Seth T. Bailey.

Delegates Arrive for 100 Per Cent Club Meet

More than fifty delegates to the annual convention of the International Hundred Per Cent Clubs which opens for a four-day session here tomorrow morning, have already registered at the information bureau at the Hotel Oakland.

Among the prominent members of the organization who have already arrived are Clifford A. Kohe, international president, from Los Angeles, who will preside at the convention, and the first international president of the organization, Ted Daken of Seattle. Presidents and past-presidents from the following cities, as well as delegates, are also in the city: Los Angeles, San Diego, Denver, Tacoma, Portland, Seattle, Omaha and Vancouver, B. C.

The delegates registered by the middle of the afternoon today will be taken on a tour of the Eastbay in automobiles as guests of local club members. Informal dinners will be held this evening at various places in Oakland.

Tomorrow will be devoted to the business sessions and to a banquet at the Cliff House at San Francisco. Wednesday evening a beach party is planned to be held at Cottage Baths in Alameda. Thursday an automobile tour of the Eastbay is planned, followed by a dinner at the Sequoyah Country Club. The convention will formally close Friday evening with a dinner-dance at the Hotel Claremont.

DEFICIENCY TAX TIME EXTENDED

An extension of time has been granted by the Bureau of Internal Revenue on the payment of tax deficiencies, John P. McLaughlin, Internal Revenue Collector, reported today.

The authority to grant extensions contained in the Revenue Act of 1924, only applies to deficiencies in income taxes imposed by the same act and in income and profits taxes imposed by the Revenue Acts of 1916, 1917, 1918 and 1921, assessed after June 2, 1924, when the act went into effect, McLaughlin added.

Application for such extensions must be made, under oath on a special form and must be filed with the collector of Internal Revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives.

PER CAPITA FIRE LOSS IS $3.34 HERE

Chief Sam Short Reports Two Big Blazes Swelled Damage in Oakland to $1,004.826.60 in Year

The per capita fire loss of Oakland during the last fiscal year was $3.34 as against $5 for the whole United States, and Oakland's loss would have been smaller except for two big fires, according to the annual report of the Oakland fire prevention bureau, made by Fire Chief Sam Short to Commissioner Frank Colbourn.

Chief Short's report, which also notes the progress of the fire department and comments on the recent accidents and sick list, says:

"This report shows a fire loss of $1004,826.60, for the period, on a total valuation of $27,702,093.50, which is regrettable, but caused by the several large fires with which the department had to contend, notably the Union Construction company and Cole school. On an estimated population of 300,000 the per capita loss would be approximately $3.34. In 1923 the fire losses throughout the United States were $508,000,000, or a per capita loss of approximately $5.00. These latter figures are given not in justification of our own losses but merely as a comparison, as unfortunately both figures are too great and they emphasize the need of extreme fire preventative measures and enlightenment of the people on this great problem.

"The department was unable to purchase much needed fire apparatus during the year, and I sincerely hope that this matter will be given serious consideration during the ensuing fiscal year in order to meet the present dire needs of the city.

"Two additional fire houses are now nearly completed, at Fiftieth avenue and Bond street and Seventy-third avenue and Trenor street, respectively, and these will be ready for occupancy within a short time. To provide apparatus for these houses two 750 gallon pumping engines and a city service truck have been contracted for, the cost of which will be met out of the 1924-25 appropriation.

"The department purchased 10,000 feet of 2 3-4 fire hose. There was also expended approximately $18,000 for the installation of 112 new fire hydrants throughout the city, the total number of which is now 1914.

"The personnel of the department at the close of the fiscal year numbered 347, including office secretary, hydrant inspector, a junior stenographer and three machinists. The time lost through sick leaves numbered 2965 days as compared with 1897 days for the preceding period."

West Oakland Home Children Bury Dog Chum

Curley is dead.

Curley was the dog that attached himself to the children of the West Oakland Home, one of the affiliated agencies of the Community Chest, at their summer outing in Crow Canyon a year ago.

This year Curley went with the children to revisit his former haunts, and was killed by an automobile. He was buried with honors at a service which was attended by all of the sixty wards of the Chest now sojourning at their camp in Crow Canyon.

A nearby rancher, has contributed a dog of mingled breeds which answered to the name of Spot.

It was announced by West Oakland Home officials that the children will remain in the camp until school opens and that the outing is to be an annual one, beginning at the close of school in June and lasting all summer. New dormitories and a recreation building have been completed this year and added to the group of camp buildings. All eating, sleeping and cooking is now done under a roof. All buildings are carefully screened but otherwise left open to admit a full flood of fresh air. Nearly three score boys and girls who live during the winter at the Home's headquarters in West Oakland are at the camp.

According to West Oakland Home leaders the operation of the institution has been greatly facilitated since the Community Chest began to operate. Money contributed by the public to the annual Chest drive provides for the maintenance of the institution. New buildings are financed by other means.

URGE LODI TO BUY PARK PROPERTY

LODI, Aug. 4.—Buy the Smith Lake property for a recreation park—this is the slogan of City Engineer L. F. Barzellotti. He urged it several years ago when the big property could have been purchased cheaply. He is again to the fore with his project and enlisting many in the movement. The city need it, he states, for the young people and he has a plan to improve and beautify the grounds with tennis courts, baseball diamond, slides, swimming baths and boating. The lake itself covers more than 100 acres. It is two miles from Lodi, bordering on the Mokelumne river.

WIFE FREED OF ATTEMPT TO KILL MATE

Mrs. Macomber Acquitted of Assault On Husband By Insufficiency of Evidence; Applause Leads to Rebuke

Fannie G. Macomber, who for the past five months has been held in jail on charges of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to murder, growing out of the shooting of her husband A. Y. Macomber former Oakland policeman, was freed by Superior Judge Lincoln S. Church today. This action was taken on motion of District Attorney Frank M. Shay on the grounds of the insufficiency of the evidence.

The dismissal of the case was accompanied by a threat on the part of Judge Church to jail Gerard Havens, father of the defendant, and several of her friends who applauded the court's action in discharging Mrs. Macomber.

Mrs. Macomber was arrested last March following the shooting of Macomber, who was patroling his beat in the vicinity of the Piedmont station at Fortieth street. The policeman's life was saved by several books in his pocket which deflected the bullet. Macomber is considerably older than his wife, she still being in her teens and he in his thirties and the father of two children, one of whom is eleven years old.

The wife on the witness stand told a story of alleged abuse at the hands of her husband which had its climax in the shooting on the night in question. They were separated at the time, the testimony developed.

The applause broke out when Judge Church said "Defendant discharged." On the court's order Bailiff Al Smith brought Havens to the bench. He told Judge Church of his relationship to the defendant and of his happiness over her being freed and the court allow him to go after lecturing him as to court decorum.

In asking for the dismissal of the charge Shay told the court that all the evidence in the possession of the prosecution had been produced and that he had learned that the jury stood 10 to 2 for acquittal. He said that the defendant has been in jail for five months awaiting trial.

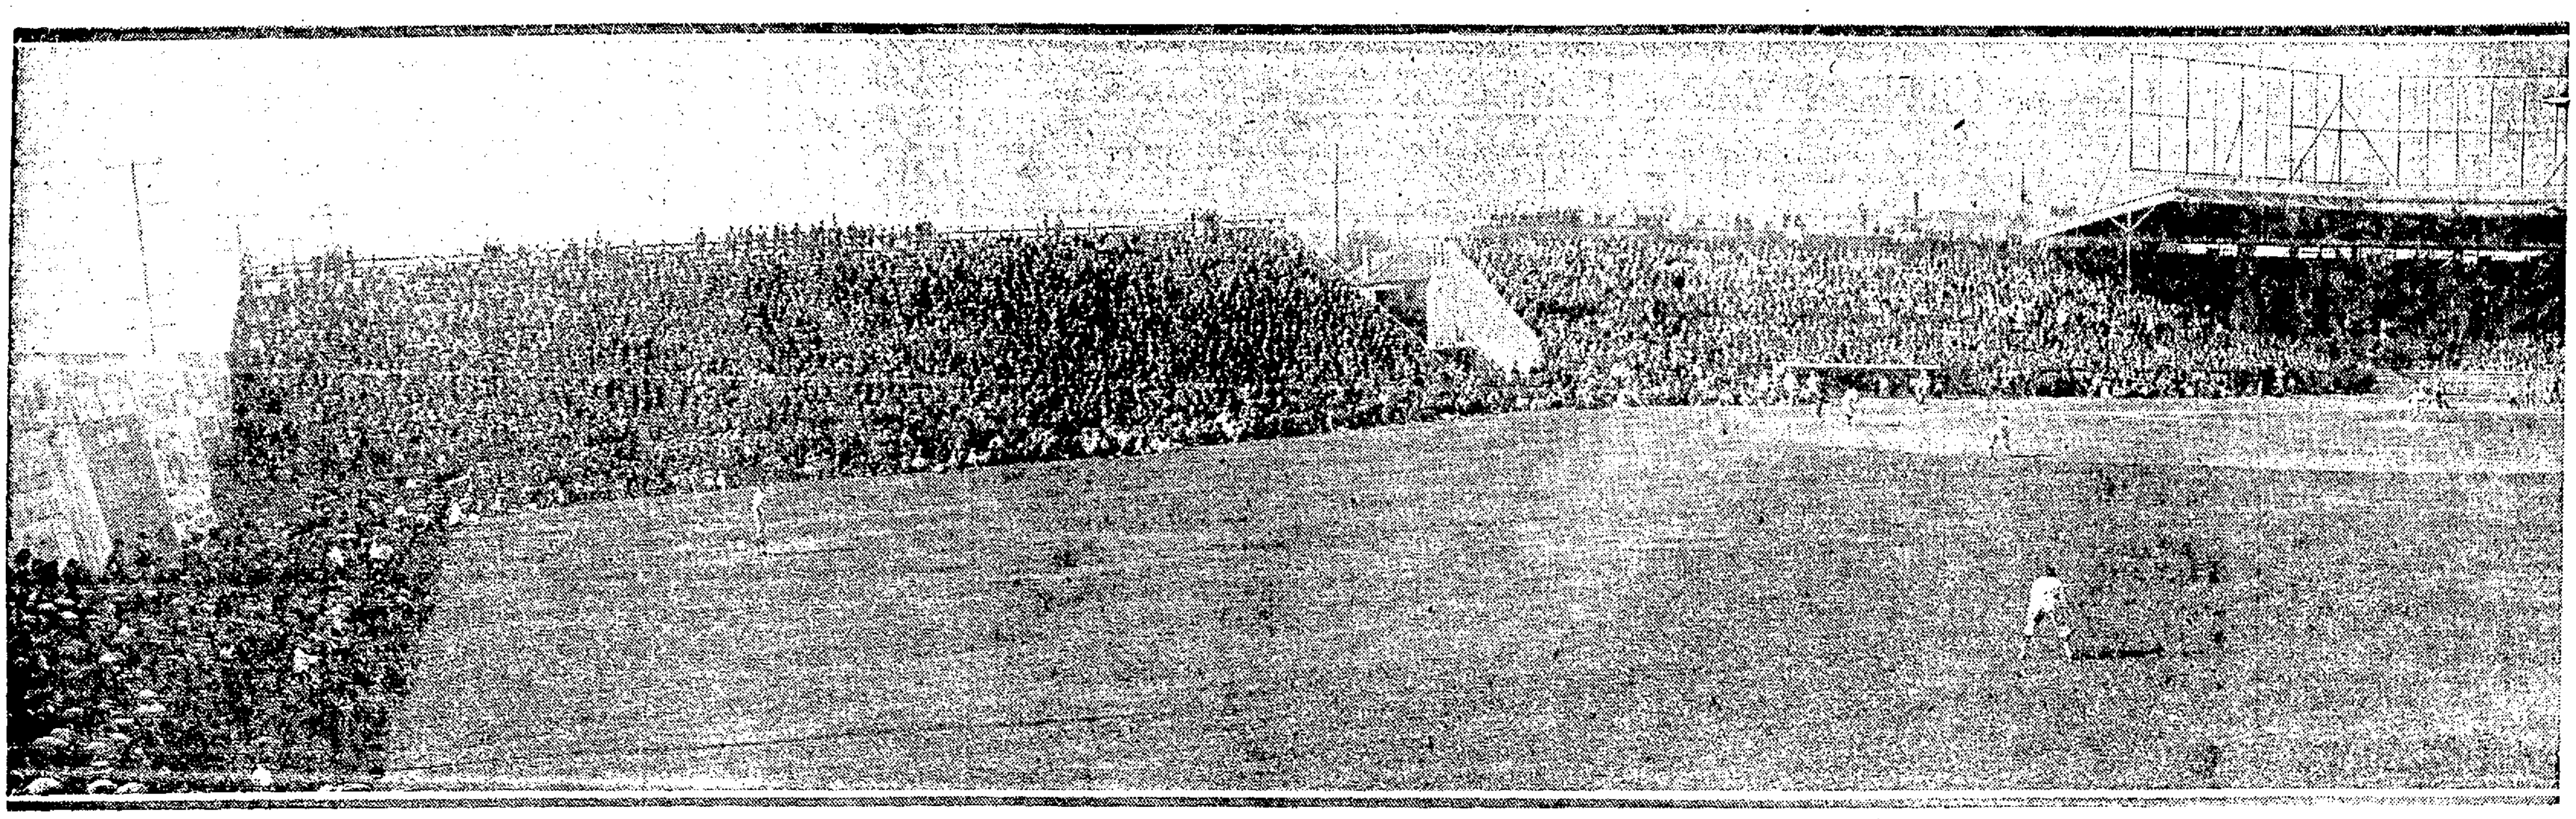
Attendance Records Were Broken During the Week, Proving Oakland to Be the Greatest Minor League City in Baseball



OAKLAND BREAKS COAST LEAGUE ATTENDANCE RECORDS

BOEHLER HURLED TWO WINS OVER CHAMPS IN SEASON'S BIG SERIES

Seals Were Outplayed in Every Department of Game By Locals; Pete Read Was a Hero; Only One Base Was Stolen by San Francisco Runners.

By EDDIE MURPHY.

Getting an even break in the two Sunday games which were played before the largest turnout of fans to witness two Sunday games at any park in the history of the Coast League, the Oaks made it five wins in their seven games series with the San Francisco Seals. To George Boehler, the man who, according to the San Francisco boys, is without a heart when in the pinches, again demonstrated that he has a good enough heart to beat the champions of the league. He did it earlier in the week when he won a twelve inning pitching duel, and yesterday afternoon he let them down with seven scattered hits to get credit for a 6 to 1 win. His win will long be remembered by the Oakland fans as it was registered before the largest crowd in the history of the local park.

(Pincers) Kunz pitched the morning game, and although his team was blanked 4 to 0 by the Seals, he really deserved a better fate, as he allowed only six hits, the same number as did Marty Griffin, the youthful Seal flinger, who looked like the real goods. For Kunz to win, he had to hold the Seals scoreless all nine innings, as his teammates could not get any runs off Griffin. At that all four runs off Kunz were in the second inning. One was out when Bert Ellison hit a dinky fly over first for a double.

A clean single by Kilduff scored Ellison, and Rhyne's pop fly back of the pitching box hit a soft spot and did not bounce to Brubaker. It went for a hit. An error filled the bags, and Griffin drove in two runs with a single. The last run scored when Kelly hoisted a sacrifice fly to Cather.

Seals Are Helpless In The Afternoon Game.

The afternoon game was the thriller of the day, as it was a great pitching duel between George Boehler and Pat Shea who started for the Seals. Boehler had the better of the argument all the way and most of the afternoon the Seals looked pitiful trying to hit his shoots. One run was made in the first six innings and that went to the Oaks in the second frame when with two out, Al Maderas hit a double to the left field fence, a double in any park even with ground rules. Pete Read drove a single through Bert Ellison and Maderas scored.

Boehler allowed four hits in the first six frames and fanned seven. He made it eight strikeouts for the game by fanning Tim Hendryx for the third time in the seventh inning. Hendryx was the first batter to face Boehler in the seventh. Ellison drove a hit through short and Kilduff skied out. Rhyne hit to Brubaker who booted the ball and men were on third and first. Valla went to bat for Yelle and delivered a hit to center, and one scored, but Edwin Goebel, who replaced Ted Cather, who was injured in the morning game, made a beautiful peg to third base to get Rhyne who tried to advance from first.

Goebel Made Good With Hit In Afternoon Pinch.

Goebel was somewhat of a hero in this afternoon session as he killed a chance for a rally with that beautiful peg, and later drove in the run that put the Oaks out in front again. It happened in the last of the seventh. Arlett reached second when Kelly dropped his long fly to center. It was a fine display of speed for the husky big Oak who slid into the bag just ahead of Kelly's throw. LaFayette was an infield out, but Goebel crashed the first pitched ball on a line to left field and Arlett crossed the plate amid cheers. Goebel took second when Waner booted the ball. Before Goebel got his hit, some fans shouted at Manager Ivan Howard to yank him for a pinch-hitter, but Ivan had confidence in the [illegible] fellow and was rewarded for it.

The eighth was the big one for the Oaks. Boehler's long fly to center fell between the outfielders for a double. Adams skied out and Brubaker put the pitcher on third with a hit to left. Guisto was hit by a pitched ball to fill the bases. Schorr had batted for Shea in the seals' half of the eighth, so Williams was the hurler to shoot Louie on the foot with a ball. Arlett drove a hit through Kilduff to score two, and LaFayette hit to left to score Guisto and Arlett.

Mulligan got a double into the crowd and Hendryx walked with none out in the ninth, and a wild pitch advanced them. Ellison fouled to Read. Kilduff hit to Boehler who tossed the batter out at first and Louie Guisto, sizing up the situation, rushed across the diamond, chasing Hendryx toward third. Mulligan promptly dashed for home. Louie cut the ball to Read, who threw to Maderas as Mulligan rushed back toward third and Maderas returned the ball to Read, who ran down Mulligan at third base. It was an exciting ending to a great ball game and series.

Oaks Outplayed and Outgamed the Seals.

The boys from San Francisco who shouted about "bad hops" being the downfall of their Seals, have little to alibi on if they will dig into the records for the seven games played. The Oaks outhit, outfielded, outplayed and outgamed the champions of 1923. Ivan Howard's athletes batted .303 for the series, while the Seals hit but .229. The locals fielded .957 and the Seals .949.

Only once did the Oaks change pitchers in a ball game, that being when McCarren batted for Malls, who had allowed only seven hits in eight innings. The Great Walter was not taken out because he was being hit hard. He lost a tough one. George Boehler showed plenty of heart by beating the champs two times.

To Little Giant Pete Read too much credit cannot be given for the Oaks winning the series. He did not do a great deal with the willow, but he certainly held up the pitchers in wonderful fashion. He was a stone wall at the plate all during the series and the Seal found the Little Giant there to block him when he tried to make the plate on a close peg.

Pete Read Was One Of Leading Heroes.

Thirteen times the Seals tried to steal bases and only once did they succeed. Yesterday afternoon Read pegged out the four runners who tried to steal second base on him. The men were Waner, Mulligan, Rhyne and Kilduff.

Ray Brubaker pegged Bert Ellison out at the plate when he tried to score on Rhyne's fielder's choice in the fourth inning. The Little Giant squatted all over the plate and took Ellison's weight of nearly 200 pounds like a punching bag would a blow from Jack Dempsey. He was not budged the least by the impact.

It was a great series, particularly for the outcome of it and there is more joy than ever in the camp of Ivan Howard, who joined his brother Del and the other members of the Howard families in a [illegible] at Del's home.

Oakland Elks Win Opening League Game

Oaks Wallop Two Senator Hurlers For Eighteen Safe Hits.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 4.—The Oakland Elks baseball team started the league season here yesterday by overwhelmingly defeating the Sacramento nine 17 to 2.

The Oakland team jumped off to a three run lead in their first time at bat, due to the wildness of Daily, Sacramento pitcher, and one hit. In an attempt to tie the score, the Senators fell two runs shy but managed to put over one of their tallies in their half. Their other run came in the seventh inning when "Speed" Martin eased up and allowed two bingles when he had a safe lead.

Martin hurled a five hit game to open the season and kept his hits all spread out with the exception of the seventh inning, when the Solons got two. His control was excellent and he sent seven back to the bench on strike outs and went the entire route without issuing a free ticket. He was also one of the stars at the bat with a double and a single.

The Oakland sluggers set to work on Daily and bunched eighteen hits to score runs in all except three innings to drive him to the showers.

Wien hurled the remainder of the game, but the Oakland boys found him just as easy as his predecessor and continued scoring runs. The great offensive damage was done when they scored four runs in both the third and seventh innings.

Denny Wille, "Tillie" Ferreria and "Dutch" Holstrom, with a trio of hits each, were close second for the Oakland Elks hitting honors.

The next Elk league games will see Oakland at Alameda and San Francisco at Sacramento.

Angels Make Triple Play Against Vernon

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—The first triple play made here this season featured the double header divided yesterday between Los Angeles and Vernon.

The triple play came in the seventh inning of the opener, when Slade, Vernon shortstop, singled to left with McDowell and Griffin on base. Griffin overran second and was trapped when Payne, Angel moundsman, cut off Hood's throw and tossed to McAuley. McAuley's throw to Jenkins nailed McDowell at the plate, while Slade was out trying to take second, Jenkins to Payne to Beck.

Vernon took the series five games to two.

Convicts Score 19 Runs in First Frame

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 4.—Nineteen runs were made in the first inning, including two homers and a single by Men Jensen, first baseman of the Utah State prison baseball team here yesterday in a game with the Fort Douglas army team. The prison won, 37 to 4. Both teams are considered good semi-professionals. This is believed to be a record.

Earl McNeely Goes in Deal To Washington

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 4.—Earl McNeely, young centerfielder of the Sacramento Coast League baseball league has been transferred to the Washington American League team and has been ordered to join the Senators immediately, according to word received here from Manager Pick of the Sacramento team.

According to Pick, three players will be turned over to the Sacramento team in exchange for McNeely, one to report at once and the other two at the close of the major league season.

Brazill Rivals Jim Middleton For Job

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 4.—Frank Brazill, hustling Beaver third baseman, loomed today as a very formidable rival of Jimmie Middleton for the job of managing the Portland Baseball club.

Seven straight victories over Sacramento under Acting Manager Brazill have restored the Beavers to the good graces of local fans.

Portland got good pitching all week and the team hustled every inning.

OAKLAND MANAGEMENT HANDLES BIG CROWDS IN AN EFFICIENT MANNER

San Francisco and Los Angeles Out-distanced By Oakland in Baseball Enthusiasm; Local Officials Acquit Themselves With Credit in the Pinch.

By BOB SHAND.

Some dull afternoon when there is nothing else doing the publicity bureau of the Chamber of Commerce might tip off Mister World that Oakland, California, while not the largest city in the state, is the greatest baseball city in the West, the said West including every city, town, hamlet and village west of the major league cities. San Francisco and Los Angeles will be furnished complete proof upon application. There are also those who will furnish proof that the Oakland baseball club is the best aggregation of players in the Pacific Coast League. Thousands of index fingers are today tired from pointing with pride to the record established by the local athletes.

In one week's series of seven games seventy-eight thousand eight hundred and thirty-nine (78,839) cash customers passed through the turnstiles at the Oakland ball park to see the Oaks and Seals do their stuff. Add to that total several thousand firemen, policemen, ladies and kiddies who are on the free list, and the total will jump to approximately 85,000.

13,255 Fans Witness The Afternoon Game.

Saturday afternoon 12,460 people paid their way into the game and for the first time in the history of the league the customers exceeded the seating capacity of a ball park on an ordinary Saturday. Sunday morning at ten bells there were 14,683 fans in the lot awaiting the cry of 'playball' and in the afternoon at 3 o'clock 13,255 crowded the grandstand and bleachers and overflowed into the field.

President Harry Williams, of the Coast League, guardian of the records, is authority for the statement that these figures constitute a minor league record. They also compare very favorably with attendance marks at major league games.

J. Cal. Ewing Smiles For Several Reasons.

A few years ago when J. Cal Ewing wanted a better break on the concession privileges at Recreation Park, San Francisco, where the Oaks used to play most of their "home" games, Doc Strub told Cal to take what was offered him or make other arrangements. J. Cal decided to make other arrangements. He scheduled the local games for the local park and left San Francisco without continuous ball. At that time Strub was credited with saying that it would be only a matter of time before Ewing would discover his mistake and come crawling back to the San Francisco yard. Cal quit crawling when he was two years of age, according to Uncle Frank Ish.

Five Per Cent Came From Other Side of Bay.

Granted that several hundred San Francisco fans attended the recent series a close check of the customers from across the bay proves that 95 per cent of the clientele belonged in the Eastbay. And in the 5 per cent that San Francisco furnished were some highly undesirable customers who ace their way through life betting on the games. They didn't get very far with their betting activities at the Emeryville park, but they were trying just the same.

Oakland has again proved that she can stand alone, baseballically and otherwise. Local fans have set a mark for other cities to shoot at, but it will probably be many a long year before 72,839 cash customers see one series.

Del and Herbie Did Fine Work in Series.

The management of the Oakland club deserves credit for the manner in which the crowds were handled. With the biggest attendance in the history of the park at yesterday afternoon's game there was no confusion. An efficient ushering system placed the fans in the seats their tickets called for and any minor differences that arose between the hired help and the clientele were quickly ironed out by Business Manager Del Howard, who has the happy knack of being able to placate the most irascible customer. It was a big week for Del, but he kept his feet on the ground and made many a friend for the ball club. Secretary Herbie McFarlin also acquitted himself with credit. Herbie sold every available inch of seating space, but he never made a mistake. President J. Cal Ewing was also on the job at every game assisting in the handling of the big crowds.

Vive-President Can't Get Seat in the Stand.

As an example of the efficient manner in which the situation was handled. Half an hour before the afternoon game was scheduled to commence Frank Ish, vice-president of the club approached Del Howard and asked for a seat.

"Stick an extra chair in a box some place," suggested Ish. "I want to see this ball game."

"Nothing doing, Frank," chirped Del. "I'm really awfully sorry, but you should have notified me in advance that you were coming and I would have provided for you. It wouldn't be fair to put in an extra seat and block the view of a cash customer."

Ish accepted the situation like a good sport and was headed for a place in the outfield when he was invited to share a seat in the press box.

Pimples

BLOOD impurities are pumped by the heart into the face. That is what causes that grainy appearance, that muddiness, sallowness, pimples, blackheads, acne, red spots, and that impossible "something" which no face cream, massage, or face powder can cover up or beautify! The foundation for a beautiful skin simply is not there, and no face treatment can give it to you. But increase your red-blood-cells,—and quickly the ruby tint of purity begins to glow in the cheeks, the complexion becomes venus-like and immaculate! Try it. It will do it every time. S. S. S. builds the red-blood-cells you need for a beautiful complexion. Begin using S. S. S. at once, and give yourself what you have been working for, for years.

Lake Merritt Race Set For Admission Day

Twelfth Annual Tribune Marathon Will Attract Large Field of Amateurs.

By DOUG. MONTELL.

Five weeks from tomorrow, September 9, the pick of the amateur athletes of the bay region will face the starter's gun prepared for the annual running classic of the year in the Eastbay—the twelfth annual Oakland TRIBUNE Merritt marathon.

Once around Lake Merritt, the scene of the best efforts of the runners of over a decade, will swing the representatives of clubs, colleges, schools, together with a host of unattached runners who will compete this year, as they have for the past eleven years, for the sheer love of the sport, all seeking the honors of breasting the tape a winner in a running classic, which in years gone by has claimed the best that many star distance athletes, whose names have gone down in the annals of sport, have had to give.

For years the Lake Merritt race attracted the pick of the amateur distance runners of the state, despite the fact that the annual going was twice around the lake—a real test of endurance.

Then, two years ago, the distance was shortened to once around making the race a test over three and one-eighth miles still severe still requiring hours of careful training, but putting it within reach of a larger number of younger runners who had previously feared to tackle it.

INCREASED ENTRIES.

The popularity of the move in shortening the distance of the annual TRIBUNE Merritt marathon was immediately testified to by the increased number who signed entry blanks, particularly from the Eastbay high school field.

Last year, realizing that over the shorter distance they they had an equal chance of placing well up at the front against the best of the club and college trained athletes, the high school runners entered in increasing numbers and their performances in the race showed the result of systematic training.

This year the high school field will contribute an even larger share of the entries with competition among the various high schools of the Eastbay centering on capturing team honors in the race.

Already numerous high school athletes, still enjoying the vacation period, have started training for the classic and with five weeks before the date of the race these athletes should be in the pink of condition by Admission Day.

OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

While the Merritt marathon will naturally arouse keener interest among the athletes of this side of the bay, San Francisco distance runners, as well as numerous out of town entries, will undoubtedly be on hand to vie with the best of Oakland's runners.

To those runners who have competed in previous TRIBUNE Merritt marathons advice to start training early—AT ONCE—is unnecessary. Experience is a great teacher and those who ran the race last year or the year before full well know that the jaunt of once around the lake is not a picnic, but a race requiring training over the actual course, daily training, with a view to being at top form September 9.

There will be runners entering the race this year for the first time, newcomers who will seek to wrest honors away from the veterans of previous years.

These runners will do well to profit by the experience of those who have preceded them—start training at once.

Five weeks is all too short a time for those who have not been in training and the necessity of getting down to business early is most important.

GORMAN VISITS VALLEJO.

VALLEJO, Aug. 4.—Eddie Gorman of the Sacramento Coast League club visited here over the week-end. Gorman has recovered from his recent illness and will play with Sacramento next week.

Uses Putter In Jest; Makes A Hole-in-One

W. D. MASON, playing on the links of the Berkeley Country club yesterday, registered one of the most unique shots in the history of the course, a hole-in-one with a putter.

Playing with W. D. Bray, Mason teed off the 160-yard seventeenth with his putter in a spirit of jest. But the ball was straight, negotiating the narrow fairway between the two traps and on into the hole.

Idora Paddlers Beat Stockton In Dual Meet

Competing in a dual meet under the auspices of the Central California Swimming league yesterday afternoon at Idora Park, the merman of the Idora Swimming club handed the Stockton paddlers a decisive defeat by a score of 52 to 25.

The feature race of the day was provided in the backstroke where Claud Zent, star dorsal style swimmer of the Stockton team went down to defeat at the hands of Ike Kelpie of Idora

Oaklander to Ride In National Meet

FRESNO, Aug 4 — Johnny O'Donnell of Oakland won the Junior Cycling event in the State Championship races at Fresno yesterday, when he ran up a total of 15 points O'Donnell and Drysdale, the winner of the senior race, will be sent to Buffalo to compete in the National races on September 5 and 6

Mescal Is Winner In L. A. Golf Play

LOS ANGELES, Aug 4—Johnny Mescal retained his title as Los Angeles city golf champion by defeating W. G. Wagner, 5 and 4 in the final thirty-six-hole match of the municipal championship tourney here yesterday.

Field and Stream

Henry Grigsby of Napa brought in a wonderful five-pointer from the Dry Creek district the opening day of the deer season.

William Tilden Wins Singles Title at L. A.

Marion Williams Captures Women's Championship in Straight Sets.

LOS ANGELES, Aug 4—The final matches of the annual southern California tennis tournament here yesterdayo offered an excellent brand of tennis, the feature match resulting in a victory for William T Tilden, national singles champion, over Alfred Chaplin Jr. of Boston, 2-6, 6 4, 6-2.

In the first set Tilden was a bit wild, Chapin breaking through the champion's service, taking the set [illegible] margin of 6-2. Tilden then began to hit his stride and drove through his opponent's defense. His fine placements which kept Chapin on the dead run from one side of the court to the other gradually wore down the youthful New Englander.

The champion was hard pressed in the early part of the match, but later warmed up and drove through his opponent's defense at will, piling up point after point with terrific backhand drives

Miss Marion Williams of La Jolla won the women's singles title by defeating Mrs. F. H. Whatley, Los Angeles 6-4, 6-4

The men's doubles championship went to Roland Roberts and Wallace Bates, San Francisco, by virtue of their victory over Alfred Chapin Jr, Boston, and C Miles Reinke, Los Angeles, 8-6, 7-5, 6-0.

Bradshaw Harrison, San Francisco, and J. Goeb of Los Angeles won the title in the junior doubles Harrison was also victorious in the junior singles

In the women's doubles, Mrs. May Bundy, former national women's singles champion, and Mrs. F. H. Whatley were the title winners, while in the mixed doubles Miss Williams and Wallace Bates defeated their opponents in straight sets.

High Lights Of Oaks and Seals Series

If there is a better pitcher in the P. C. L. than George Boehler in his present form Oakland fans would like to look him over. Boehler, since he gained control, is the most effective pitcher in the big western circuit.

George dropped Hendryx three times on strikes in the afternoon game and sent Kelly back twice.

Two of the Oakland victories were turned in by Boehler. Earl Kunz split even with one defeat and one victory.

Because the Seals had been complaining about bad hops all week local fans took great pleasure in calling Eddie Mulligan "Bad Hops Eddie."

Valla was under the weather but came through with a pinch hit in that hectic afternoon affair.

One bad inning spelled defeat for Kunz in the morning. Marty Griffin sailed along smoothly and shut out our gang.

Lefty Williams is said to think highly of his ability so the fans nicknamed him "Chesty." He didn't feel so chesty after he went to work in the p m. combat

Eddie Mulligan had a terrible week. He can play much better ball.

The Beavers have some kind of a trophy coming. They dropped six out of seven to the Seals and then took seven in a row from the Senators. Brazil will naturally think he is a swell manager" like Ivan Howard now.

The Oaks play Vernon in the south this week. Results will be awaited with keen interest here

When Bert Ellison lifted a high foul into the right field bleachers in the afternoon a fan tried to snare the ball with his straw beany When he looked for the ball all he found was a hole.

The Angels lost five out of seven to the Tigers and are deep in the cellar. The Bees and Indians broke even in eight games.

Wilshire Tourney Starts Tomorrow

LOS ANGELES, Aug 4.—The annual invitation golf tournament of the Wilshire Country club opens here tomorrow morning with an expected entry list of 356 players, including many scratch and low handicap men

Qualifying rounds, lasting two days, begin early tomorrow with match play opening Thursday. Defeated eights will follow Friday, while semi-finals are to be played Saturday. Sunday will bring the tournament to a climax with final matches in all flights.

Billiard Notes

The third round of the three-cushion billiard tournament will start at Wright's Thirteenth street billiard parlor tonight, when King, a 16-point man, meets Rucker, a 20-pointer. The match will start a 8 o'clock.

Marc Cotton will open a two weeks' stay at the Oakland billiard parlor tonight, during which he will meet all comers in three-cushion matches. Tonight he will have as his opponent Benneweg. The match will consist of 35 points

HAGEN, KIRKWOOD WIN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—By turning in a best ball of 70, Walter Hagen, British open champion, and Joe Kirkwood was an exhibition match from Mike Brady and Jack Dowling at the Engineers' course Sunday. Hagen and Kirkwood won two to one.

Pathfinder Is Easy Winner in Trophy Classic

The Pathfinder, sailed by its owner, Tom Pigkersgill, had little trouble in winning the Times-Star trophy for Aeolian yachts on the San Francisco Bay channel course yesterday. The winner finished fully twelve minutes ahead of the Marvis, piloted by W. Silver, which took the second place honors

The real race took place between the Marvis and Fred Grician's Dauntless in a battle for second place, as the Pathfinder led the field from the start. The winner sailed with a ten minute handicap, the Rascal, which was slated to be the scratch boat did not appear for the race.

Handicaps, actual and corrected times were:

OLD-TIME GOLD CAMP SITE NOW UNDER RESERVOIR

Water Behind New Butt Valley Dam of Great Western Power Is Rising.

Fifteen hundred acres of land, where once a lively mining camp flourished, now is under water in Butt Valley, which is seven miles below Lake Almanor, the Plumas county reservoir of the Great Western Power company of California. There are 37,500 acre feet of water stored behind the recently completed dam, the company announced today, and this is the high water mark for storage this year. The demands of the Caribou and Las Plumas power plants will necessitate the use of stored water from Butt Valley at a more rapid rate from now on, and the 50,000 acre feet capacity of the reservoir will not be reached " is year. When it is full, this storage basin will cover 1600 acres.

The Butt Valley dam, finished several months ago after eight months construction work involving the employment of hundreds of men, increased the capacity of the valley, for storage purposes, from 1500 acre feet to 50,000 acre feet. Three hundred thousand yards of material and great quantities of rip-rap were used in its building. The dam is 1200 feet long and is thrown across the lower end of the valley, formerly used as meadow land and for mining locations. It is of massive hydaulic fill type and a reinforced concrete spillway, with a capacity of ten times the maximum recorded flow in the valley, provides ample security.

Rising waters in Butt Valley within the past three weeks have covered for the first time, land of historic interest, which was noisy with placer mining operations in the early 70s. Until 1921 there stood, on the site of the present reservoir, mining camp buildings and a hotel, famous in that locality during the old placer days. Fire then claimed the surviving relics of the golden era and water to turn the wheels of modern industry, all through northern and central California, now has risen to cover the ashes.

The Great Western Power company had to rebuild five miles of road for Plumas county because construction of the Butt Valley dam resulted in the flooding of the former county road in that section. The water now in the valley came largely from the Lake Almanor water shed. It will be used first at Caribou and later at Las Plumas.

Oil Struck At Craig, Colorado

CRAIG, Colo., Aug. 4.—Oil was struck on the Senator T. S. Hogan well on the Iles structure, 25 miles south of here, today. The oil was struck at a depth of 3,372.5 feet. Considerable oil was brought up in the bailer and the oil rose 90 feet in the uncased hole.

The control heads were put on the well and it will be drilled deeper into the sands as it is now only six inches in the Dakota sands.

No estimate can be made as to the probable production of the well until it is cased and drilled deeper.

Labor Banks Planned In Many Coast Cities

SPOKANE, Aug. 4.—Organized under the supervision of the Brotherhood Investment company of Cleveland, the Pacific Brotherhood Investment company consolidating the projected brotherhood chain of banks in the Northwest.

The Brotherhood bank in Spokane opened for business August 1, 1922, with resources of less than $200,000. To provide for other banks in Tacoma, Portland and other coast cities, the Pacific Brotherhood Investment company has been organized, 51 per cent of its common stock being owned by the Brotherhood Investment Company of Cleveland, which is the parent organization through which all of the brotherhood banks have been organized.

Besides its work of coordinating the policies and operation of the different banks, the Pacific Brotherhood Investment Company will participate in the underwriting of bond issues, and will do a general investment and security business with the members of organized labor and the public in general.

Steel and Electrics in New High; Pacific Oil Get Above 50 Again; Byllesby Buys Sierra Power Co. Corn Annexes Another 3½ Cents

By H. S. SCOTT.

The California oil stocks made a brave effort to head a bull market in San Francisco and New York today, but gave the job up before noon. As it was the majority of the big leaders held their own and Pacific, Standard of California and General Petroleum made fractional gains. Pacific got above 50 again for the first time in many weeks, selling at 60¼ in the early portion of the New York Stock Exchange session, while Standard climbed above 60. In San Francisco Pacific got as high as 49¾ bid and closed at noon a half-point lower. Standard was bid up to 59¾ in the local markets. The industrials were strong again and there was activity among the bank stocks. Utility stocks and bonds were unchanged.

The bull movement in the New York market today entered upon its ninth week. The initial demand embraced the oils, rails, motors and industrial specialties, gains of a point or so being recorded by Union Pacific, General Electric and Maxwell Motors "A." Colorado Fuel moved up fractionally to a new 1924 high. Sales for the day were 1,250,000 shares.

General Electric moved up 1⅝ to 271¾, a record high for all time, and Pittsburgh & West Virginia, Chino Copper and Pierce Arrow preferred sold at their highest prices of the year. Gains of a point or more were registered by Delaware & Hudson, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, National Lead and Mathieson Alkali. S. S. Kresge broke 13 points.

Foreign exchanges opened strong and then eased slightly with trading restricted because of the bank holiday in London.

With the allies in agreement on the reparations question, the market witnessed the traditional "selling on the good news," giving prices an irregular appearance. General Electric extended its gain to nearly 6 points and Pittsburgh & West Virginia 2⅝, while American Radiator, Fleischmann, Pere Marquette preferred, Chesapeake & Ohio and Wheeling & Lake Erie made new 1924 high records. Good buying also was noted in Associated Drygoods, Postum Cereal and U. S. Industrial Alcohol up a point or more. The Commercial Solvents issues extended their losses to 7 points each and Federal Light and Traction fell one point to a new 1924 low at 76. Nickel Plate, American Can, Philadelphia and Reading Coal & Iron lost a point or more on profit-taking. Call money opened at 2 per cent.

Prices stiffened in the early afternoon when General Electric was boosted up 11 points to 281. United States Steel common crossed 109, and American Can climbed to a new high price for the year. Good buying also was noted in the tobacco group, the gains ranging from 1 to 2½ points, with Schulte Stores at a new top.

All deliveries of corn reached a new high price record for the season in Chicago today. Adverse crop reports and smallness of rural offerings to arrive were the chief bullish factors. After opening at one cent decline to ½c advance, December $1.03 to 1.03½, the market scored sharp general gains, more than 3½c in some cases.

Purchase of the capital stock of the Sierra and San Francisco Power Company of California by H. M. Byllesby & Company of Chicago and New York from the California Railway and Power Company was announced today. Ownership or control of the California Railway & Power Company or the Market Street Railway Company of San Francisco was not included.

The property includes water power plants of 60,000 horsepower on the Stanislaus river in Tuolumne county, Cal., a steam turbine power house of 36,000 horsepower in San Francisco, and a high voltage transmission system 850 miles long. It is operated under lease at present by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, and is physically connected with two properties of the Byllesby Company, the Western States Gas & Electric Company near Stockton and the Coast Valleys Gas & Electric Company in the Salinas valley. The Market street Railway of San Francisco is supplied power from this system.

On the basis of reports from its French and English representatives, the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of New York has issued a comprehensive survey of industrial and business conditions in France and Great Britain illustrating the trend of pig iron and steel production, shipbuilding, shipping, freight traffic, foreign trade prices, cost of living, unemployment, imports and exports in the two countries named since 1920.

A series of charts illustrate the month-by-month developments in all of these activities. The curve for export of manufactured goods, for example, shows that in the case of the United Kingdom exports of manufactured goods are still about 30 per cent below the 1913 level while in the case of France exports of manufactured commodities in the first quarter of 1924 reached a peak of 168 per cent above the 1913 base. This movement has been unarrested since the second quarter of 1923.

In foreign trade as a whole, based on weight of imports and exports, trade of the United Kingdom shows a rise from 36,000,000 metric tons in the first quarter of 1920 to 40,000,000 metric tons at the beginning of this year, since which time there has been a slight recession. French trade measured on the same basis in the same period has increased from 13,000,000 metric tons to 21,000,000 metric tons. As a whole the charts present a complete picture of industrial and business development.

The Federal Reserve Bank statements indicate that no change has come in the monetary and banking situation. Earnings assets showed a sizeable increase but this was due primarily to heavy open market purchases of short term government paper. An increase in discounts was too small to be of any particular significance. Summer dullness in the trade was reflected in another drop in circulation.

The monthly bulletin issued by the New York Federal Reserve bank emphasizes the important effect that the paying off of indebtedness by member banks has had on open market rates. When the member banks extinguished their borrowings at the reserve bank in June, the price of money fell rapidly. Gold imports then became the basis for increased reserves and credit resources instead of going to pay off debts at the central bank. Gold is still coming in, although not at so rapid a rate and commercial demands for credit have not expanded sufficiently to alter the situation.

Expansion in the volume of new financing last week to about $87,000,000, contrasted with $36,000,000 in the preceding week, furnished additional outlet for investment funds. Employment of Wall Street's surplus cash in the earlier period was confined chiefly to outstanding issues and figured in this advance to new high ground for the year.

Re-entry of the Canadian National Railways into the New York market with new bond issues aggregating $30,000,000, and a Canadian Pacific $10,000,000 debenture stock offer today testified to the attractiveness of investment conditions. Recent financing by these roads has been done in the home market.

The agreement reached by the inter-allied conference, expected to pave the way for execution of the Dawes plan, flotation of a German loan and a general European settlement of the reparations problem, strengthened French and Belgian obligations. The French government's issues closed the week by attaining new peak prices for the year.

Progress in railroad merger negotiations, notably the Van Sweringens' plan to consolidate Erie, Pere Marquette and Chesapeake & Ohio with their enlarged "Nickel Plate" system, revived interest in the bonds of these roads. Erie convertibles were especially active on reports that an attractive plan for exchanging securities was being workwed out. New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and International Great Northern liens were aided by the withdrawal of objections to the merger of these roads with the Missouri Pacific. Activity of Baltimore & Ohio mortgages was linked with reports that preparations were under way for the sale of another $35,000,000 refunding bond issue.

Corporate financing in July totaled $275,833,800, of which $236,561,600 was represented by bond and note issues. Bonds called for redemption in August prior to maturity totaled $45,414,900, compared with $39,394,000 last month.

Stock offerings are expected to vie with new bond issues in public investment interest this week. In addition to the Canadian Pacific's stock, more than $100,000 shares of Great Western Sugar stock will be sold around $91 a share. The Commonwealth Edison Company will market $15,000,000 5 per cent bonds.

DIVIDENDS.

Replogle to Buy Warren Pipe Co.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The method to be used by the Replogle Steel company to finance the purchase of the Warren Pipe and Foundry company is the subject of considerable speculation in the financial district. Replogle has an option to buy the Warren property at $400 a share for the 10,000 shares, or a total purchase price [illegible] for the option. According to reports in the financial district, there are several plans for financing the deal under consideration. One calls for the sale of an additional block of 125,000 shares of Replogle's capital stock at $12 a share and the issuance of $2,500,000 6½ per cent bonds.

Equitable Trust in German Beet Deal

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The Equitable Trust company is heading a syndicate which has provided $4,000,000 credit for the German beet sugar crop, which is to be used to finance it at various stages until finally sold abroad. Negotiations for this transaction have been guarded carefully, as the competition for such business is increasing, owing to the probability of a settlement of the reparation problem. The credit will terminate in six months, and the interest rate is understood to range between 7 and 7½ per cent.

Sterling Goes to Another New High

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Sterling went to another 1924 high record at $4.44¾ at the opening of today's foreign exchange market. The rate later slipped back to $4.44¼, about a half cent above Saturday's close. French francs moved up about 3 points to 5.31 cents.

TICKER AND TAPE

Fifteen new wells were completed in Los Angeles basin oil fields during the week just past, two of them at Huntington Beach and the remaining thirteen at Torrance.

New enterprises formed in the United States in June with an authorized capital of $100,000 or more numbered 508, representing an aggregate capital assessment of $572,155,750, according to a compilation by the Journal of Commerce.

Henry L. Doherty & Company announce that Cities Service Company has acquired a majority interest in the common stock and a large block of the preferred stock of the Kansas City Gas Company of Kansas City, Mo., and the Wyandotte County Gas Company of Kansas City, Kas., which serve in these two cities a population of approximately 500,000. While no purchase price was mentioned in the statement made by Henry L. Doherty & Company, recent valuations of the two companies acquired have approximated $15,000,000.

Sales of Jordan Motor in the first six months of this year were $6,578,672 and profits' $480,671, after charges, but before federal taxes. The June 30 balance sheet showed quick assets of $2,220,195 and current indebtedness of only $226,236. The net profits equalled $3.81 a share on the 126,000 shares of no par value stock outstanding, which means means the company earned its full year dividend in the first half-year.

France's exports of metallurgical products during the first four months of 1924 totalled 291,452 tons of pig iron and 527,664 tons of steel as compared with 214,659 tons and 239,188 tons, respectively, during the same period in 1923, according to advices received by the Bankers' Trust Company of New York from its French information service. Exports of rails alone, for the period January-April, 1924, aggregated 167,133 tons, as against 73,668 tons in the same period last year.

Norway has negotiated a $5,000,000 loan with National City Company at 6 per cent.

North American Company for 12 months ended June 30 reports surplus after preferred dividends, etc., but before depreciation of $15,226,000 against $13,306,000 the year preceding.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The Railroad Commission has granted to the Southern California Edison Company authority to make a ten per cent increase in its rates for light and power, the increase to be in effect for a period of eight months from September 1, 1924. All consumers, with the exception of the agriculturists, will be required to pay the increased charges. The increase is found to be necessary by the commission because of additional expense in the production of power resulting from the water shortage in Southern California.

Authority to issue $1,000,000 of its "Series B" seven per cent cumulative preferred stock has been asked of the Railroad Commission by the Coast Valleys Gas and Electric Company. It is proposed to exchange $500,000 of the seven per cent preferred for a like amount of the company's "Series A" six per cent preferred, the exchange calling for a payment to the company of $14.00 with each share of the "Series A" stock exchanged. It is proposed to sell the balance of the "Series B" issue at not less than 95 per cent of its par value.

A syndicate headed by the National City company and the Guaranty company of New York is offering a new issue of $10,000,000 Canadian Pacific Railway company 4 per cent perpetual non-callable consolidated debenture coupon stock at a price of 81 and interest, to yield about 4.94 per cent. This is the premier security of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and for the ten and one-half years ended December 31, 1923, the company's earnings on a yearly average were approximately four and one-half times fixed charges.

The Harris Trust and Savings Bank, with associates, is offering this morning $15,000,000 Commonwealth Edison company first mortgage collateral 5s, due June 1, 1954, at 98½, to yield about 5.10 per cent. The Commonwealth Edison company serves with electrical energy, practically without competition, the whole population of Chicago.

The recent offering of $5,000,000 common stock of Pacific Gas and Electric common stock has been substantially oversubscribed, and no additional subscriptions are being accepted. The entire issue was sold without any underwriting and at merely nominal cost of printing and mailing the offering to stockholders, says the company.

FARM PRODUCTS.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Drought in New England has not only inflicted heavy damage on Connecticut tobacco, but has caused a $50,000 loss to berry growers of Hampden county, Mass. Potato damage in the western part of this state is placed at $100,000 and the honey crop is doomed unless more rains fall soon and many cows must be butchered unless pastures green up. Friday's rains were too late to check the damage.

LITTLE FEAR OF WHEAT SHORTAGE, SAYS ECONOMIST

Minimum Estimates Indicate Crop Will Be 10 P. C. Below 1923.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—In discussing the world wheat situation, the National Bank of Commerce in New York says:

"There seems as yet little ground for the fear that even with a world crop now estimated at 10 per cent below that of 1923 an actual shortage will develop during 1924-25.

"The events of the year have shown again the amazing adaptability of demand to supply. With a crop in the chief importing countries of Europe in 1922 almost 190,000,000 bushels below that of the previous year, imports increased only a little over 20,000,000 bushels, while an increase of 160,000,000 in the 1923 crop was followed by a reduction in imports of only about 60,000,000 bushels. The figures indicate that imports fail to make up the full deficiency of a short crop, while in a season when the crop is good they tend to run higher than the quantities imported in a poor crop year would indicate to be necessary. Especially is this true if, as in 1923, the world supply is large and the price moderate.

ORIENT NOW CONSUMER.

"In addition to unexpectedly large takings by European countries, the world situation was eased by record purchasing from the Orient during the last year. Exports of wheat and flour from the United States to Japan from August 1, 1923, to May 31, 1924, were nearly double those of the corresponding period of the previous season, and to China they were more than two and one-half times as great. Canadian exports to Japan through March, 1924, increased nearly threefold and those to China nearly fourfold. During the last six months of 1923 exports of wheat and flour from Australia to Japan increased nearly two hundred times over the same period of 1922. The ratio of increase in flour shipments to China was considerably smaller.

OFFICIAL FORECAST.

"The official forecast of the United States crop on the basis of July 1 condition is 740,000,000 bushels, or 46,000,000 bushels less than last year's crop. If the outturn comes up to this estimate—and it may do better—around 100,000,000 bushels exclusive of carryover will almost certainly have to seek the international market either as wheat or as flour. The total may run even higher, depending upon the inducement to export offered by the world price. After the first three months following last year's harvest, when the bulk of wheat exports for the season went out, the surplus remaining in the United States from the crop was not large enough to press upon the market even at a price said to have been above the world level during part of the period. On the other hand, the carryover could be reduced considerably below that of last year year and still find ample precedent.

CANADA AS FACTOR.

"Canada, by reason of its large crop and small consumption requirements, is now the most important single factor in supplying world import needs. Final outturn will depend upon the weather between now and harvest time. Last year the official estimate on August 1, with a condition of 106, was for a crop of 382,514,000 bushels, while the final estimate of outturn was 474,199,000 bushels. Even on the basis of the present estimate, exports from the crop should reach at least 200,000,000 bushels.

"Figures indicate a total for the chief exporting countries of from 500,000,000 to 600,000,000 bushels, with the surplus of around 100,000,000 bushels carried over from the 1923 crop the total supply available would approach 700,000,000 bushels. During the current season these countries exclusive of the Danube basin exported 712,000,000 bushels."

Transcontinental's New Well Open

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Discovery well, drilled jointly by Transcontinental Oil and the Texas Company in the Craig field of Colorado, has been opened up and is flowing 4700 barrels a day. The well was opened up following the completion of the Prairie pipe line from Moffat county to Craig.

The first well was drilled in on March 5 at a depth of 3820 feet and was flowing at that time 4500 barrels a day. It was shut in until completion of the pipe line.

Transcontinental and Texas Company jointly own 1200 acres on the Craig structure and each company owns several thousand additional acres adjacent to the field.

Hudson & Manhattan Surplus $454,700

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company reports for the month of June gross revenues of $965,080 and a surplus after charges, including full interest on the adjustment bonds, of $454,700. These figures compare, respectively, with $928,616 and $420,195 in the same month a year ago.

For the six months ended June 30 the gross revenues of the Hudson & Manhattan were $5,992,977, compared with $5,735,436 in the corresponding period in 1923, while the surplus after taxes amounted to $851,874, as against $600,423 a year ago.

RICE MARKET

The Rice Growers' Association announces that at its sale on August 1 bids were received from three members of the exchange, and the successful bidders and the approximate amount sold to each is as follows:

Growers' Rice Milling Company, 26,420 sacks; C. E. Grosjean Rice Mill, 1459 sacks.

The sales committee announces that the next sale will take place on Tuesday, August 5.

An estimated prune crop for the state of 90 tons was made today by General Manager A. M. Mortensen of the Prune and Apricot Growers. The state yield last year was 110,000 tons. The world crop this year is estimated at 162,500 tons, against 252,500 tons last year.

Mortensen in his statement says: "Estimates of the total tonnage for the state vary widely. But the number of estimators predicting a crop as large as last year is being rapidly reduced, while there are some well-informed fruit men who think that there will be only 50 per cent of last year's crop.

"Assembling various estimates and accounting for the stocks on hand, we have arrived at a tabulation as follows, the date used being July 26 in all cases:

	1923. Tons.	1924. Tons.
California carryover	32,500	22,000
California crop	110,000	*90,000
Oregon carryover	5,000	1,500
Oregon crop	30,000	*20,000
Serbia-Bosnia	60,000	*20,000
France	15,000	*9,000
Totals	252,500	162,500

*Estimated.

	Tons.
Tonnage available July 26, 1923	252,500
Tonnage available July 26, 1924	162,500
Tonnage reduction	90,000

During June and July, 1923 we sold 6,000,000 pounds or 25,000,000 pounds less than in the same period last year.

"Today the carryover is moving freely. The market is active and values are firm. We have disposed of the balance of the 70-80's and have to offer now only 50-60s and 60-70's, with a very limited tonnage of outside 40-50's. This week we advanced the price of old crop 50-60's and 60-70's ½ cent per pound. Fifty-sixties show a differential of 1½ cents per pound under crop 40-50's. The usual price of 50-60's is 1 cent to 1½ cents under 40-50's and we feel that the present differential will not be maintained when the trade generally realizes the significance of the great shortage of large sizes in the new crop. In our opinion all 50-60's will be in active demand before the season is far along."

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Raw sugar unchanged early today at 5.02 for Cubans, duty paid, with no sales reported. Dullness in the spot market and the continued light inquiry for refined led to renewed liquidation in raw sugar futures and prices at mid-day showed net declines of 2 to 3 points.

Refined was easy and unchanged to 10 points lower, although list quotations still ranged from 6.40 to 6.75 for fine granulated. Refined futures were nominal.

Dean Witter & Co. Open Eastbay Offices

Following the establishment of headquarters in The TRIBUNE tower, Dean, Witter & Co. is announcing today addition to its executive staff of G. Willard Miller as resident partner in charge of the firm's business in this city and throughout Alameda county. Miller has had an extensive experience in the field of investment securities, his last connection having been with the San Francisco office of Peirce, Fair & Co.

The expansion of the San Francisco investment banking house's activities to effect more direct contact in the Eastbay territory is interpreted as another indication of the recognition that Oakland has won in financial circles as the center of a sound, substantial growth.

Dean, Witter & Co. has already established an office in Seattle, where Guy Witter is manager. Jean C. Witter, the other junior partner, a resident of Berkeley, will continue to make his headquarters at the San Francisco office of the firm.

Extra Dividend By S. P. Expected

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Considerable discussion has been aroused by the forthcoming meeting of the board of directors of the Southern Pacific, which is scheduled for August 14. At that time action is due on the quarterly dividend declaration and the expectation of an increase in the annual rate of 7 per cent is heard in some quarters. On the other hand, it is pointed out that the falling off in earnings this year and the issuance of a large block of new stock to acquire the El Paso and Southwestern may deter the directors from taking such action at this time.

Tokay and Muscat Grapes Arrive

Tokay grapes from Florin region in Sacramento county and Muscats from Fresno were newcomers to the wholesale produce market today, initial consignments for the season being received by Levy and Zentner.

Tomatoes and peaches were stronger today, as were also cantaloupes. New apples are now coming in in large quantities and bringing fair prices.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

These quotations of prices on the New York Stock Exchange are from E. F. Hutton & Co.'s private wire, members of the New York Stock Exchange, with offices at the Hotel Oakland.

RETAIL TRADING IS BRISKING UP COUNTRY OVER

By J. C. ROYLE,
Special Correspondent of The Oakland TRIBUNE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Retail trade is brisking up. This trend is apparent in the large cities and the rural sections and is due, many distributors believe, as much to a more cheerful state of mind on the part of the consumers to improvement in the agricultural situation and the financial condition of farmers.

The public buys because it wants to buy, not because it has to buy, many merchants assert. This stand is supported by the psychologists and advertising experts, who claim that 90 per cent of purchases made are dictated by instincts and emotions rather than acute immediate needs.

New York merchants gave confirmatory evidence to this theory today, declaring that their sales had materially improved in the last 10 days since the taxicab war brought down rates to a 20-cent mile basis. Women shoppers, they said, were anxious to take advantage of the bargain rates and made shopping excursions supply the destination.

The clothing trade, which was declared by pessimists to be so dead that the funeral could not long be delayed, is beginning to show renewed signs of life and compilation of totals after the midyear inventories indicates that, in general, the volume of business has been closely comparable with that of the corresponding period of last year. July special sales in most sections have been productive of excellent business.

CLOTHING NOVELTIES.

Just at present clothiers are debating whether the widespread popularity of knickerbockers and flannel trousers had been a benefit or a detriment to them. Some take the view that the purchase of a pair of knickers has eliminated for many the necessity of buying a whole lightweight suit. Others hold the view that the demand for knickers and flannel trousers has been a lifesaver for the trade this year, in view of the long delayed arrival of warm weather.

Manufacturers and clothiers who have gotten toegther on the trends which probably will instill the desire, if not the necessity, to buy into the bosom of the American man this fall are advocating "more color judicially applied." They say the desire to break away from the somber and conservative fabrics of past years made its appearance last fall with the blue-grey colorings and that the demand for plaids will continue at least throughout this year.

Underwear manufacturers who have been complaining of small orders have found that a good portion of the expected business has come to them in re-orders. Stocks in the hands of mills and dealers are small and both makers and retailers are watching closely the trend of the cotton market since that raw staple composes a good portion of the garments which cover the wide expanse of American skin. Mills are now about two months behind their usual fall production schedules and jobbers, realizing this, have begun to order fall requirements to assure prompt deliveries.

SHOE PRODUCTION.

Shoe production now is at a lower point than a year ago, but to some extent this is attributable to the lessening demand for the fancier models and colors in women's shoes. The call for the sturdier and more stable styles is improving, however. The Brockton (Mass.) manufacturers are determined to help out this movement by combining intensive selling with a campaign of cooperative advertising such as has proved advantageous in other industries.

Silk production is moving steadily ahead and in this material also the emphasis placed on new colorings is thoroughly apparent. One manufacturer declares the day has passed when ten or even twenty colors suffice to meet the demands of the modern woman. An extensive range of colorings is necessary and many makers will include from 75 to 100 shades in their fall production. Among the new tints he declares will be cetrine, a lemon yellow, titian sand, banana, artichoke, chow, cedarwood and the clay tones known as canyon, mojave and mesa.

Each maker has his own names which are even more varied than the colors and American dye manufacturers are working night and day to keep pace with demand.

EASTERN MARKETS

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Wheat prices averaged higher today during the early dealings, despite a sinking spell soon after the opening. An upturn in Winnipeg quotations together with a renewal of black rust reports both from north and south of the Canadian boundary, tended to stimulate wheat buying and so, too, did an advance in the corn market. Besides country offerings of wheat here were only fair. Opening prices, which varied from unchanged figures to ⅝c higher, September $1.32⅛ to 1.32½ December $1.36¼@$1.36⅝, were followed by a moderate general setback and then by a wise all around to well above Saturday's finish.

All deliveries of corn reached a new high price record for the season. Adverse crop reports and smallness of rural offerings to arrive were the chief bullish factors. After opening at 1c decline to ½c advance, December $1.03 to $1.03½, the market scored sharp general gains, more than 3½c in some cases.

Oats rose with corn and as a result of wet weather hindering oats harvest. Starting unchanged to ⅛c off, oats soon showed a decided general upturn. Higher quotations on hogs and corn gave a lift to provisions.

ISLAND FLEET BRINGS SUGAR TO THE EASTBAY

Considerable Quantity of Cane Molasses Also in Cargoes.

The Matson Navigation Company intermediate steamer Manoa, Captain John T. Diggs, will arrive on Wednesday morning from Honolulu with 94 cabin passengers. The vessel also has a big cargo including 66,425 bags of raw sugar for the Crockett refinery, 91,925 cases of new crop canned pineapples, 1745 bunches of bananas, 800 tons of molasses, 126 tons of plunder, 425 bales of wool, 57 crates of fresh pineapples, 79 packages of express and 220 bags of mail.

The Lurline, Captain E. H. Sonnelin, arrived from Honolulu with 81 cabin passengers yesterday. The ship's cargo is very heavy and includes, according to Purser Arthur W. Baxter, 98,961 bags of raw sugar for the Crockett refinery, 19,239 cases of canned pines, 719 bunches of bananas, 1195 tons of molasses for Seattle and 7210 cases of pines for the Puget Sound port. The Lurline has 139 bags of mail and 10 packages of express for San Francisco.

In order that Honolulu's school teachers can arrive in plenty of time for the opening of school in Hawaii on the morning of September 2, the Matson Navigation Company will speed up its liner Wilhelmina on the ship's next voyage, leaving San Francisco August 27. The Wilhelmina usually docks in Honolulu about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, but on her next trip will be speeded up so as to arrive early in the morning of September 2. This will allow Honolulu school teachers an extra week in California, as they would otherwise have to take the Matson steamer leaving a week earlier.

Several promotions of masters were announced today by the Matson Navigation Company. The freighter Mauna Ala sailed today for Hawaiian ports, commanded by a new skipper, Captain C. H. Morgan, succeeding Captain Louis J. Hall, who takes command of the freighter Makaweli. Captain E. R. Johanson has been promoted to command of the freighter Makiki, taking the place of Captain Andrew Townsend, who has been promoted to command of the big Matson freighter, Manulani, one of the Matson line's two largest cargo ships, having a cargo capacity of 14,000 tons.

Captain Peter Johnson, commodore of the Matson line's passenger fleet, and in the Matson organization's service for 34 years, will return on Wednesday at Honolulu to his old ship, the Maui. He will sail from Honolulu on that day for San Francisco, after a month's vacation visiting friends on the islands of Maui and Kauai. Captain John T. Diggs, who substituted on the Maui one trip for Captain Johnson, will return to his old ship, the Manoa.

Capt. Saunders on Road to Recovery

Capt. Chas. W. Saunders, operating manager for the Matson Navigation Company, is now on the road to recovery after an illness of six weeks from typhoid fever. The captain is at his home in Ross, Marin county.

Arthur E. Bixby, publicity director of the Matson Navigation Company, left Saturday afternoon on the steamer Yale for Los Angeles accompanied by Mrs. Bixby and baby daughter, to spend a week's vacation visiting relatives and friends in Southern California.

J. S. Banning, Jr., manager of the Matson company's Los Angeles office, was a visitor on Saturday at the main office in San Francisco. He will sail on Monday aboard a relative's schooner yacht for the return trip to San Pedro.

W. H. Sellander, general passenger agent of the Matson company, is expected to return about August 15 to San Francisco from a trip east.

New French Line Tankers Load at San Pedro With Nine Standard Oilers.

The first of a new fleet of French tankers to carry California gasoline to European ports is the Melpomene of the Compagnie Auxiliaire de Navigation, which cleared from Los Angeles last week with 77,500 barrels of gasoline loaded at the Shell company's terminal. At the same time another tanker of the same fleet was taking on kerosene for China at the Standard Oil terminal, San [illegible] vessels of the line have been booked to take on California oil.

Nine tankers consigned to the Standard Oil company are on the list of vessels en route to Charleston and due within the next few weeks. The steady arrivals of tankers to the Standard Oil company has been an important factor in Charleston's maritime business from the standpoint of imports.

CONDITIONS.

The pressure is low over the plateau, southern Rocky mountains and plains states and high off the northern coast. These conditions have caused cloudy weather in Washington, western Oregon and cloudy or foggy along the California coast and fair in the interior of the Pacific slope. Light rain has fallen in western Canada and northern Montana and showers and thunderstorms over a narrow belt from Arizona northeastward to Iowa. Heavy rain occurred at Chicago. Temperature changes have been slight.

The outlook is for fair weather in this district tonight and Tuesday except cloudy in Washington and western Oregon and cloudy or foggy along the California coast. The forest fire situation is slightly improved.

OAKLAND BOUND SHIP IN TROUBLE OFF SEAL ROCKS

Saginaw Wallowing in Sea Refuses Schooner's Offer Of Assistance.

The coastwise freighter Saginaw bound from Portland and Coos Bay to San Francisco and Oakland with a cargo of lumber is in difficulties off Crescent City according to word brought into port late last night by the McCormick company steam schooner El Dorado.

According to the report made by the El Dorado, she passed the Saginaw yesterday, wallowing in the sea ten miles northwest of Seal Rocks, which places her almost opposite Crescent City.

The El Dorado upon noticing that something was wrong with the Saginaw, immediately drew to her and offered aid. This was refused and the request was made by Captain Carlson of the Saginaw that her owners, the Charles Nelson Company, be notified. Captain Carlson did not inform the El Dorado of the nature of his trouble.

The Saginaw is one of the older lumber schooners employed in the coastwise trade. She was built in Hoquiam, Washington, in 1907. She is wooden hulled and is rated at 498 net tons register. The boat is 191 feet long with 39-foot beam and is equipped with engines of 750-horsepower. It is not thought here that her trouble is very serious unless heavy weather comes up. Efforts are to be made to get in touch with the craft.

Expected Fall Cargo Boom Has Added Vesel

Freighter Rochelle Is Added To Service of Kingsley Navigation Co.

The British steamer Rochelle recently purchased by the Kingsley Navigation company for coastwise service in conjunction with the freighter, E. D. Kingsley, is due to make the Golden Gate today.

The arrival of the Rochelle gives an excellent improvement to the Oakland-Vancouver freight service. The steamer is of 2400 deadweight tons and capable of handling considerable cargo. The Rochelle will sail north to Vancouver on Wednesday with her first cargo.

The new vessel is considerably larger than the E. D. Kingsley, her running mate. The two vessels will be able to give Oakland and San Francisco bay shippers an excellent cargo service between here and British Columbia ports. It is expected by company officials that an unusual demand will be made upon the coastwise cargo carriers this fall. This is given as one of the reasons for the addition of the Rochelle.

Ruth Alexander En Route to Cal. With Full List

Coastwise Passenger Traffic Reported To Be Flourishing.

SEATTLE, Aug. 4.—The Pacific Steamship Company's liner Ruth Alexander departed last night for California points with every berth taken. Coastwise passenger travel is in an unusually properous condition at present.

The freighter Manukai arrived here this morning to load offerings from the Hawaiian islands for the Matson line. The freighter Makaweli, in the same service, is due at Port Angeles tomorrow and will round out her cargo at Bellingham being scheduled to call from that port for the island next Friday.

Santa Cruz Takes Series From Berkeley

SANTA CRUZ, Aug. 4.—The Santa Cruz Polo team triumphed over the Berkeley quartet 6 to 5, in one of the best matches seen in Central California for some time. At the end of the sixth chapter, which is the usual length of the game, the score was tied at 5 to 5 and an extra minute of play was decided on. During the extra period, Santa Cruz scored one point and clinched the contest.

At the end of the fifth chapter, Berkeley led 4 to 1, but as they lacked reserve ponies, their mounts tired and the Santa Cruz quartet evened the count.

Cruelty Alleged in Divorce Complaint

SALINAS, Aug. 4.—In a complaint charging extreme cruelty, Nora L. Miller of Carmel has commenced suit here for divorce from Samuel L. Miller, a contrac- married in Oakland in February, tor of that place. The parties were 1917, the complaint avers, and separated July 26, this year. Mrs. Miller alleges that since 1919 her husband has cursed and struck her on several occasions and that he told her more recently he would be glad to be rid of her.

WHEREAS, the public interest and convenience requires the establishment of official grades on Boden Way between Prospect Avenue and Beacon Street, and on the hereinafter described portions of Beacon Street, Prospect Avenue, and Lake Shore Boulevard; and

WHEREAS, in the opinion of this City Council damage to private property will result from the hereinafter described improvement; now therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED: That it is the intention of the Council of the City of Oakland to establish the official curb grades of Prospect Avenue, from the southeastern line of Lake Shore Boulevard to the southeastern line, produced, of Boden Way, as it exists immediately northeasterly of Prospect Avenue, of Boden Way from the northeastern line of Prospect Avenue to the southwestern line of Beacon Street, of the southeastern half of Lake Shore Boulevard within the opposite termination of Prospect Avenue, and of the southwestern half of Beacon Street from a line drawn at right angles with the southwestern line of Beacon Street, through a point distant, thereon, 206.19 feet southeasterly from the southeastern line of Lake Shore Avenue to a line drawn radially with the southwestern line of Beacon Street, through a point distant, thereon, 16.8 feet northwesterly from the eastern line of Lot 25, as said lot is shown on the map of "Resubdivision of Lot No. 25, Lake Knoll," filed June 13, 1922, in Book 7 of Maps, page 69, Alameda County Records, at the following elevations above Oakland City Base, to-wit:

8.5 feet, both curbs of Prospect Avenue at the southeastern line of Lake Shore Boulevard;

17.5 feet northwestern return and 18.3 feet northeastern return at the northern corner of Prospect Avenue and Boden Way;

16.5 feet southwestern curb of Prospect Avenue at a point distant, thereon, 101 feet southeasterly from the southeastern line of Lake Shore Boulevard;

19.3 feet southeastern curb in the intersection of Boden Way and Prospect Avenue at a line drawn at right angles to said curb and passing through the northeastern return of the northern corner of Boden Way and Prospect Avenue;

22.5 feet southeastern curb and 21.7 feet northwestern curb of Boden Way at a line drawn at right angles with the southeastern line of Boden Way through a point distant, thereon, 52 feet northeasterly from the northeastern line of Prospect Avenue;

21.6 feet southeastern curb and 22.8 feet northwestern curb of Boden Way through a point distant, thereon, [illegible] feet northeasterly from the northeastern line of Prospect Avenue;

37 feet southeastern curb and 36.2 feet northwestern curb of Boden Way at a line drawn at right angles with the southeastern line of Boden Way through a point distant, thereon 167 feet northeasterly from the northeastern line of Boden Way;

37.6 feet southeastern curb and 36.8 feet northwestern curb of Boden Way at a line drawn at right angles with the southeastern line of Boden Way through a point distant, thereon, 202 feet northeasterly from the northeastern line of Prospect Avenue;

37.5 feet southeastern curb and 36.7 feet northwestern curb of Boden Way at a line drawn at right angles with the southeastern line of Boden Way through a point distant, thereon, 226.59 feet northeasterly from the northeastern line of Prospect Avenue;

37 feet southeastern curb and 36.3 feet northwestern curb of Boden Way at a line drawn radially with the southeastern line of Boden Way, through a point distant, thereon, 269.03 feet northeasterly from the northeastern line of Prospect Avenue;

36.3 feet southeastern curb and 35.5 feet northwestern curb of Boden Way at a line drawn radially with the southeastern line of Boden Way through a point distant, thereon, [illegible] feet northeasterly from the northeastern line of Prospect Avenue;

31.8 feet southeastern curb and 30.5 feet northwestern curb of Boden Way at a line drawn at right angles with the southeastern line of Boden Way through a point distant, thereon, 421.73 feet northeasterly from the northeastern line of Prospect Avenue;

26 feet and 27.5 feet northwestern curb of Boden Way at points distant thereon, respectively, 25 feet and 50 feet southwesterly from the southwestern return of the western corner of Boden Way and Beacon Street;

26.5 feet southwestern return and 26.7 feet eastern return of the southern corner of Boden Way and Beacon Street;

The word "return" as used herein means the point of tangency of the straight curb with the curved curb.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That it is the intention of said Council to order the following improvement to be made in accordance with the plans and specifications adopted therefor by said Council by Resolution No. 30139 N. S. to-wit: That the following streets be graded, curbed with concrete, guttered with concrete gutters, two feet wide, paved with oil-macadam and sidewalked with cement sidewalks, 4 feet wide, to-wit: Prospect Avenue, from the southeastern line of Lake Shore Boulevard to the southeastern line, produced, of Boden Way, as it exists immediately northeasterly of Prospect Avenue; Boden Way, from the northeastern line of Prospect Avenue to the southwestern line of Beacon Street; the portion of Lake Shore Boulevard that is bounded on the southeast by the southeastern line of Lake Shore Boulevard, on the northwest by a line drawn parallel with and distant 17.06 feet northwesterly from the southeastern line of Lake Shore Boulevard, and on the northeast and southwest, respectively, by the productions of the northeastern and southwestern lines of Prospect Avenue, as it exists immediately southeasterly of Lake Shore Boulevard; and the portion of Beacon Street bounded and described as follows: beginning at a point on the southwestern line of Beacon Street, distant, thereon, 206.19 feet southeasterly from the southeastern line of Lake Shore Avenue; running thence northeasterly, at right angles with the southwestern line of Beacon Street, 16.06 feet; thence southeasterly parallel with the southwestern line, produced, of Beacon Street, as it exists immediately southeasterly of Lake Shore Avenue, to a point distant 12.06 feet northeasterly from the southwestern line of Beacon Street; thence southeasterly, parallel with and distant 12.06 feet northeasterly from the southwestern line of Beacon Street, to the aforesaid line drawn radially with the southwestern line of Beacon Street through a point distant, thereon, 16.8 feet northwesterly from the eastern line of Lot 25, as said lot is shown on the aforesaid map of "Resubdivision of Lot No. 25, Lake Knoll"; thence southwesterly, along said line drawn radially with the southwestern line of Beacon Street, to said southwestern line of Beacon Street; and thence northwesterly, along said southwesterly line of Beacon Street, to the point of beginning, also

That a storm water drain (consisting of a concrete inlet with cast iron grating, a vitrified pipe conduit with concrete covering, a concrete box culvert with reinforced top, and a concrete handhole), be constructed from the southwestern curb line of Beacon Street to the southeastern curb line of Boden Way along a line (center line of drain) described as follows: beginning at the intersection of the southwestern curb line of Beacon Street with the aforedescribed line drawn at right angles with the southwestern line of Beacon Street through a point distant, thereon, 206.19 feet southeasterly from the southeastern line of Lake Shore Avenue; running thence southerly, along a line deflecting to the right or southwestward 35 degrees from the southwestern curb line, produced, of Beacon Street, as it exists immediately southeasterly of Lake Shore Avenue, a distance of 17 feet; and thence southeasterly in a direct line to a point on the southeastern curb line of Boden Way distant, thereon, 13 feet northeasterly from the southwestern return of the southern corner of Boden Way and Beacon Street; also

That vitrified pipe sewers, each having an internal diameter of 8 inches, be constructed as follows: (1) Beginning at a point on the existing sewer in Beacon Street distant 25 feet northwesterly from the northwestern line, produced, of Lot 27, as said lot is shown on the aforesaid map of "Resubdivision of Lot No. 25 of Lake Knoll"; running thence southwesterly, parallel with the northwestern line, and its productions, of said Lot 27, a distance of 220 feet; thence southwesterly in a direct line 155 feet to a point distant 25 feet northwesterly from the southeastern line of Boden Way; (2) Beginning at a point on the existing sewer in Lake Shore Boulevard distant 25 feet northeasterly from the southwestern line, produced, of Prospect Avenue, as it exists immediately southeasterly of Lake Shore Boulevard; running thence southeasterly, parallel with the southwestern line, and its production, of said portion of Prospect Avenue, to the center line, produced, of Boden Way, as it exists immediately northeasterly of Prospect Avenue; thence northeasterly, along the center line, and its production, of said portion of Boden Way, a distance of 205 feet; also

That four brick manholes, with cast iron tops, be constructed as follows: one at the northeastern end of, and one at the angle in the herein first-described proposed sewer; one at the northwestern end of, and one at the angle in the herein secondly-described proposed sewer; also

That three vitrified pipe lampholes, with tops of brick and cast iron, be constructed as follows: one at the southwestern end of the herein first-described proposed sewer; [illegible] herein secondly-described proposed sewer; and one on said secondly described proposed sewer at a point distant, thereon, 36 feet southeasterly from its northwestern end; also

That vitrified pipe Y-branches, each having a five inch opening, be constructed on the aforedescribed proposed sewers so as to provide one such branch for each 50 foot lot, and fractional lot remaining, into which the abutting property frontage, taken block by block, is capable of being divided.

And said Council does hereby determine and declare that, in its opinion, damage to private property will result from the afore-described improvement, and that therefore the district of land to be benefited by said improvement, and to be specially assessed to pay the costs and expenses thereof, and the damages caused by said improvement, which district of land shall be known as the assessment district, is particularly bounded and described as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at the intersection of the southeastern line of Lake Shore Avenue with the southwestern line of Beacon Street, running thence southeasterly and easterly along the southwestern and southern line of Beacon Street to the most northern corner of Lot 19 of the "Lake Knoll" tract, as shown on the map thereof, filed April 6, 1922, in Book 7 of Maps, page 95, aforesaid Alameda County Records; thence in a direct line to the most eastern corner of said Lot 19; thence westerly, along the southern line, and its production, of said Lot 19, to the eastern line of Lot 22 of said "Lake Knoll" tract; thence in a direct line to the most eastern corner (being a point on the northwestern line of Merritt Avenue) of said Lot 22; thence southwesterly, along the northwestern line of Merritt Avenue, to the northeastern line of Prospect Avenue; thence in a direct line to the intersection of the southwestern line of Prospect Avenue with the northwestern line of Merritt Avenue; thence southwesterly, along the northwestern line of Merritt Avenue, 48 feet; thence northwesterly, parallel with the southwestern line of Prospect Avenue, as it exists immediately northwesterly of Merritt Avenue, 130 feet; thence southwesterly, parallel with the northwestern line of Merritt Avenue, 49 feet; thence northwesterly, parallel with the southwestern line, and its production, of Prospect Avenue, as it exists immediately northwesterly of Merritt Avenue, to the southeastern line of Lake Shore Boulevard; thence northeasterly, along the southeastern line of Lake Shore Boulevard to the southeastern line of Lake Shore Avenue; thence northeasterly, along the southeastern line of Lake Shore Avenue to the point of beginning.

All of the proceedings for the afore-described work, improvement, and establishment of grades shall be in accordance with the provisions of the "Street Improvement Act of 1913," of the State of California.

This Council hereby determines that serial bonds shall be issued to represent assessments of twenty-five dollars or more for the cost and expenses of the afore-described work and improvement and that a bond will issue to represent each such assessment remaining unpaid at the expiration of thirty days after the first publication of the notice of the recording of the assessment by the Superintendent of Streets; said serial bonds shall extend over a period ending five years from the second day of January next succeeding the issuance of said bonds, and an even annual proportion of the principal sum thereof shall be payable, by coupon, on the second day of January every year after their date, until the whole is paid, and the interest shall be payable semi-annually, by coupon, on the second day of January and July, respectively, of each year, at the rate of seven per cent. per annum on all sums unpaid, until the whole of said principal and interest is paid. Said bonds shall be issued in accordance with the provisions of said "Street Improvement Act of 1913."

Notice is hereby given that Thursday the 11th day of September, 1924, at 5 minutes after 11 o'clock a. m., is hereby fixed as the time, and the Council Chamber in the City Hall, Oakland, California, as the place for the hearing by said Council of protests in relation to the afore-described work and improvement.

The Oakland Tribune is hereby designated as the daily newspaper published and circulated in said city in which this resolution of intention shall be published. The Clerk of this Council is hereby directed to publish this resolution by two successive insertions in said newspaper and to conspicuously post said resolution for two days on or near the chamber door of said Council.

I certify that the foregoing is a full, true and correct copy of a Resolution passed by the City Council of the City of Oakland, Cal., on August 1, 1924.

EUGENE K. STURGIS, City Clerk.

HERBALISTS

THE FONG WAN TREATMENT RELIEVES A YOUNG GIRL AS WELL AS A WOMAN AND AN OLD MAN.

MISS ZELDA MATTHEWS

Oakland, Calif. June 24, 1923.

My daughter (Zelda) was troubled with her nerves. Her legs and hands twitched so that she could not walk straight. Her voice also was interfered with, and she could not enunciate clearly. The doctors called her trouble "St. Vitus' Dance." When she failed to get relief elsewhere, we took her to FONG WAN, and after seven weeks of the herb treatment she was completely relieved. In 1918, the same herbalist freed me from a long-standing enough. We are glad to recommend him.

HELP FOR THE MAN WHO WANTS TO BUILD

HOMES TO BE BUILT WITH LEAN PURSES

By the Architects' Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc.

Nobody starts out to build a small home without first wondering how much he is going to pay for it. Out of thousands upon thousands of letters that come to the Architects' Small House Service Bureau of the United States each month from people living in all sections of the country who are thinking about building small homes, more than half of these letters start out with this question: "How much is my home going to cost?" After they are told what to expect there almost always is disappointment. Then follows a second question. It runs something like this: "What can I do to reduce costs?"

Houses Are Like Automobiles

This is such an important and general question that you may be interested in the answer to it, so that is what that this and succeeding articles are about; namely, how to reduce home building costs.

Now, a house is very much like any other kind of a mechanical device; that is, it can be very simple or very elaborate. You know how many different kinds of automobiles there are. They all do about the same thing—they get you there and take you back—but you know also how differently they cost.

The cost of building homes varies with quality and quantity just as other things do. We are sure that everybody knows this. However, it is hard to get people to see that this rule, which makes us pay full price for everything we get, has to apply to our own new home just as much as it does to the other fellow's home, or any kind of building that is built.

We need not tell you that the times have changed. We hear today about the way prices have gone up—how it was possible in the old days to build so much more of a home for so much less money. We could get along far better with this question if we would consider this just water over the dam and stop thinking about the changes that have taken place, and then try to face the circumstances as they exist. However, there is no doubt that it is the taste of good things at the lower prices of yesterday that is largely responsible for the high cost of building today. Why? Well, because we continue to ask in the face of these greatly increased costs for practically the same kind of thing that we required in the days before the war.

The Risk of Building Homes

Now, if the cost of living had not increased, or if incomes had increased in proportion to all other things, and we had thus been able to save our money in proportion to increased costs, perhaps it would be sound to pay the high costs now demanded for homes. But the plain fact of the matter is that the risk of building homes at such high prices is so overwhelming that most of us decided to go on living in makeshift apartments or other cramped quarters.

Our purpose is not to tell you how you can beat this game, but how you can play a better one. If you will do as we tell you you may land in your own home without the high expense.

In the next article to appear in this column definite items will be listed which will show where and how savings can be made in home building.

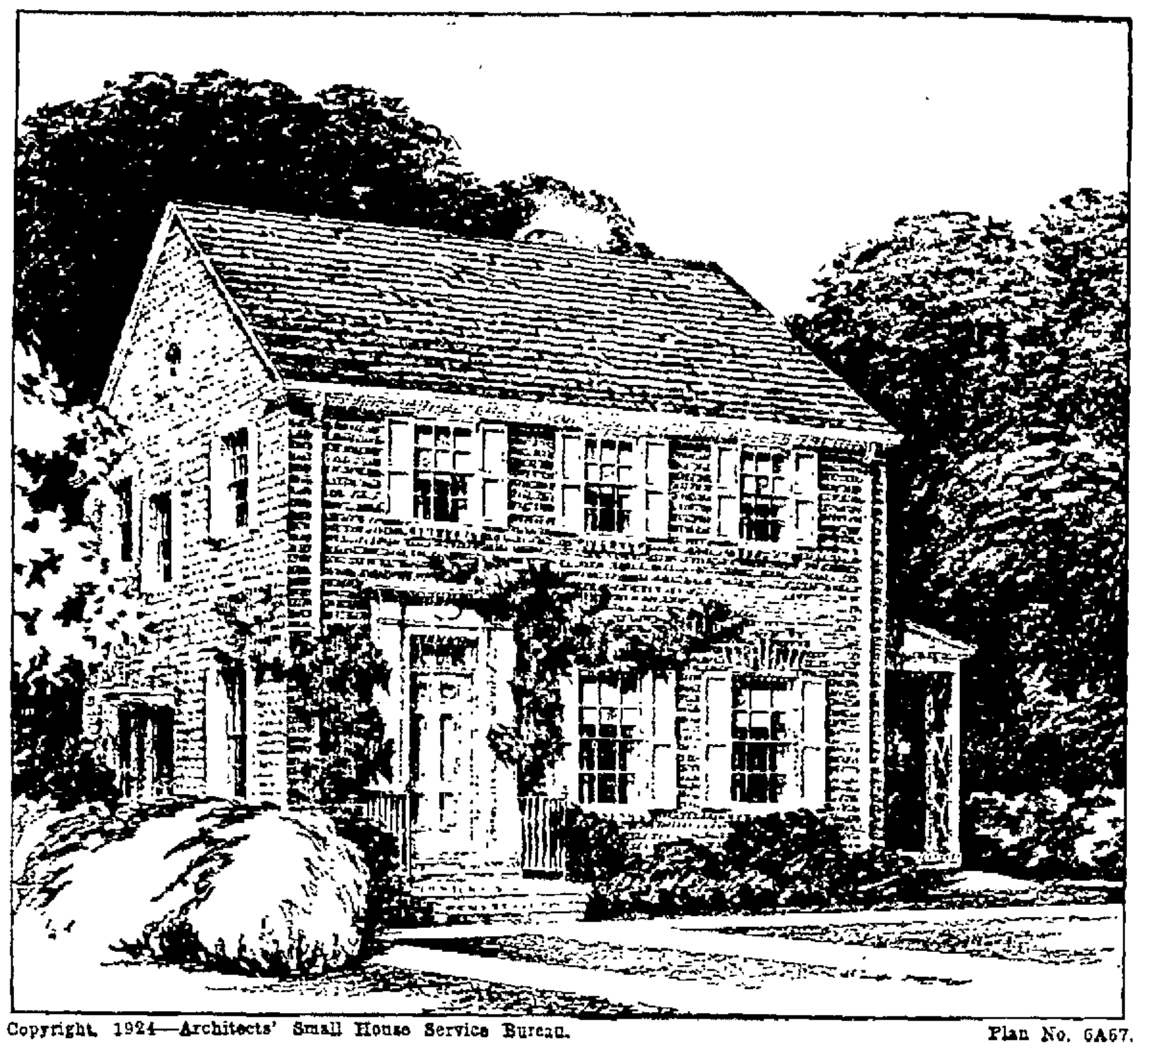
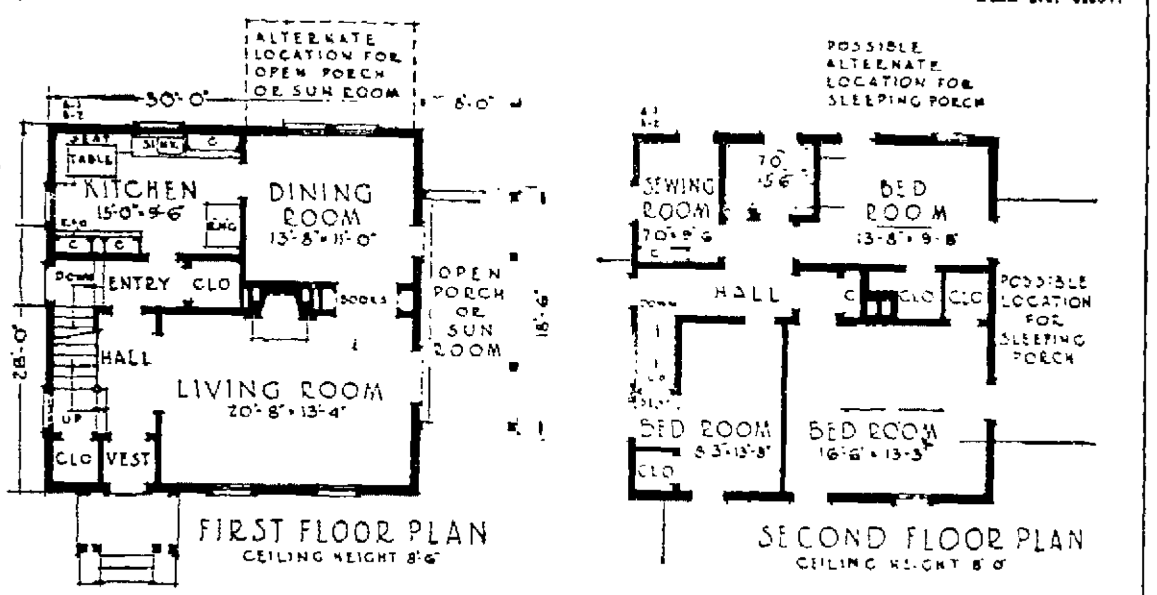
HANDSOME SIX ROOM COLONIAL HOME



Copyright, 1924—Architects' Small House Service Bureau. Plan No. 6A67.



THIS handsome Colonial home may be built of brick veneer or with solid brick walls. It provides a most satisfactory room arrangement. In addition to six good size rooms, such conveniences as a breakfast alcove and a dining room, there is also an attic and six closets.

The porch may be built either as an open porch or an enclosed sunroom, and may be placed either at the side, opening from the living or dining room, or at the rear opening from the dining room. A sleeping porch may be built above the porch. The plans provide details for these arrangements.

Few homes of this size contain so generous or inviting a living room. The inside fireplace is the center of interest of this room. In the plaster arch there are built-in bookcases. The handsome open stairway is visible from the living room.

Three bedrooms on the second floor provide cross ventilation of air and cross light.

If this house is built as illustrated it will require a 50 foot lot. With the porch at the rear or omitted, a 40 foot lot will be sufficient.

This home should be reasonable to build if you use simple materials and inexpensive equipment. The cost will depend upon what the house is made of and what you put into it. The cost will also be effected by the locality in which it is built. In certain cities costs are much higher than in others. Simple equipment will decrease the cost, expensive equipment and materials will increase the cost.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The plans for small homes are furnished by the Regional Bureaus of the Architects' Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc., an organization made up of the representative practising architects from leading architectural offices throughout the United States. This bureau is controlled by the American Institute of Architects, and has the indorsement of the Department of Commerce, United States government. It is practically a non-profit making public service, and has as its purpose the furnishing of a very complete and dependable small house plan service at modest cost. For information regarding the blue prints and specifications, address the Home Building Editor of this paper. The United States Bureau maintains an Information Department to answer home builders' questions at no charge. Enclose stamped addressed envelope.

WHAT YOU MAY WANT TO KNOW ABOUT BUILDING

Questions addressed to the paper will be answered by the Architects' Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc., controlled by the American Institute of Architects and indorsed by the department of commerce, United States government. Inclose selfaddressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Q—What is a water softener?

A—The elements that make water hard are mainly compounds of lime and magnesia. When these are taken out the water is soft. They can be neutralized by using soap. The mechanical water softener uses a mineral called "zeolite," through which all the water in the house is filtered. As the water passes through this, the hardening elements are attracted to it, and the water passes on free of these substances. Water softeners must be regenerated from time to time. This is done by flushing with salt water.

Q—Digging our cellar we found quicksand six inches thick about three feet below the grade. Under the quicksand is clay. What kind of a wall will it be possible to build, and can it be made waterproof?

A—Do not build on the quicksand. If there is so much of it that it cannot all be cleaned out, then remove a sufficent portion of it so that the footings at least will rest on the clay. If there is a head of water we would advise you to waterproof the basement floor and wall with one or more layers of hot tar and felt. The number of layers to be used will depend upon how much water pressure there may be. For exact information in this respect we recommend that you get the advice of one of the waterproofing agencies in your district.

Q—I am having a new addition built as an extension to the kitchen and the second floor. In the contract what grade of lumber, shingles, etc., should be specified?

A—This matter should be taken up in the specifications. Every material to be used and every bit of workmanship desired should be specified. Get a good architect or a reputable contractor to help you write the specifications. Make them very explicit.

Q—I intend to have oak floors laid in my old house. What type do you advise?

A—Well manufactured oak flooring of a grade known as "unselected plain red oak" should give you a good floor. We advise the use of 13-16 inch thickness although three-eighth inch material is used with fairly satisfactory results.

Q—I am putting in a new steam boiler. What size do I require? The house is two stories, frame construction, with a enclosed porch downstairs. How much radiation shall be allowed?

A—The size of the heating plant must have a definite correspondence with the amount of radiation used in the rooms. The amount of radiation depends upon the character of the building, the number of windows, wall areas, the exposure, and the minimum winter temperatures. Figuring the amount of radiation is an exact matter to be determined by formula. Have your house figured for radiation by a heating engineer.

DAVIE ASKS FOR CHANGES IN BUS ROUTE

Mayor Suggests to Key System That Proposed Line On 35th Ave. Be Continued to East 14th Street

Asserting that the business development of East Fourteenth street demands better communication with the residence districts to the north, Mayor Davie has written to the Key System Transit company suggesting that the proposed motor bus system on Thirty-fourth avenue be continued to East Fourteenth street, instead of terminating at the Foothill boulevard, as contemplated.

Recommending a change in the routing of the busses to connect the East Fourteenth and Hopkins streets, Mayor Davie said:

"I note that the petition regarding service on Thirty-fifth avenue proposes terminating at Thirty-fifth avenue and Foothill boulevard. Numerous petition have been received by the city council and by myself from merchants, residents and businessmen in that district requesting that this service be terminated at Thirty-fifth avenue and East Fourteenth streets.

"I believe that the public interest can be served to better advantage by the establishment of service on Tihrty-fifth avenue between East Fourteenth and Hopkins streets than between Foothill Boulevard and Wisconsin street. Under your present petition passengers desiring to go to East Fourteenth street will be obliged to transfer three times. This involves loss of time and inconvenience; it also serves to draw business from the rapidly developing mercantile center on East Fourteenth street, and in that way does not serve the best interests of that community.

"In view of the foregoing I suggest that you file with the council an amended petition for service on Thirty-fifth avenue between Hopkins and East Fourteenth streets, and thus serving what I consider the public interest to a greater advantage. Upon receipt of this amended petition I shall be glad to recommend it for favorable action by the council. I am holding the other petitions pending your reply, in order that all three may be acted upon by the council at the same time."

Ex-Service Men Hold Picnic at Neptune

American Legion Post, No 9; Veterans of Foreign Wars, Corporal Hollywood Post, and United Spanish War Veterans, Camp Barrett, No. 29, of Alameda, held an enjoyable picnic at Neptune Beach Saturday under the auspices of the Alameda Veterans' Council. Boxing and wrestling events were held in the afternoon. A military ball was held in the evening and an exhibition of fancy buck and wing dancing was given by Francis Hubert.

Commander H. M. Bradley of the American Legion Post, No. 9, directed the events, assisted by R. M. Toalson of the Corporal Hollywood Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Committeemen from the United Spanish War Veterans and the other outfits aided in making it a successful affair

Dedicate New Berkeley Methodist Church

WORK STARTS ON NEW BERKELEY CHURCH EDIFICE

BERKELEY, Aug 4.—Rivaling the Campanile of the University of California in height, Epworth M. E church of Berkeley will be rushed to completion in time for Christmas services.

The cornerstone of the new church was laid yesterday, the ceremony drawing a large crowd of members of the church and friends to the new site on Durant avenue just above Telegraph. The church will be the tallest building in Berkeley. The new building will cost $250,000 and will be of Gothic design. James Plachek is the architect.

Judge William Waste of the state supreme court, an old member of the church, laid the cornerstone. L. W Jefferson, member of the official board, described the contents of the strong box placed within the granite slab, while Rev. J. N Score said prayer.

Participating in the exercises was William B Brown 98, the oldest living member of the congregation, who brought three ox trains across the continent in the days of '49.

The new church will have a seating capacity of 1000 with a choir loft back of the gallery accommodating 40 persons. A three-manuel pipe organ will be installed. Under the church auditorium will be a social hall with a stage and motion picture booth.

To the rear of the auditorium will be a four-story building which will house church offices, a women's parlor, Boy Scouts' room and quarters for other activities.

The old church building at northeast corner of Telegraph and Durant avenues was sold recently to the Bank of Italy and will be razed shortly.

PETERSEN TO SUE OVER BACK PAY

Another lawsuit against the city of Oakland over the back salary of former Inspector Captain Walter J. Petersen was promised to the city council today by Cedric Petersen, his son and attorney.

Petersen was dismissed from the force and took a position in San Francisco three years ago. The civil service board reinstated him, but refused to pay his salary during his absence. The Court of Appeals finally reasoned that if Petersen was illegally out of office he was entitled to his pay.

City Attorney Leon Gray recently advised the city council that it should not pay the back salary—now more than $3000 including interest—until all the courts and the civil service board straighten out their records.

"I want to know the attitude of this council," said Cedric Peterson, today. "It seems we are getting nowhere till we take things out of the hands of the city attorney. We meet nothing but technicalities."

"We cannot go over the head of the city attorney," defended Mayor Davie. "He is our legal adviser. I do not think Gray is prejudiced."

"We cannot do anything without his advice," agreed Commissioner A. E. Carter.

"Then if that is your attitude, we will govern ourselves accordingly," said Petersen.

Petersen informed the mayor that he will file a suit in the superior court immediately.

The city council adopted a resolution ordering the acquisition of property for the opening of Russett street, one of the short thoroughfares which is planned as a part of the ultimate East Twelfth street extension. The improvement of part of Logan street was ordered.

A report for July for the municipal wood yard shows that 1184 paying guests were lodged there, and 416 non-payers. Some 730 meals were sold and 511 given.

WOMAN ATTACKED BEATEN BY THUG

Miss Minnie Egbert, 37, of 1601 Walnut street, Alameda, was attacked by an unidentified man on a dark street in Hayward late last night and badly beaten. Her clothing was torn, and she escaped from her assailant only after she had had six teeth knocked out and had been badly beaten.

After beating off the thug, Miss Egbert caught a street car and rode to San Leandro, but changed there to another car and went back to Hayward, where she reported the attack to her father, who lives on a ranch near that city.

Deputy Sheriff Joseph Soares investigated the case, but could discover no trace of the assailant.

Miss Egbert had been visiting her father on his ranch and was returning to her home in Alameda when the man accosted her. When she repulsed his advances, he attacked her.

The man was described last night by Miss Egbert as being of medium build.

Use Lemons to Whiten Skin

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Advertisement.

AX FOR OLD DEPOT WAITS BOARD'S O. K.

The work of dismantling the station at Fourteenth and Franklin streets and the trackage on Franklin street as far as Twentieth street will commence as soon as authorization is obtained from the railroad commission for the routing of electric trains over Webster street, E. J. Foulds, attorney for the Southern Pacific company, announced today.

No obstacles to the success of the new plan are anticipated, Foulds said, so it should only be a short time before the old Franklin street station is removed and the entire block covered by that property is opened for business development.

Since the city of Oakland has agreed to the dismissal of the hearing before the state supreme court on the petition of the company for review of the order of the railroad commission directing the company to build a new station on the Franklin street site, Foulds said the company would file a new petition with the commission to abandon the site in favor of the new plan.

All of the property now occupied by the station and the car sidings, consisting of an entire block and the triangular property on the southwest corner of Fourteenth and Franklin streets, will be offered for sale, it was announced.

The company will have a station on Webster street between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets.

Under an agreement with the Key system Transit company, the Southern Pacific company will utilize the tracks of the Key System on Webster street between Fourteenth and Twentieth streets.

Man, Wife Offer to Wed 20,000 by 'Mail Order'

By L. C. OWEN, Special Staff Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 4.—Persons seeking heart thrills and love mates through mail order matrimonial bureaus can gather considerable sophistication out of the Federal court proceedings against Ernest Swartz and his wife Teresa, the latter a self-crowned movie queen and film beauty.

The Swartz twain have just been indicted by a Federal grand jury on a charge of using the mails to defraud in mulcting lovelorn persons who were willing to contract for helpmates, sight unseen, except for the exchange of photos, which the Swartz made a specialty of supplying.

20,000 SEEK MATES.

Raiding alleged matrimonial bureaus maintained both in this city and Los Angeles by Swartz and his wife, government agents found lists of more than 20,000 love-hungry persons who are said to have answered their advertisements in the past year. A corps of a half dozen stenographers in each office was busy answering new "sucker" letters coming by each mail.

In all the 20,000 correspondents however, they were unable to find a single instance where lovelorn couples were brought together and marriage resulted—for the alleged reason that Swartz always played the role of shiek to women lovesceekers, while his wife essayed the same youthful role with aged mates who sought wives.

The Swartzes owe their present predicament to a rich farmer of Medford, Ore., who is said to be typical of the many victims netted by the matrimonial bureau pair. The Medford man answered an advertisement, listing himself as having marriageable tendencies and expressing a desire for acquaintance with any young pretty woman with similar proclivities.

According to the Federal agents it was at this stage that Mrs. Swartz assumed her often played role of movie queen and bathing beauty." The Medford man received a letter written in endearing terms, advising him that the matrimonial bureau had turned his letter over to her and saying that although she was a great success as a movie actress she was willing to forsake her cinema future and settle down as a farmer's wife.

KEEP FARE MONEY.

Other correspondence followed, with an ultimate exchange of photos. The Medford farmer received numerous artistically finished 'snap shots" of his prospective bride, including one in which she was garbed as a typical movie bathing beauty. He liked the pictures, so the next request was for some money for a railroad ticket so that the bride-to-be might join him on Oregon farm, where the pair "would live happily ever afterward"

There wasn't any happy aftermath, however. After sending the requested funds, the farmer heard nothing further from the matrimonial bureau.

According to the Federal agents virtually the same game was worked on both male and female seekers after love, who answered the couples' advertisements and their victims reach from coast to coast.

THUG FORCES VICTIM TO AID ESCAPE

Ethmer Patterson, night watchman at the West Side Garage at Tracy, was held up early this morning by a bandit with a gun, who robbed the cash register of $67.65 and then forced Patterson to accompany him to Altamont in a small roadster stolen from the garage. At Altamont Patterson was forced from the auto while the bandit drove on towards Oakland.

Patterson, who sleeps at the garage, was awakened about 5 o'clock this morning by the robber, who covered him with a revolver and forced him to stand in a corner with his face to the wall while the robber looted the till. Patterson was then forced to drive a small auto outside. Two blocks outside of town the bandit met a larger car, whose license number Patterson has given the police, and the two cars proceeded at high speed toward Oakland.

Police Search For Wife Who Quit Home

Oakland police today are searching for Grace Ingstrom, 2177 Telegraph avenue, who has been missing from her home since July 27.

The disappearance was reported yesterday by her husband, Paul Ingstrom. The police report states that she left home following a family quarrel. She is twenty years old. She is five feet five inches tall and weighs 130 pounds.
